

Arion

Roy Roberts went to Omaha on Monday and expects to enlist in the Regular Army.

Mrs. D. J. Butler and mother Mrs. Bangs spent a day very pleasantly with friends in Logan and also stopped over night with relatives in Woodbine.

The many friends of J. W. Blackstone are pleased to know that he is getting better. He has been very sick with pneumonia.

Mrs. Conroy came home from Vail Tuesday. She has been with her mother Mrs. McAndrews who has been sick for several days.

Celia Wiser of Omaha is visiting with her friend Mrs. N. P. Underhill.

Jack Ahart had the misfortune to get his foot badly mashed in a corn sheller Monday forenoon.

Mr. Sexton of Kenwood brought his little boy to Arion to have his arm examined, the child having injured his arm by falling. After investigation it was ascertained that his arm was broken and his elbow crushed quite badly. The little fellow is as comfortable as possible and he is now doing nicely.

The Illinois Central Railroad Company are plowing the lots north of the depot and expect to make a nice park in the Spring.

The favorite driving horse that belonged to W. W. Coon died last Friday and caused much sorrow for the grand daughter Helen Schouten and her little friends, who spent many happy hours driving the faithful gentle animal during the pleasant days in their vacation, through the summer.

Daniel Cruise and wife visited at the Newel Whiting home last Sunday.

Henry Cummings was summoned to Clinton Tuesday. His father was only sick a few days with pneumonia and died last Tuesday. He spent several weeks here last fall at the Cummings home and formed an acquaintance with several who will regret to learn of his death. He was born in Scotland in 1811, was a member of the congregational church and died trusting in God, having faith that he would meet the loved ones who had gone before, in the home above.

Elsie and Hazel Kevan are enjoying short vacation between the fall and winter terms of school.

Mrs. Alexander and Mrs. Chas. Torrey were visiting in Denison last Thursday.

L. C. Butler now owns Hotel Arion but thinks he would not act as landlord.

S. Hagen who ran the Nye Schneider Fowler elevator here a few years ago, changed cars here from Dakota on his way to his old home in Norway. His wife and two children will accompany him across the ocean.

Earl Chambers received a telegram that his sister Sylva was very sick, she underwent an operation for appendicitis and is very low at her home in Omaha.

Henry and Andrew Bell are attending college in Denison. Their many friends wish them a successful term.

Mrs. McKim and brother Asa Talcott came home from Denison and will spend Thanksgiving. Asa enjoys his school work very much at the D. N. C.

Milton and Percy Doidge have purchased a new phonograph with several records. It affords great amusement for the young people.

Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Hoke and Gertrude Talcott attended an entertainment in Dunlap last Friday evening.

Several of our young people attended the play in Denison last Saturday evening and speak very highly of it.

One butcher shipped more than a ton of dressed poultry to Omaha last week and has orders for more this week.

N. P. Underhill shipped hogs to Milwaukee last Friday.

Little Oliver Burka was playing with a dog when a stray canine appeared in an antagonistic manner and in the fight one of the dogs bit the little boy through the arm and it was very painful. A physician was called and the little fellow is doing nicely at present.

Mr. Petersen who was station agent at Bell a few years ago, was here Saturday looking after his farm south of Arion and called on a number of his friends. All are glad to know that he is doing well. His son accompanied him.

The little son of Zeph Fienholt fell from the bed and broke his arm Monday evening.

The scarlet fever is not spreading as it is still confined to the one patient, Ava Butler. As the rest of the family have been kept entirely away from her it is now hoped that they will escape the disease.

The best treatment for indigestion and troubles of the stomach is to rest the stomach. It can be rested by starvation or by the use of a good digestant which will digest the food eaten, thus taking the work off the stomach. At the proper temperature, a single teaspoonful of Kodol will wholly digest 3,000 grains of food. It relieves the present annoyance, puts the stomach in shape to satisfactorily perform its functions. Good for indigestion; sour stomach; flatulence; palpitation of the heart and dyspepsia. Kodol is made in strict conformity with the National Pure Food and Drug Law. Sold by Lam-born Drug Co.

A NEW POSTAL RULING

Box Rents Must Be Paid In Advance By End Of Preceding Quarter

The attention of patrons is called to a new ruling of the postal department by which all box rents must be paid in advance before the end of the quarter preceding. This means that the rent must be paid before Jan. 1st for the ensuing quarter ending March 31st. The following is the text of the order coming from the Postmaster General:

Box rents must be collected at the beginning of each quarter for the entire quarter, but no longer. Ten days before the last day of each quarter postmasters are required to place a bill bearing the date of the last day of the quarter in each rented box. If a boxholder fails to renew his right to his box on or before the last day of a quarter the box shall then be closed and offered for rent and the mail will be placed in the general delivery. F. H. Hitchcock, Acting Postmaster General. It will be observed that the postmaster is allowed no discretion in this matter so no one should take it as a personal grievance when the law is complied with at any postoffice.

A Good Liniment.

