REVIEW'S MARKET LETTER.

Furnished by Clay Robinson Co, the Well Known Omaha Firm.

South Omaha, April 24, 1906.

The run of cattle last week was moderate, but the steer trade continued slow and draggy throughout the week. Eastern packers claimed an over supply of beef steers, and our trade here closed up 15 and 20c lower.

So far this week the trade has not been very active and prices are no more than steady with last week's decline. Good to choice kinds of steers are quotable at $5.15 and $5.40; good steers $4.85 and $5.15; fair classes $4.65 and $4.85. The butcher stock trade also ruled slow and lower during the week, and while good stock suffered hardly more than a dime during the week, common and canning classes depreciated fully 20 cents. The run of stockers and feeders was moderate. While the demand held the light and medium weight stock steers about steady, the heavy feeding steers not with a decline of about a dime, in sympathy with the weak condition of the fat cattle market. Good to choice steers both heavy and light are quotable at $4.15 and $4.50; fair to good $3.65 and $4.10.

The hog market has been weak and tending toward a lower level of prices. All of the advance and about a nickle more was wiped out at the close last week. Fairly liberal runs this week has caused a further drop of about a dime. The price of hogs at this time seems to be close to the price of provisions. The bulk sold at $6.27 1/2 and $ 6.30, with top at $6.35 today.

Clay, Robinson & Co.

A $5100.00. SERIES OF NOVELS.

The foremost literary novelty of the century has been secured by the Des Moines Sunday Register and Leader. Twelve of the best known living writers—six Englishmen and six American women—have each written a new novel which will appear serially in the Sunday Register and Leader during the next twelve months.

The American women novelists represented are Anna Katharine Green, Mrs. Craigie (John Oliver Hobbes), Amelia E. Rarr, Mary E. Wilkins-Freeman, Mrs. Burton Harrison and Gertrude Atherton.

The six English novelists are Ian MacLaren, Max Pemberton, Eden Philpotts, Robert Barr, E. F. Benson and Cutcliffe Hyne.

International fiction can supply no more famous contemporary names than the foregoing, and the novels they have written for the Sunday Register and Leader are examples of their highest and most brilliant work.

Each novel will run serially for one month, beginning with the first and concluding with the last Sunday.

The first of this great international series will be "A Rock in the Baltic," by Robert Barr, which begins in the Sunday Register and Leader, Sunday, May 6th. This story promises to be the talk of two continents and is filled with action from start to finish. Every person who appreciates a good story will arrange to obtain the Sunday Register and Leader regularly beginning Sunday, May 6th.
