RUDD IS A LEAGUER.

Dow City Boy Holds First Bag for Rock Island. Does Fine Work.

Rudd, the former Dow City ball player is doing splendid work as a professional and has recently been promoted to an important place on the Rock Island League team.

Speaking of Rudd's transfer to Rock Island, the Moline Mail says: Captain Rudd played his last game with Moline Sunday and hereafter will be seen in a Rock Island uniform.

The change is not much of a surprise to local fans for all know that Mike Sexton has had his eye on his work. However, he consulted the local management, telling them that he did not want to disorganize the local team but that he needed a first baseman and if Rudd could be spared he would like to get him.

GRAND CIRCUS IN TOWN.

Our boy told us all about it. "It was a dandy circus, an they had a really p'rade and really horses. It was Philip Baker 'n the Romans boy, what lives where Mr. Gene Gulick used to live and it was in Mrs. Hope's barn. No, not the p'rade. The p'rade was up town, you bet, 'n there was a funny old clown what rode in a little wagon, 'n the kid on the horse pulled him 'n kep tipping him over soss he fell on his back—not to hurt though. They was too much noise at the circus. Why a kid next me just SCREAMED. 'N they was a funny old clown at the circus too. An it cost a penny and they made just lots of money. Thirteen cents, and maybe more'n that. An one boy paid a nickel. HE went to the side show free. I didn't go to the side show. It cost another penny. An there was an item there too, it was Bobby Cochran an his ma too—'no she wasn't at the circus, but, she's back, an that's an item ain't it? An they didn't give it all so theyse going to be another. 'N can I go daddy. Its jes a penny?"

QUICK REVIEW WORK.

Last week E. A. Stone advertised an excursion to Wyoming. The time was very short and the advertisement was published only in the Review. The advertisement was not circulated until Friday morning, but within twenty-four hours he had a dozen inquiries, nearly all of them coming directly from the Review advertising. Mr. Stone did something, moreover that many people would have forgotten; he came around and told us about it and expressed his appreciation of the drawing powers of a Review ad.

READ THE LABEL.

Some of The Alum Baking Powders Offered by Grocers.

As is well known, the laws of most States require all baking powders made from alum to show that fact on their labels.

It is not always that the manufacturers comply with the law, or if they do in a technical way the terms used are not intelligible to the average consumer.

For instance "basic aluminum sulphate" is nothing more or less than "alum."

The following list of baking powders containing alum is made up from the official reports of the Food Commissioners or from the report of the U. S. Agricultural Department at Washington, or other equally reliable authority:

- CALUMET..... Contains Alum. Calumet Baking Powder Co., Chicago. I. C. Contain Alum. Jacques Mfg. Co., Chicago. PALACE..... Contain Alum. Palace Baking Powder Co., St. Paul. CAMEO..... Contains Alum. Cameo Baking Powder Co., Chicago. BON BON, HOTEL, Grand Chemical Co., Chicago. ATLAS..... Contains Alum. Reid, Marlock & Co., Chicago. CHAPMAN'S..... Contains Alum. Chapman & Smith Co., Chicago. SUPERIOR..... Contains Alum. Superior Baking Powder Co., St. Paul.

The housekeeper should bear in mind that alum costs but two cents a pound while cream of tartar costs thirty. The quality of the powder is therefore usually indicated by the price.

Funny Sayings Out of The Mouths of Babes

TEACHER—Why did the ancients believe the earth to be flat? Bright Boy—'Cause they didn't have no school globes to prove that it was round."

As the train rolled into the depot the brakeman called out, "Twenty minutes for dinner!" "Well," said little Elmer, "I've heard that time was money, but I never heard of people eating it before."

Sunday School Teacher—Remember, Johnny, if you are a good boy you will go to heaven some day and have a beautiful harp.

Small John—About how good will I have to be to get a drum instead of a harp?

Little Margie had spent all her life in the country and, living near the mountains, had frequently heard of the large snakes to be found in the many holes and crevices of their rocky slopes. Her mother, who was greatly afraid of the reptiles, had one day remarked that she could see no use for such loathsome creatures and wondered why they were created.

The next morning Margie sat in a brown study, her chin upon her hand. Presently, looking up, she said: "Mamma, I know why God made snakes."

"Why, dear?" asked her mother. "When he got through makin' the world it was full of holes, so he made snakes to fill up the holes," the child explained.—Chicago News.

In Another Snarl.

Mr. Mackinbrakes was trying to say a consoling word to one of the beef magnates, whom he had chanced to meet at a banquet.

"Anyhow, Mr. Muehblud," he said with a reassuring smile, "the people here this evening don't seem to be so terribly afraid of the meat. I had time to notice that because I'm not much of a meat eater myself. That is, I don't eat as much meat as I used to—er—not that exactly, either, because I—well, nothing of that kind affects me, you know, and I can eat anything I really want to—though, of course—and I don't believe half they say about it is true, anyway, but even before the expo—the investiga—I mean before there was any scam—any talk about it, you understand, I was more or less a vegetarian, but I wasn't—not at that time—I—I wasn't—er—quite such a blamed fool as I seem to be making of my—Mr. Muehblud, what time have you? My watch has run down."—Chicago Tribune.

Generous to a Fault.

"She's an awfully generous girl!" "Yes; she's always giving herself away."—Pueblo Chieftain.

A Fierce Snip.

