ENGAGEMENT EXTRAORDINARY

World's Greatest Bell Ringers Engaged for Local Chautauqua.

It is not uncommon for the Redpath-Vawter System to bring the best of whatever it attempts to furnish. Its patrons will come to a pretty unanimous agreement as to the quality of the talent furnished them, but it is noticeable even for this System and a matter of much pride and congratulation to its management to be able to announce the Royal English Handbell Orchestra, not only of the best, but acknowledgedly unique and utterly without rivals. This magnificent company of handbell ringers is beyond competition. They have won world's championships so invariably and with such ease that none are willing to compete with them for premiership. When the Royal English Handbell Ringers appear Redpath-Vawter patrons may congratulate themselves that they have seen the highest class entertainment of its kind in the world.

There is as much difference in handbell ringing as between the greatest violin virtuoso and the barefoot boy with a mouth organ. The Royal English play the most difficult classical selections as well as the popular airs of the street. The intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana, the march from Tannhauser, Verdi's operas, selections from Beethoven are rendered with effect and in harmony and complete time. It is a new effect in musical rendition and holds the assemblage as by an incantation.

The program includes some vocal numbers. Among other features, a soloist sings to bell accompaniment. Lyceum goers will remember the furor caused by the Almon-Perry Bell Ringers, who appeared seven years ago. The management of the Chautauqua system assures its clientele that the Royal English is a much better company, with such a wider range of repertoire and accomplishment, that those who heard the Almon-Perrys will find this greater attraction an entirely new delight.

Eight men comprise the company which has won the English handbell ringing contest for the past five successive years. They carry a new peal of 171 bells and have specially prepared for their American trip in various ways.

The Redpath-Vawter System is justly proud of this great organization, caught in the dragnet which the System throws across two worlds in its search for the new, novel and entertaining. No other organization could have secured or financed the contract which brings the Royal English handbell ringers to delight the Chautauqua audiences of the great middle west.

Judge Alden, the Popular Chautauqua Lecturer, Advises Against Local Minstrels.

Judge Alden gave a personal anecdote which showed that the amateur minstrel business mixed with a penchant for poetry is not a good thing. "When I was a youth I occupied a more or less prominent part in a local minstrel show in a little Massachusetts town where I lived. I wrote a song for the occasion and as no one seemed anxious to sing I sang it myself. There were seventeen verses and I roasted seventeen local celebrities. When I grew old I ran for the legislature and was beaten by exactly seventeen votes. This coincidence taught me that I wasn't cut out for a politician and I became a lawyer."

Fortunate in Securing Such an Able and Well Known Democrat as Champ Clark.

Among the men in public life for the next few years, few will probably attract more attention, especially in the Democratic party, than Hon. Champ Clark of Missouri. Clark has long been a prominent character in politics, but just now he is exceedingly prominent. It has been the history of the nation that the man who is the minority leader on the floor of the house of representatives achieves almost as much fame as any other member of congress, not excluding the speaker.

Champ Clark is one of the veteran members of congress, having represented a Missouri district for nearly two decades. He has long been accounted one of the brilliant debaters on the floor of the house; he is able and convincing in argument, a renowned wit, a master of satire and in every way qualified to lead a body of representative men. Mr. Clark has long been one of the dominant factors in his party—the Democratic. He has been in great demand in campaigns, and in more than one national convention he has been regarded as one of the real leaders of that body.

Champ Clark has also been noted on the lecture platform. His lectures have always been in great demand. All in all, few men in public life have had such a wide hearing as has Champ Clark. And on account of his present position in the national house of representatives, which makes him one of the foremost Democrats of the nation, he will naturally be given a still wider hearing.

Success Under Difficulties.

How a man may score a triumph when the fates appear to be against him was well illustrated some months ago at Toledo, O. Albert Armstrong, the famous entertainer who presents picture plays, was billed to appear in the regular entertainment course. He was to give "The Little Minister." But it seems that the play, "The Little Minister," had been given the night before by a star company, with Maude Adams in the leading role, and of course the company and the play made a big hit. Armstrong did not like the prospect of such an apparent handicap, and he asked that he be allowed to give one of his other picture plays. But the committee insisted that he give "The Little Minister." And with much misgiving he did present in picture play the same story that had been played by an all-star aggregation the night before. And it is a fact that he scored a tremendous hit. As a matter of fact he received more complimentary press notices than did the company which presented

ALBERT ARMSTRONG.

"The Little Minister" the night previous to his own appearance. But this is only one of Armstrong's many successes. He gives such stirring, dramatic plays as "The Bonnie Briar Bush," that wonderful story by Ian MacLaren, and "The Sky Pilot," that equally interesting story, written by Ralph Connor. Armstrong is a genius or he could not make so great a success of his picture plays. He is peculiarly fitted for the work he has undertaken. He is a Scotchman and a thorough master of dialect. He has devoted many months to preparation for the entertainments he is giving. Before he gave "The Sky Pilot" he visited the Canadian northwest, with his camera, studying the people and the conditions of life in the logging camps, and taking innumerable pictures. He has achieved wonderful success and a discriminating entertainment-going public evidently believes he has earned the success he has achieved.

