THE CATTLE SITUATION.

The near panic which spread over the country in 1907 was much more severe on the people of the Eastern states than on those of the West.
Since then, and because also of the business uncertainty attending the revision of the tariff by Congress, manufacturers throughout the East, where the bulk of meat consumers are located, have been running their mills on a basis of minimum output till the general financial situation should become cleared and tariff revision be practically settled. Meantime their employees have been forced to live on wages for part time only, and the necessary economy in living expenses which followed has for over a year past caused a comparatively weak demand for beef from those densely populated portions of the United States which constitute the main outlet for cattle and beef raised in the West.

Here lies the main explanation of the cry for cheaper beef, the comparative neglect of the more costly finished steers, and the increased use of pork as the more economical kind of meat, during the last year or more.

Now, however, there is unmistakable evidence of a general change for the better. Farmers are prosperous and buying liberally of the necessities and comforts of life, together with machinery and supplies of all kinds, and paying their bills promptly when due. Mercantile trade is steadily growing throughout the country.

Stocks of manufactured goods of all kinds are becoming well sold out.
The tariff no longer gives great concern to manufacturers, for it is evident that Congress will make no radical changes in the schedules. Reports from the East indicate that manufacturing is being revived in nearly every line. Employees are more steadily at work and drawing larger weekly wages, and they are therefore buying more liberally of the necessities of life. All the leading practical minds, like James J. Hill, Secretary of the Treasury Franklin MacVeagh, E. H.
Harriman and many others, who have within the past week expressed themselves in no uncertain terms concerning the industrial, commercial and financial condition and prospects of the country, agree that the whole business situation is improving daily and that this nation is on the eve of a period of unprecedented prosperity based on a solid ground of safe and sane financing and actual achievements in material wealth production.

These gratifying conditions are being reflected in the Chicago live stock market. During the month of May a considerable substantial advance was made over April in values, notwithstanding an increase in total receipts over April and a year ago. The market reports show that the demand for cattle during May was a great improvement over April. There was a better outlet for all kinds of good killing steers and prices made some gain. Top for the month was $7.30 with many selling at $6.85 to $7.10.
Cows and heifers reached the high spot of the season. Calves sold better than usual at this time of year, showing a very strong demand. Not only were cattle prices better, but hogs and sheep brought high prices also. Top for hogs was $7.55, a figure that was paid several times. Packers hammered hard, but were not able to make much headway in the face of strong competition from eastern shippers. A large share of the May receipts of hogs sold at $7.25 to $7.40.
Sheep and lambs made new history.
Top for woolled Colorado lambs was $9.75, being 50c higher than ever paid before. Shorn lambs made the unprecedented price of $8.85. The best wethers sold at $7.00. With increased total receipts of live stock, these figures mean increased demand under growing prosperity.

Chicago, being the most accessible of any large city to both the producing west and the great manufacturing east, and the chief supply depot of the country for live stock and meats of all kinds, receives the most direct and greatest benefit from these improved and improving industrial conditions throughout the country, especially of the industrial east, and the constant competition between eastern and western buyers will continue to give shippers to this market the greatest advantage.

Socialist Speaking

Dr. W. C. Hills, State Secretary for the Socialists of Iowa, will speak on the streets of Denison tomorrow, Thursday evening. Socialism is a sort of social dynamite—good or evil may result according to the way in which the subject is handled. The socialist may set you to thinking, and while that operation is often painful, it is, nevertheless, good exercise.

C. E. Wheeler has accepted a partnership offer from the Woodbine Chronicle and leaves for that city right after the Fourth. Mr. Wheeler is a fine printer and we hate to see him leave the Review. We do not blame him, however, for trying to strike out for himself.