When you need a good reliable liniment try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It has no superior for sprains and swellings. A piece of flannel slightly dampened with Pin Balm is superior to a plaster for lame back or pains in the side or chest. It also relieves rheumatic pains and makes sleep and rest possible. IS HOMESICK FOR DENISON.

Chance Copy of Review Reminds Absent One of His Old Home

The Review is in receipt of the following letter from one who was at one time a well-known resident of Crawford county.

Editor Review: Enclosed check for $1.50 for a year's subscription to the Review. After an absence from Denison for twenty-five years I'm homesick. I received a copy of the Review recently and was pleased to notice so many familiar names of old friends in the Goodrich and Deloit neighborhood. Every line of the paper was interesting, advertisements and all.

Yours truly,

Two Scapegraces

(Original.)

There is no other such frisky animal as a midshipman in the navy—that is, where the midshipman is ashore on leave. Possibly now that war vessels have changed from light wooden structures, riding the waves with white wings like a bird, to a machine shop driven by steam some of the romance may have been knocked out of the middies, but fifty years ago, when the United States frigate Honeybee sailed into Havana harbor, she had as rollicking a lot of "juniora" as ever were got together in a fighting ship.

Bob Merrett and Ned Perry, both midshipmen, could get into more mischief in one day ashore than the rest of the officers would meet in a month. No sooner had the Honeybee dropped her anchor than both lads applied for leave to go ashore.

"You can go," said their commander, "but remember that these Spaniards are a hot, jealous lot, and if you're not careful you'll be brought back with a machete sticking in you."

The injunction was unheeded. The middies went into Havana, hired a vehicle for a drive and, passing the plantation of Don Antonio Cardoza, espied Donna Ysabel Cardoza, his daughter, aged fifteen, playing under the palms at some distance from the house.

Now, what followed would have stricken the girl's parents with horror. They considered Ysabel a child, forgetting that in the tropics girls expand like the foliage. The young rascals called to Donna Ysabel to ask the road, chatted with her in bad Spanish and asked her to drive. She cast a frightened glance in the direction of the house, climbed the wall, and taking a seat between the two middies, away they went as fast as the bony, half starved horse could take them. Either officer made a good chaperon, so there was really no harm in the escapade except a violation of custom.

The ride finished, the girl was dropped safely where she had been taken up, and, during the stay of the Honeybee in the port of Havana, Bob Merrett made frequent visits to the palm wood, at last sailing away with Donna Ysabel's heart. A year passed before he saw her again, when his ship touched at Havana and he went to the Cardoza plantation with a proposition for the girl's hand. He was informed that if he showed his face there again he would find a resting place in a neighboring cemetery.

Bob went back to the ship and told his sorrow to his friend Perry. The result of the interview was that Perry agreed to go to the plantation in mufti, steal away the girl and take her to a village the two middies had passed through on their way to the plantation. There her lover was to meet and marry her. There were several defects in the plan, not the least of which was the fact that they agreed to a rendezvous in a little square in the center of the village, rather a public place for such a meeting.

The next day, both middies having obtained shore leave, Ned went on ahead, agreeing to have the girl at the trysting place, though the hour must necessarily be indefinite. Bob waited impatiently in Havana till he could wait no longer, then went to the village and took a seat in the public square.

After waiting an hour it occurred to him that possibly if Ned had been successful in getting the girl they might not find it quite safe to rendezvous in so conspicuous a place. They might be hiding in some of the houses.

Knocking at several of the doors, he asked those within if they had seen a young couple. No one had seen a young couple. Along came a hawker of toys. Bob thrust his hand into the man's basket, drew out a tin horn and blew the dinner call with a mighty blast. Up went a window sash on the opposite side of the street, and Ned Perry's head was thrust out.

"I thought that would bring you," said Bob. "What luck?"

"Come over here and I'll tell you." Bob crossed the street and was admitted to the house. Inside were a Spanish woman and a black eyed maiden just budding into womanhood. But she was not Donna Ysabel. Bob looked at her disappointed, then at his friend for an explanation.

"I've good news for you," said Ned. "Donna Ysabel was frantic at your repulse and told her father she would kill herself. So he has consented to look up your credentials and if you're all right he'll consent."

"That's good news, sure enough," said Bob, "but what are you doing here?"

Ned frowned at his friend, glancing at the same time at the others; then, bidding them good afternoon, the middies left the house.

"Well, what is it?" asked Bob on the sidewalk.

"Drifted into a cross current and struck the girl inside there."

"Oh, I see!"

The next day Midshipman Merrett called upon Don Cardoza, renewed his request for Donna Ysabel and presented his credentials. There was not much money in his family, but his progenitors had been in the navy for nearly a century and were eminently respectable. So Don Cardoza yielded, and Ysabel Cardoza became Ysabel Merrett.

The other of these scapegraces, after leaving a sweetheart in each of a dozen ports, finally had the undesired good fortune to marry a beautiful and wealthy countrywoman of his own. Both men turned out far better than might have been expected, attaining high rank in their profession.
