Dec. 12. Paul's Last Words. 2 Tim. 4:1-8; 16-18.

The lesson verses this week again call to mind the wonderful character of the Apostle Paul. It should be remembered that he wrote his second epistle to Timothy when a prisoner at Rome and about the days when he was brought before Nero the Roman despot, the second time. From a human point of view Paul had fallen in hard lines, and the situation for him was most desperate and discouraging. His sufferings did effect him to some extent as will be seen by those reading the entire epistle. It is pitiful to see how much he appreciated the sympathy and faithfulness of certain persons who stood fast for him in his troubles. Yes, Paul was human like the rest of us and that is why we can all love him the more. But look at the man from a spiritual point of view. Read the words of triumph in our lesson for today, which will ring out forever, in which he declares with confidence:

"I have fought the good fight. I have finished my course, I have kept the faith, henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love His appearing."

These are words which every christian loves to think about. Thousands of them, as they, like Paul, near the end of life, hope that it can be said of them truthfully that they fought the good fight, have kept the faith and deserve the reward. Let it be noted that Paul is not selfish in his confidence of the crown, for he says it is not for him only but for all who love Jesus and look for His appearing. That lets every true christian come in for the reward and it is the ambition of each to be worthy of it.

Note the language of the 18th verse in which Paul declares that God will deliver him from every evil work and preserve him unto His heavenly kingdom. Then he breaks forth in words of rejoicing and praise to God, and with this the chapter ends. It is probable that these were Paul's last written words.

The commands which he gives to Timothy are good for us. Among these are those to stand firm for the gospel of Jesus, to teach it in and out of season, to be long suffering, to endure afflictions. Paul calls on every christian to continue the work he so ably began of informing the world as to the life and death of Jesus Christ. With this lesson we end the talks as to the life of Paul. Do not let the brief extracts of his life history and writings called to mind in the lessons be all we know as to them. Read what he said in his letters to the Thesalonians, the Galatians, the Philippians and Corinthians. Paul was the greatest preacher of the bible religion except the blessed Jesus Himself, who has ever lived. Let us pattern after his life and in the end be able to claim with confidence the reward which he says is ready for all who love Jesus, and believe on him as their Saviour.

Reviewing in mind the life work of Jesus and the character of Paul, and his teachings and example, we are moved to end our talks on the lessons of the past year by the words found in the closing verses of Jude:

"Now unto Him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of His glory with exceeding joy. To the only wise God, our Saviour, be glory and majesty, domination and power both now and forever. Amen."
