

DEATH OF MRS. J. W. ROBERT

Mother of Mrs. E. W. Fellows Suddenly Dies From Heart Failure in Chicago

On last Thursday Prof. E. W. Fellows received the sad intelligence that Mrs. Joseph T. Robert, mother of Mrs. Fellows and for some time a resident of this city had died suddenly of heart failure at her home in Chicago. She had been out calling with her husband the night before and had remarked that she never felt better in her life. Early Thursday morning, however she complained that she could not get her breath and within ten minutes she was dead. Services were held at the home at 6114 Woodlawn Ave. and the remains were taken to the old family home at New London, Iowa, for interment.

Mrs. Robert, nee Miss Hattie Wilson was born in Springfield, Pa., Dec. 15, 1841. In 1856 she moved to Iowa with her father, Dr. N. L. Wilson, and the family located in New London. She was married to Mr. Joseph T. Robert Aug. 10, 1864, and to them five children were born, three who died in infancy, and two daughters, Mrs. E. W. Fellows of this city and Mrs. J. P. Clyde of Omaha who survive. Her life with Mr. Robert was ideal. He was ordained into the ministry and in all the charges which he held she was a foremost and ardent worker and leader in the congregation. She attended school in her younger days in a college in Burlington and she was a member of the faculty of Central College at Pella at the time when the honored Dean Currier was also one of the teachers.

In later years she was prominent in charitable work and for three years was the head of the Working Women's Home at Englewood. She as well as her distinguished husband was a student and a thinker but her high intellectual attainments never lessened her love or care for her home and for her children. Her daughters are now in Chicago preparing to break up the little home and Mr. Robert will spend the winter with his brother, the author of Robert's Rules of Order, at his home in Oswego, N. Y. Prof. Fellows was absent a portion of last week returning to Denison on Monday. Mrs. Robert had won a large circle of admiring friends in Denison all of whom will deeply sympathize with her loved ones in their affliction.

Rummage Sale.

Mr. Chas. Tabor is expected to return from Independence tomorrow.

The home of Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Bateson has been brightened by the birth of a tiny daughter. Rev. Bateson has made rapid advancement in his church work since leaving here. He was a broad-minded, highly educated Christian gentleman and Denison has never ceased to regret his resignation from the pulpit of the Baptist church of this city.

On Monday evening the Shakespeare Club entertained the children of the club together with a number of little friends outside at the club rooms. A number of games were played with Miss Bond and Miss Raine, mistresses of ceremonies. Mrs. Martin delighted the club and visitors with a laughing solo. Refreshments of nuts and apples and Hallow's 'en viands were served and the little folks had no end of fun.

Be Thankful—Always, Everywhere—that You have Munsing Underwear

Say—I wonder if many of you kids Have got a dad like mine, Who keeps a tellin' all the while Just how you'd ought to shine, At home, and school and everywhere Just 'cause you've got good underwear. Did you ever wear that Munsing stuff? It's mighty good—and that's no bluff.

Every year when it is fall, And it begins to snow, and all, My dad says, "Mother you go get His last year's suits—they're all right yet, And from the chest she gets them suits And is they good? You bet your boots, For all I've wear'd 'em last year thru, Them Munsings is as good as new.

And I'm as warm's my Teddy Bear, When I gets on my underwear, Ef you ain't got some,—ask your dad, He'll surely get some, less he's bad, And don't know stuff that's mighty nice. Ma says, "It's wonderful for the price." It's nice and warm and fine and good, And it's made—as good's a fellow could.

You ask what's best, and anywhere, They'll tell you—"Munsing Underwear." When bedtime comes, and stars begin To shine, and wind howls round like sin, Why then my Daddy calls to me And says, "Now Billy, let me see How your old Munsing is,—come here And see your Daddy, won't you dear?"

And when my night's buttoned close I piles up on my Daddy's knee,

And listen while he tells to me 'Bout when he was a little kid, And in the winter all he did Was just stay in the house all day. He never could go out and play, 'Cause his ma looked most everywhere, But there wasn't any Munsing-wear.

And I tells Pa, how I can go Out doors a playing in the snow, And never catch a single cold— (And I am only six years old.) It's all because I've got a pair Of good, warm, Munsing Underwear.

Then Daddy takes a little peep To see if I'm almost asleep, And says to ma: "Now fix the bed And warm a pillow for his head." And then he goes and lays me down And I goes sleepin' off so soon. He pulls the covers up to keep Me nice and warm, but 'fore I sleep, My dad gives me my bed-time kiss And whispers, "Bill you member this— Be thankful—always—everywhere That you have Munsing Underwear."

And—well, I guess that's all I'll say 'Bout underwear, but anyway, You jist remember what he said When he was pottin' me to bed— "Be thankful—always—everywhere That you have Munsing Underwear."

The poem printed above was entered in the Munsing Underwear Essay contest in competition with thousands of essays received from boys and girls in all parts of the United States, and was given first prize by the committee appointed to make the awards.

NUMEROUS OPERATIONS MADE

Denison Hospital Well Filled and Patients are Doing Well After Serious Operations

The Denison hospital is almost filled with patients this week and this is the way it has been for some time.

The little infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fleming is a bright little youngster and is doing well in spite of the fact that he is motherless and that his right leg was broken at birth. The little leg is just about well now however.

On Monday Mrs. John Blackman underwent a severe operation from which she is recovering as well as could be expected. This is the second operation Mrs. Blackman has been forced to undergo and her friends hope that her recovery this time may be complete.

On the same day a monster twenty-four pound tumor, a multilocular cyst as the physicians call it, was taken from Miss Pauline Wilroth whose home is near Vail. It seems incredible that on Saturday morning Miss Wilroth milked the cows and helped with the corn picking. The tumor was the largest ever removed from a person in this county we believe. Miss Wilroth is doing very well and is regaining strength rapidly.

On Tuesday Mrs. Jepsen of Schleswig underwent a critical operation from which she too is reported as mending speedily.

Mrs. Ben Wiese underwent an operation for appendicitis on Monday. Her case was a critical one but we are glad to note that the operation was successful and that she is recuperating finely.

HE WILL LOCATE IN SPOKANE

Thos. Addis Lally Becomes Associated With Firm of Prominent Prominent Lawyers in Western City.

There was sadness in the Lally home this morning when at an early hour, Thos. Addis, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. C. Lally took his departure for the city of Spokane, in the state of Washington, to begin the practice of the legal profession at that place.

Addis had been coming and going for several years during his college career, but it did not seem like severing "home ties" so much as when he started away to engage in his life work.

The family realizes that his coming home in the future will be less frequent than heretofore, and hence the heaviness of heart on the part of the members of the family.

It is conceded by everyone that Addis is well equipped for his work in the profession which he has adopted. His genial and happy disposition, his studious habits, his grit and ambition to succeed are all in his favor. His thorough academical training, which he received at Notre Dame, added to the legal education which he acquired during his attendance at Harvard Law School, with the splendid physique, which he possesses, are sufficient guarantees that he will be able to cope with the problems which will arise in the practice of his profession.

No young man ever went out from Denison with brighter prospects of success in his chosen profession than has Addis in his.

His many friends in Denison, and elsewhere, will be interested in his career and will expect him to "make good," as no doubt he will.

He will become associated at Spokane with Cannon & Lee, one of the leading legal firms of the west and will soon have the opportunity to try his hand in the actual trial of cases in court—a branch of the practice which he desires to make a specialty. The Review extends to young Mr. Lally its best wishes in his new venture.
