The "feast of nations" conducted by the Rebekahs Saturday was a most unique affair and decided success. The want of material only caused people to go away, as everything was swept up clean. Various booths representing various nations were decorated and ornamented in accordance to that nation and were presided over by maidens garbed in the costume peculiar to that nation. United States, Germany, Italy, Ireland and the Klondike were represented with their various flags. In Japan you had to sit on cushions on the floor. Eatables that belonged to each country were served. Ice cream was served in the Klondike booth. A fortune teller in her gypsy tent told fortunes to the credulous. Plenty of home-made candy was disposed of. In all a goodly sum was gathered in.
