The Noted Specialist of Des Moines, Iowa, Will Visit Denison at Hotel Denison, Thurs, Dec. 29,
 From 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.
Pay Fee When Cured

The doctor has had such wonderful success in the treatment of certain diseases that he feels fully warranted in making the following liberal offer. He will make a thorough examination and tell you just what can be done; what the treatment will cost and about how long it will take to effect a cure; you will not be required to pay any money, except for the medicine used until cured or thoroughly satisfied with the results.

Dr. Stockdale wants every person who suffers from a chronic disease—it makes no difference how bad their case is, or how long they have suffered, or who has treated them and pronounced them incurable, to call and consult him. He will make a thorough examination of their case, tell exactly what can be done, whether they are curable or not, how long it will require and all about it. He treats only chronic diseases. He has devoted twenty years of his life to the treatment of such diseases as Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Stomach Troubles, Liver Disease, Constipation, Rheumatism, Bladder Troubles, Diseases of the Kidneys, Chronic Catarrh in all its forms, Heart and Nerve Troubles—in fact, every variety of chronic diseases.

DR. STOCKDALE has a system of treatment which he believes is the best known for chronic diseases. He is able to cure many cases that have resisted other treatments—that are considered incurable. He wants it distinctly understood that he does not undertake any case that he thinks is incurable, and will tell the patient candidly when he has made the examination.

He has a special treatment for general weakness of men, which he would like to explain in person. He will examine every case that calls on him on the above date absolutely free of charge.

If for any reason you cannot call or visit him personally, write him for an examination blank at his home office. Address

The Better Treasure

By Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews

THERE were thick flurries at intervals as if the world were filled with a sudden storm of white feathers, but no weight of snow fell; the air had a sweet coldness as one inhaled it, yet was as mild as December twenty-fourth might be and not be pusillanimous—a well-behaved winter's day; there was not the ghost of a reason why the 1:05 local from Barchester should be two hours late.

The handful of passengers at Blenheim Junction wandered aimlessly, afraid to go away lest the belated train should make up time; now and again they drifted together and exchanged pessimistic surmises as to any one's chances of getting anywhere for Christmas. The shifting at the fields with resentful eyes. He came to a stop in front of a bench, and, dropping into it, drew out a letter. The thin envelope fell open as if read often before.

"Dear Carl," the writing ran, "I saw Peterson two days ago and he told me you were playing in bad luck. There's an opening out here in my business for a person who knows several languages, and you came to my mind. Would you care to take it? You would have to put up a thousand or two, and that, beyond traveling expenses, would be all the money necessary. I think you would like it. The business is going to be a big one, and we are making money now. There is plenty of work, but plenty of play also of the kind you're good at—tennis and polo and that sort. And there's the certainty of a fresh start in life with every chance of a solid career."

"I'm sure you know what a pleasure it would be to me, because it's always been a pleasure to be with you since human atoms might be classified as four bunches: the small-boy bunch, three women circling about a stolid and annoyed boy; the tobacco bunch, four unshaven men; the parson—black of clothes, pallid, yet strong of face—and his friend, a prosperous business man by the look of him; and the fourth division, a solitary individual. This last was young, and so strongly built that muscle was the first impression on looking at him. His listless movements were powerful, his face was cast in a virile mold, but it was strength and beauty gone wrong. The face was lined with the first days of Groton. Think it over and send me a line by New Year's so I may know during January. I repeat that I want you and that I hope you may care to come."

The letter was dated from Hong Kong.

"Care to come!" The man flapped the paper with a gesture of despair, and at the second a door creaked mournfully behind him, opened halfway, and the clergyman's clear-cut speech sounded through it.

"You don't mind the draft?" the voice asked. "It's close in here."

The man outside, the letter clasped against his knee, did not stir; he listened intently. The two within sat down without seeing him, back to back with him, the wall between. Every word they spoke came out to him distinctly.

"Why don't you put that bag on the floor? You hold on to it as if it were treasure," the pleasant, easy tones of the parson continued.

The big man's answer came after a second's pause. "It is treasure," he said briefly.

"Do you mean—Sidney, you're not driving home alone to-night with the men's wages?"

"No, not alone. Tomlinson meets me."

"Tomlinson! He's nothing. That is—he's a good coachman, of course, but the mildest ruffian could do up Tomlinson with one hand. A great protection!"

"I don't want protection," the slow voice half-laughed. "I can protect myself—and Tomlinson."

The man outside could all but see the clergyman's head shake disapprovingly.

"I don't like it. It's six miles and you'll have to go through the River Mills—the other road's impassable. There's a bad lot of roughs there just now. Pat O'Hara—who used to be my man-of-all-work—told me about it last week. He's working now on the Falls' bridge, and lives two miles this side. He says they're genuine desperadoes. It will be known that you're coming—it's always known. What possessed you to go back at night?"

"Delayed," the laconic tones answered. "A meeting of the board of directors."

"Well, delay a bit longer, and you may save time," the clergyman threw back. "Don't go home to-night, Sidney—it's really unsafe."

 At the January Term 1910.

Many So-Called Incurable Cases Soon Cured After Five to Twenty Doctors Failed.

Ray F. Allison

To demonstrate the remarkable curative powers of his Improved Special Treatments for heart disease, short breath, pain in side, oppression in chest, irregular pulse, palpitation, smothering spells, puffing of the ankles or droopy, Dr. Miles will send, free, to every afflicted person, $250 worth of treatment. The worst cases soon relieved.

ORIGINAL NOTICE

These treatments are the result of 30 years' research and remarkable success in treating the various ailments of the heart, stomach and nerves, which so often complicate each case. So astonishing are the results of his treatments in most cases, that he does not hesitate to offer all afflicted persons a two-pound specially prescribed Trial Treatment free.

To the defendants, John W. Ambros, Ammi W. Inmann, John H. Quilhot and the unknown claimants of the North half of the Northwest quarter and the North half of the Southeast quarter of the Northwest quarter, all in Section Twenty-five (25), Township Eighty-three (83), North Range Thirty-eight (38), West of the 5th P.M. in Crawford County, Iowa.

Certainly nothing could be more generous. Few physicians have such confidence in their treatments. There is no reason why all afflicted persons should not avail themselves of this liberal offer, as they may never have such an opportunity again. Delays are dangerous. No death comes more suddenly than that from heart disease.

You are hereby notified that their is now on file in the office of the clerk of the District Court of Iowa in and for Crawford County a petition in equity by the plaintiff, Ray F. Allison, praying said court for a decree quieting and establishing his title in and to the following described real estate, situated in Crawford County, Iowa, to-wit: the North half of the Northwest quarter (N1/2NW) and the North half of the Southeast quarter (N1/2SE) of the Northwest quarter, all in Section Twenty-five (25), Township Eighty-three (83), North Range Thirty-eight (38), West of the 5th P.M. in Crawford County, Iowa.

Inmann, and that said title passed by conveyance duly executed by one Ammi W. Inman, to the said George Inman; that the said title to all of the said real estate in controversy, passing through various means conveyances, finally vested in said Sarah Ellen Allison, who shortly prior to her death was said to have lived with one John H. Quilhot and that by reason thereof it was claimed that she was the wife of the said Quilhot, but that no marriage ceremony was ever performed between said parties and that they never sustained toward each other the relation of husband and wife; that by reason thereof the said John W. Ambros, Ammi W. Inmann and John H.
