THE MEMORIAL SERMON

Union Service Sunday Morning in Honor of Old Soldiers.

Our patriotic people did no fail to observe the custom of a special Memorial sermon on the Sunday before May 30. There were union services in the M. E. church and the sermon was delivered by Rev. Cable of that church. The M. E. choir furnished the music. The ladies of the W. R. C. had tastefully arranged the decorations using flags, bunting and plants. The pictures of the beloved Lincoln and Garfield were given important places. The text of the sermon was most appropriate, being taken from Exodus 12, 26 "What mean ye by this service?" The pastor spoke of battles old and new, speaking of well known battles of the Revolutionary times and of the great rebellion. The men who fought in them were heroes indeed and should be honored. There were other battles yet to fight and among these were those to overcome the liquor traffic, to settle right the race problem, to get justice to capital and labor, and lastly to Christianize the world. Further courage, self-sacrifice and even blood shed were demanded if necessary. Rev. Cable spoke in a most earnest way, and made a fine sermon. Five veterans of the Civil War were in attendance. The services were most satisfactory to the patriotic people in the community.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON.

Rev. Lacey Gives a Most Helpful Sermon to Graduates.

The Presbyterian church was all aglow on Sunday night, when union service were held and the sermon to the coming High School graduates was given by Rev. Lacey. The decorations were beautiful, Miss Gladys Crakes and toher members of the Junior class having them in charge. The class colors of purple and white were seen everywhere, and flowers and potted plants were arranged in a bank to the front of the pulpit. The boys came in headed by Miss Potter, the principal and the Superintendent Prof Richter led the girl graduates.

The sermon was on the "Debt of Strength". The graduating pupils have been given by the public, a fine education and there was now an obligation or debt to use it well. They were urged to go on to college and university, for with their present learning the added education would give a multiplied advantage. Graduates owe a debt to society, because of the superior education they had received. It was to be hoped that they had been made independent thinkers. In closing the gifted speaker urged that the young men and women owed a debt to the cause of Jesus Christ, which could not be put aside without sin. The address was thus thoughtful and practical. There was a crowded church and the program a success.
