The Week In Society.

On Wednesday Mrs. C. F. Kuehnle and Mrs. Alice Ainsworth entertained at dinner in honor of Mrs. Freeman Knowles of Deadwood who is visiting her niece Mrs. Norman Nash. The old time friends of Mrs. Knowles were the ones asked to meet her and they had a very pleasant social visit together. Mrs. Kuehnle served a very fine four course dinner and both she and Mrs. Ainsworth left nothing undone that could add to their guests comfort and pleasure.

Mrs. Chas. Jones also entertained on Saturday a number of old time friends of Mrs. Freeman Knowles. The West Side people seem to have a loyal a memory for their old friends and days as do the Denison people. Mrs. Wagoner assisted Mrs. Jones in serving and the guests had a very charming visit together.

On Friday Mesdames McClellan and Scaggs gave a lawn party on the beautiful grounds of Mrs. Scaggs home. The company was in compliment to the W. R. C. and all of the members of the order were the guests of honor. Beside the corps a number of ladies were invited so that the party numbered about sixty-five. It was an ideal day for a lawn party and the ladies enjoyed the lovely June day and hospitality to the uttermost. A guessing game made lots of fun, Mrs. Dr. Wright capturing the prize, a silk flag. Refreshments that were very nice were served after the game and everyone departed highly delighted with their hostesses' kindness.

Mrs. Van Meter of Alden and daughter Helen have been the guests of Mrs. Chas. Jones. Mrs. Van Meter's maiden name was Fellingham and her home was in West Side. Miss Lou Chapin who is greatly beloved here makes her home with Mrs. Van Meter and is in very good health.

BAKING POWDER. AGAIN.
Alum Goods That Masquerade as "High-Class" Powders.

The Retailers' Journal, Chicago, say that the claims of the 25-cent alum baking powders are an imposition, both on the consumer and the retailer. The difference between the cost of manufacture of a 10-cent alum baking powder and a 25-cent one is not distinguishable; in fact, it was stated recently by an officer of the Alum Baking Powder Association that they both come out of the same barrel. The cost to make an alum baking powder is about two cents a pound. When this powder is sold at 25 cents a pound it would not appear to the average consumer as a "high grade baking powder sold at a moderate price," but rather as a very low grade baking powder sold at a high price.

The twenty-three cents profit on a two-cent food article is not, however, so important as the fact that the chief ingredient of the 25-cent powder is alum, a mineral acid, well known to be injurious when taken into the stomach.

The Chafing Dish.

She came up to the country
But a week or so ago
The city maid who ne'er had seen
The fields where wild flowers grow:
And when she saw the curtains
She cried, "Oh, do look, quick!"
Who ever heard of sausages
A growing on a stick!" — St. Nicholas.

The crimson rambler is at the height of its beauty and is wonderful how many handsome ones we have in Denison. Mr. Cushman's house with one large white rambler and three crimson ones looks like a California home.

Vacation plans are uppermost in every ones mind just at present. It is a great mistake not to take a rest or change. We are sure of this life and its better to make the most of it.

The Spinsters' Book hits men pretty hard when it says, for example: "Not infrequently when a man asks a woman to marry him, he means that he wants her to help him love himself."

How good it seems to have the Denison people coming back to visit as we always do in summer. And have you noticed how glad they always are to get back? "No place like Denison" is the story of everyone.

"A sense of humor is one of the best friends a woman can have."

Higher education for women can have no more opponents. The strongest advocate for home life should be converted by the fact that the Wellesley college girls successfully fought a fire with woman's long-time friend, the broom.

The greatest enemy to the development of the coreless and seedless apple is the small boy, who since the beginning of time has hungrily watched the lucky boy with an apple and as it disappeared said "Gim'me the core." Not much will he advocate the coreless apple.

How many cherries have you "put up" is one of the first things women ask each other now a days.

If you never ate a sour cream pie you do not know the poetry of pie making. Pumpkin, apple, lemon, cherry, mince, all of the old time pies are good, but sink your teeth in a sour cream pie and you will never count that day as lost. You can find how to make it in the Friday Club book.

Speaking of pie how's this?
I'd like to eat of mother's pie.
As other bards are telling:
I'd like to praise its naky crust.
Its rich and juicy filling.

But unfortunately, the best I ever ate was made by mother's third cousin's half-brother's step-aunt on the father's side. — Harper's Bazar.

The Pacific Monthly of June has a story called "The Banks Woman" written by Mrs. Una Nixon Hopkins of Pasadena but a Denison girl and one of whom we may well be proud. With a strong artistic sense, with a delight in both color and form Mrs. Hopkins excels in many lines. As a designer and builder of houses, her love of form finds expression. And her household decorations are so original that her taste has given her a national reputation. Her love of color also is beautifully expressed by her pen. This extract of her story shows her strength in local color. To anyone who has been to California this will be as real as a kodak picture with the color and from both given. Mrs. Hopkins promises to visit Iowa this fall and we all will be proud to have our talented daughter with us again.
"A beautiful spot! For background, the Sierra Madres, evasive in color and contour, assuming one shade after another in rapid succession, and by the time you had well marked their contour, becoming cloud-enveloped, so that you lost it. The mountains dwarfed the Rainey cottage until Mrs. Rainey declared she was ever conscious of the fact that she played about as important a part in the universe as did the ants that worked unceasingly in her orchard. Old Californians knew, without looking, that there was snow on the peak—it accounted for the biting, crisp air, in spite of the fact that the oranges were luscious on the trees, and the roses bloomed uninterrupted in the garden. It was only one of the many paradoxes of the section. Late rains in the valley had made late snows in the mountains.
The whole valley was like a rich embroidery in color. There was the velvety-green of the orange and lemon, the blue-grey-green of the eucalyptus, large patches of the yellow of wild poppy, with here and there areas of pink where the peach tree bloomed; and now and then a road zig-zagged, making some careless stitches in the pattern. On the border, like a mirror wrought into an Oriental embroidery, glistened the sea." That Bank Woman by Una Nixon Hopkins.
