Alderman A. Green goes to the hospital to-morrow, where he will undergo an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Green is in good spirits and faces the ordeal bravely. While there is practically no danger his friends will be greatly rejoiced when he is able to be around again.

Although the students at the High School felt scandalized at being kept at their post of duty on Lincoln Day, before the sessions were ended they felt amply repaid, for they had several treats during the day. Supt. Fellows opened the morning session with a neat little speech. Later in the morning Mr. C. F. Kuehne was introduced and delivered a well prepared address on the life of Abraham Lincoln. In the afternoon the classes were called to the assembly room, where Mr. Adolph Schneider of Berlin, Germany and Prof. Battelli of Rome, Italy, addressed them briefly.

Mr. J. O. Booth, who with his family recently moved here from Omaha, suffered a stroke of paralysis last Friday. At present he is much better and feeling and movement have been restored. There is every reason to hope that he will recover and be able to resume his work. It is nevertheless a sad blow to him and to his family. But a few days ago he lost his brother, and his nephew who came upon receipt of news of his illness was recalled by word that the father of Mr. Booth had been injured in a runaway. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Booth extend sincere sympathy and hope that good fortune may come instead of bad luck that has been theirs.

On the afternoon of Feb. 12 many little folks with here and there a mother or an aunt, might have been seen making their way to the M. E. church. It was the social occasion of the Mother's Jewels, and about sixty-five children besides a large group of mothers assembled in the Epworth League room, which had been made gay for them with flags, bunting and flowers. Mrs. J. W. Smith as superintended the program, which consisted of songs, recitations, a dialogue and so on. The children who took part were Margaret Woodruff, Anna Boyle, John Norris, Henry Clay Laub, Doris Jensen, Geneva Lyman, Mary Ransom, Sarah Boyle, Chester Lyman, Ruth Silletto, Ben Welch, John Boyle, Elsie Cavett and Caroline Ransom. Hedwig Brodersen entertained the children with a reading. Very nice refreshments were served by Mrs. Criswell and a whole lot of assistants from the W. H. M. S. and its friends. As a souvenir every child was given a pretty little valentine, while the grown folks carried away a memory picture of the happy smiling faces of the children.

Fred Paulsen and family leave the first of March for Ocoma, S. D., where they will make their future home. Thus Crawford loses another desirable family, but our best wishes go with them for prosperity and success.

Caroline Saggau celebrated her tenth birthday last Saturday by a merry party who enjoyed themselves very much playing games and having a good time generally. They likewise appreciated the refreshments Mrs. Saggau provided.

On Saturday afternoon a number of girls met at the home of Miss Senseney and organized Company 2 of the Standard Bearers. The carnation is their flower and the colors of the society are blue and white. Their object is to become informed in regard to Womens' Foreign Missions and be of some help to that cause.

"A Bunch of Roses," the beautiful little drama that will be given at City Hall Saturday evening is most worthy your attendance. The different characters are well distributed among able performers and the staging and scenery is of special merit. Saturday afternoon a matinee for children will be given, price of admission 10 cents. In the evening the price of admission will be 15 cents. Proceeds to be used to insure the Episcopal church against loss by fire. Tickets on sale at Schlumberger's drug store.

The good people of the German M. E. church made up a surprise on Tuesday night on Mr. and Mrs. Matt Hugg. It was the 27th anniversary of their wedding day and the next day came the birthday of Emil of the bank. The party took along plenty of good things to eat, and had a grand time.

We are glad to know that Mr. Dean, the well known artist, will remain with us for another week or two to teach those who are interested in art. Mr. Dean does all kinds of painting in oil and water colors, also crayon and pastel portraits and views, and teaches those branches. All those interested will find him in Mr. Knaul's drug store, where he will give free demonstrations. Mr. Dean will call at the homes of any desiring to know his methods of doing the fine painting and water color work. 7-1
