A sad accident occurred at Ute early Monday morning in the home of C. E. Kroesen, the editor of the Ute newspaper. It seems that Mrs. Kroesen hadn't been feeling well, and thinking she could get a better night's rest by sleeping alone, her husband had slept down stairs with their two children. Mrs. Kroesen was up stairs. About five o'clock in the morning Mr. Kroesen was awakened. He discovered that the ceiling of the sitting room was afire and ready to fall in. He just had time to escape with the two little ones. It was impossible for him to get to his wife, who probably was dead when he awakened. Only a little of the furniture was saved. Mrs. Kroesen's body was found lying on the bed springs burned into an unrecognizable mass. The origin of the fire is not known. Mr. and Mrs. Kroesen are young people and have lived in Ute about six months. They had bought a home and were just getting nicely settled. It was a great shock to the community and Mr. Kroesen certainly has the sympathy of the Ute people.