"Now, children, behave!" exclaimed Mrs. Boorish, fishing for a compliment from her guest. "Really, Mr. Grouch, we're always afraid to have company for dinner because the children have such awful table manners."

"But," replied Mr. Grouch, "if you had company more frequently the children might see good manners and imitate them."—Philadelphia Press.

Saving the Pieces.

"Say," began the burly visitor, "you sent a collector up to my house this morning?" "Oh, yes, that little bill you owe," said the merchant. "Well?"

"Well, you'd better send another one up."

"What for?" "To collect the first one."—Houston Post.

Sociability.

"Why do you insist on knowing how your husband passes every minute of his time?"

"I don't insist on knowing," answered Mrs. Wise. "I merely insist on his telling me some sort of a story about it. It makes conversation."—Baltimore News.

Unreasonable Wish.

"What I want," said the fastidious tenant, "is a quiet home in the most desirable neighborhood."

"Impossible," answered the candid real estate man. "There is always so much building going on in a desirable neighborhood that it can't be quiet."

Thompson's Cleverness.

Papa's voice from above: "Why are you sitting up so late, Maud?"

Maud—Mr. Thompson was showing me some parlor magic, papa.

Papa—And where is Thompson? Maud—He made himself disappear, papa.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

What's In a Name?

A maiden whose first name was WILD Was the only and beautiful child Of Mr. Jack Rose. And the sad story goes That later she wed Mr. Colt of Nag's Head And thus had her pretty name spelled. —Bohemian Magazine.

Osteopathy Its Credentials, What it Is, and What it Does. OSTEOPATHY has received special recognition from the legislatures of eighteen states, and is meeting with a degree of favor at the hands of the general public never before equalled by any method of healing in so short a time. It has received the endorsement of the most intelligent classes in the communities where it has been properly introduced. THE RECORD of Osteopathy in the treatment of diseases shows about seventy-five per cent of the cases completely cured, and about ninety-five per cent benefitted. This record is the more remarkable from the fact that more than three-fourths of the cases treated are of a chronic nature, and most of them have previously tried some other methods without avail. OSTEOPATHY is the scientific adjustment, by mechanical manipulations, of the abnormal conditions of the human body. It is the drugless system of healing, based upon a thorough knowledge of structure and functions of the organs of the body. OSTEOPATHY regards the human system as a delicate, complicated, and wonderfully constructed machine, which, when properly adjusted, is capable of normal action for its appointed time, unless interfered with by accident or otherwise. Because the body is such a machine it is extremely liable to mechanical defect, and the chief work of a true healing art is mechanical adjustment. THE PATHOLOGICAL CONDITIONS called disease (dis-ease) implies a cessation, stagnation or inharmonious action of the fluids, forces or cells of the body, due to some hindrance to the vital processes. A free and active circulation of the blood and other fluids and equalized current of nerve energy are absolutely essential to a condition of health or ease. Osteopathy, therefore, recognizes obstruction to these vital fluids and forces as the primitive cause of disease, and the basic principle of the RATIONAL LAW OF CURE is thus: Adjust the machinery of the body, free its vital recuperative fluids and forces, remove the obstruction to the life-giving and healing energies resident in the body, and nature will perform her normal functions, disease will be eradicated and health restored. OUR METHOD is one of common sense. If your watch fails to keep correct time you know that its parts are out of adjustment. If your body doesn't feel or work as it should, its muscles, nerves, bones or vessels are out of their normal condition. Fix the body as you would the watch and health will be the result. This is Osteopathy. This method of examination and treatment will cure, often when all others have failed. It has cured thousands who have been given up as incurables by other systems of treatment. Dr. E. H. Pratt, the well known Official Surgeon, of Chicago, says: "Osteopathy must rank as one of the most important measures known for the relief of all forms of chronic ailments. In Obstetrics it is winning quite a reputation for enabling women to bear their children with less pain, less frequent lacerations, and with less hemorrhage than without its aid. In eye and ear and throat work it has accomplished some wonderful things. Opie Read, the distinguished author, "physically regenerated" by it, says: "It is worth all the curative waters in the world. It is almost instant freedom from weariness. It is the Champagne of Nature. I honestly believe it to be one of the most wonderful discoveries of any age." OSTEOPATHIC TREATMENT is particularly adapted to FEMALE COMPLAINTS, including painful, suppressed or excessive menstruation. Here positive results are promptly shown, and the treatment is given with the least possible annoyance and no suffering. We almost invariably find some interference with the blood or nerve supply, causing lack of tone in the supports of the organ rather than affection of the organ itself. It has been truly said that Osteopathy is the greatest boon of the century to womankind. Every woman ever treated by it for female troubles received benefit, and the records show that more than ninety out of every hundred were completely cured. CURES.—Among the many diseases successfully treated by Osteopathy, we mention the following: Asthma, atrophied limbs, bright's disease, bronchitis, chronic diarrhoea, constipation, catarrh, cold extremities, dislocations, dyspepsia, dizziness, dropsy, eczema, epilepsy, eye troubles, flux, female troubles, granulated eye lids, general debility, gout, goiter, gall stones, headache, hay fever, hip disease, irregularities of the heart, indigestion, insomnia, jaundice, lumbago, liver troubles, locomotor ataxia, nervousness, neuralgia, piles, pain in the back, paralysis, rheumatism, stomach troubles,