To Increase Avoirdupois.
Among many peoples fat is considered a sign of beauty and should this not come naturally artificial means are resorted to. In Egypt the women burn and grind up black beetles and mix them with beef fat, sesame oil and muffets. This mixture is boiled together and a cupful of the liquor taken daily by women desirous of getting fat. In England in the middle ages the ladies used the fat of the lizard when desirous of becoming stout.

True and False Happiness.
True happiness is of a retired nature, and an enemy to pomp and noise; it arises, in the first place, from the enjoyment of one's self; and in the next, from the friendship and conversation of a few select companions. False happiness lives in a crowd, and to draw the eyes of the world upon her. She does not receive any satisfaction from the applause which she gives herself, but from the admiration which she raises in others.—Addison.

Cat's Bite May Cause Loss of Hand.
As Annie Kromer was walking along the street in Nazareth, Pa., she stooped to pet a stray cat. The beast sprang at her and fastened its teeth in the back of her left hand. Suffering excruciating pain, the girl ran several blocks to her home, with the infuriated cat still hanging on. It had to be killed with a club before it let go its hold. It is feared the girl will lose her hand.

Mind and Soul.
The body is the tent where our existence is encamped. The more I think of it, the more I see that the mind is something outside of the soul, as the hands are outside of the body, the eyes outside of the head, the branches outside of the trunk. It helps to do more, but not to be more. The mind is a fire of which thought is the flame. The imagination is the eye of the soul.—Joseph Joubert.

Height Not Owed to Art.
There is a story told that when Charles I. met Henrietta Maria at Dover he was rather surprised at her height, and cast his eyes down at her feet, no doubt supposing that she wore the absurdly high heels then in vogue. Henrietta Maria guessed his thoughts and showed him her feet, saying: "Sir, I stand upon mine own feet, and have no help of art. Thus high I am, and I am no higher nor lower."

Mendelssohn as a Boy.
A quaint description of the boy Mendelssohn is given us by one Devrient: "He took his place among the grown-up people in his child's dress, a tight-fitting jacket, cut very low at the neck, over which the wide trousers were buttoned; into the slanting pockets of these the little fellow liked to thrust his hands, rocking his curly head from side to side and shifting restlessly from one foot to the other."

CORN GROWERS—NOTICE.

AN ARTICLE OF SPECIAL INTEREST AND PROFIT TO CORN PRODUCERS.

All corn growers have no doubt been greatly interested in the announcements appearing in this and other papers, of a prize of $1,000 to be given for the best ear of corn.

To no one perhaps, has the offer appealed more strongly than to Prof. F. C. Holden, of the Iowa State Agricultural College at Ames.

Prof. Holden saw in this offer a long-looked-for opportunity. For years Prof. Holden has labored for the fame of Iowa as a corn state. No individual has done so much for the corn growers as has he, through his study of corn cultivation, and seed selection. Realizing that the donor of so great a sum must have a real and unselfish interest in improving the standard of corn, negotiations were entered into looking to certain modifications in the terms and awarding of the prize money.

The idea in Prof. Holden's mind was—that he had devoted the best years of his life to inducing corn growers to improve the standard of their corn. In this generous offer he saw an opportunity to make some further return to those who have so faithfully aided him in spreading the new and better corn gospel.

His negotiations with the donor of the $1,000—looking to its distribution in what seemed a fairer and more equitable manner, having reached a successful conclusion, Prof. Holden is in a position to place the generous offer before corn growers in a new and more attractive form.

Prof. Holden calls the attention of those interested to the following:

First—The awarding of the $1,000 will be entirely in the hands of the Iowa State Agricultural College at Ames; Prof. Holden being actively in charge.

Second—This large sum will be divided into attractive prizes, instead of going to one grower, so as to attract the greatest number of contestants.

Third—Details yet to be worked out include the division of interest in this contest—widely educational in its scope at Ames and at the Corn Exposition in Des Moines.

Fourth—The public announcements of the prize award are temporarily suspended, and the closing date has been advanced to a time when the 1909 crop has matured. As soon as the details have been worked out Prof. Holden will suggest a renewal of the prize announcements which will appear in the columns of this paper.

Every corn grower with the interests of the industry and of his state at heart, will welcome this change of plan. Under the able direction of Prof. Holden the suggestions of himself and associates will prove of far greater benefit than as originally planned.

The editor asks his readers to watch for the new announcements and to communicate suggestions to Prof. Holden at Ames.
