

SHAW FOR CUMMINS

The Great Secretary Speaks In No Uncertain Terms.

HE IS REPUBLICAN ALWAYS

Secretary Shaw Urges All His Friends To Vote For Cummins And Republicanism.

Indianola, Ia., Oct. 30.—Secretary Shaw, speaking here this afternoon, said in part:

"I am very glad to be able to spend the last week of the campaign in my own state, and to render what assistance I can in electing the entire state ticket and a solid republican congressional delegation.

"I plead guilty to the charge of being a strong partisan republican. I believe in political parties, and in government by party. From the beginning of our history until now we have been electing men to office but putting parties in power. It follows, therefore that to be useful and successful a party must be coherent.

I may be theoretically wrong, but without antagonizing anyone who disagrees with me, I have always believed it to be important that the party present a solid front.

"After a most acrimonious and I think a most unfortunate as well as regrettable canvass, the convention solved the problem by making the enomination, and to me that settles it. I am the last man in the world to oppose my party in whatever it may do. Of course I would not promise support if the republican party should cease to stand for the fundamental principles which I believe essential not only to the perpetuity of the nation but to the prosperity of our people. would, however, stand by it or withdraw from it. Therefore, so long as the party represents the political principles in which I believe, I stand ready to make any sacrifice in furtherance of the great cause on which I believe the happiness of every citizen of the great republic depends.

"Whether I have consistently contended for republican principles in the past I hope it is not necessary for me to declare. That I will support them in the future I hope I need not promise. But of standing in the way of the political ambitions of any man except in the interest of the party, and of seeking to advance my own interests at the expense of the party, and of encouraging factionalism within the party by engaging therein, I plead not guilty, and in proof thereof point to the record.

"There is no occasion for ill-feeling between the head of the ticket and the man who immediately preceded him as governor of this state. The fact that we may entertain different views on certain economic questions, and different views concerning the importance of party fealty and party coherency, affords no reason for anything but the exchange of the most cordial good wishes. Governor Cummins has made a good chief executive. Like all his predecessors he has done what he has thought wisest and best and he has done well. "Without expressing an opinion concerning his immediate predecessors, but with that possible exception, Iowa has never had other than good, honorable, high-minded governors. Iowa has never had a political scandal. She has never had a defalcation worth mentioning. There has never been a charge of graft or misappropriation of any considerable amount of public money. Her taxes have been lower than in any adjacent state. She has never had a political boss.

"I seldom mention a candidate's name. When running for governor I never urged anyone to vote for me, and except when talking to the convention that nominated me I never made a pledge or promise, as the record of my speeches will show. In accepting the first nomination at Cedar Rapids I told the convention that I was not so wise but that I would heed advice, that I was not so foolish as to suppose I could follow all the advice I was likely to receive, and that was not so weak as to allow others to solve for me the questions that would appropriately come before me for ultimate solution.

"I never mentioned state issues but once in each campaign, and then only to the extent of referring to what had been done, making no prelude as to what should be done. On all other occasions I taught as best I could the principles of the party that has honored me. I did not find it convenient or necessary even to say that I believed them myself. Two years ago I traveled twenty-one thousand miles and spoke in more than twenty states, but I seldom mentioned my chief, who was then the standard bearer of the party. I frequently said, and now as frequently reiterate that after Theodore Roosevelt is dead, and when the members of his cabinet are forgotten, the principles for which I speak will be as true and essential to the government as they are now or as they have been from the beginning of our national existence. "But to avoid all possibility of being misunderstood, I desire to take it plain and clear in the state, that I am for the ticket and every candidate on the ticket. If we can give Governor Cummins our undivided support it ought for at least a decade to insure the state against disturbing forces and save the party from further factional controversies. No one will be likely again to ask Mr. Blythe's assistance, and he certainly will not intrude himself. In fact, I can think of no one who will be likely to intrude. Republicanism is worth more than any man's ambition. The state has been safe under Governor Cummins' control for the last five years, and it will be safe as long as he is in control. He promises to look after the business interests of us all. What more does anyone want. I am for the ticket and every man on the ticket. Let us have peace."

REPUBLICAN BY MAJORITY.

Old Time Victory Now Certain—State and Congressional Ticket Will be Elected.

Des Moines, Oct.—Special: Republican Iowa will next Tuesday send word to the people of the Nation that it is steadfast in the faith: that Iowa voters approve of honesty, ability and courage in administration of public affairs; and that the traditional enemy has not broken the ranks at any point. The election of the entire Republican state and congressional ticket is absolutely assured at this time. Reports received at Republican State headquarters from every county, from chairman and from precinct committeemen and others, and show that Governor Cummins will have upwards of 50,000 majority, that every congressional district is safely Republican, and that there is not a shadow of doubt that the legislature will be Republican in both branches.

"I believe I will have fifty or sixty thousand majority," says Governor Cummins.

"My reports show that Iowa will have an old time Republican majority," says Chairman Woods, of the Republican State committee.

On behalf of the Republican party the campaign has been conducted in a dignified way with a view to commanding the respect of all voters for the Republican party. The work done has been that of circulation chiefly through the country press of wholesome literature presenting the reasons why Republican candidates should be elected, and the use of a limited number of good speakers able to present Republican principles intelligently. The candidates now before the people are joined with all the leading republican speakers of the state in urging the election of every republican nominee. More than 500 newspapers of the state are loyally and effectively supporting the Republican party. A splendid organization of volunteer workers has been secured, running into every precinct of the state, and if these patriotic workers for the common good are supported honestly and aggressively by the rank and file of the party as they deserve the victory will be much greater than the above figures indicate.

On the other hand the democratic organization has conducted a strictly guerilla warfare; the democratic leader has stooped to the basest misrepresentations and has persisted in gross and inexcusable abuse of his opponent as his only argument; and a secretly organized committee representing selfish corporation interests has directed a bushwhacking campaign against the Republican ticket in shameful disregard of truth, honor or decency. It is planned that in the closing days of the campaign the state is to be flooded with all sorts of false rumors and with canards and roorbacks, all design to set Republicans against each other in the hope that out of the foolish turmoil some democratic advantage may be gained. Already the allied opposition is circulating privately and through its newspapers cartoons and letters and interviews, not in support of the democratic platform, but wholly directed personally toward Republican candidates and the time-tried leaders in Iowa affairs.

Every voter who has the good of his country at heart and who believes in supporting the splendid work of Roosevelt in the Nation and Cummins in the state, who believes that prosperity is better than anything else, who believes that the affairs of our state and nation should be directed by conscientious, earnest, patriotic men—these men will march shoulder to shoulder on Tuesday and support the Republican party by voting for every Republican nominee.

Deep interest is manifested in other states and at Washington, and by President Roosevelt, over the Iowa contest, and everywhere there is hope and expectation that Iowa will give a good account of herself.

Dow City.

On last Wednesday occurred the death of Grandma Riddle. She had been sick for a long time and death has freed her from her suffering. She leaves three sons, Ed. James and Lincoln and one daughter, Mrs. Cushman, and her husband to mourn her loss. The funeral was held at the Methodist church Friday afternoon.

On Friday evening the second number of our lecture course was given. In spite of the wind and rain a large crowd assembled at the Methodist church to hear Ed. Amherst Ott deliver his lecture on "The Haunted House." The lecture was one of the finest ever given in Dow City. He portrayed the haunted house as the human brain and certainly showed us that most people have a few ghosts in their heads. Mr. Ott was here on June 1st and delivered the commencement address "Sour Grapes." Although he has spoken twice in Dow City, he would be very gladly greeted a third time.
