EDUCATED FLIES.

BAILY OF BRITT, Making a Study of Flies, Says They Can Be Educated.

Flies are nuisances, but are very sociable. A plebeian fly will kiss the foot of a beggar with impudence, and without washing its face will then kiss the lips of a queen without waiting for an introduction. There is no such thing as teaching a fly that there is such a thing as difference in rank—they just treat all alike.

If fleas and frogs and roosters can be educated, why can't flies? Did any one ever try it? I would like to own a bushel of large flies that were educated so I could control and guide them and have the privilege of turning them loose where I want to and tell them what to do.

When I saw a man come into town with a boy and turn the boy loose on the street and then go to a restaurant himself for his dinner, I'd just turn a fly loose and tell him to pop that man on the nose 300 times until he drove him out on the pavement and made him dance the devil's hornpipe.

When the man comes in town who has money to buy smoking tobacco and can't get his little girl the doll that she is crying for, I'd send a fly after him with orders to get in his ear and stay there an hour. I'd make him go some.

When the fellow starts on a high lonesome on Saturday night, spending the money he ought to save for the comfort of his family, I'd send more flies, and tell them to pop him until he went home, and see that he went clear there, too.

I'd take a lot of them to the lecture, and when the fellow began to whisper to his best girl I'd tell it to soak him one on the kisser, and I'd crack another one to the lecturer, too, if he tried to get off any old ones on the crowd.

I'd have a whole lot of them hit the fellow who cracks peanuts while the man is talking, too.

Then I would send some to pop the giggling girl on both ears, and lift the boy with the shrill whistle, and once in a while I would turn them loose in the mayor's office and on the school board, and have one tickle the ears of the teacher once in a while, and the preacher would get a nip occasionally, and then I would pray that no one else in town would get any educated flies, for fear they would bite me, too, some day.—Britt Tribune.

WORTH KNOWING.

Simple Remedy That Any One Can Prepare at Home.

Most people are more or less subject to coughs and colds. A simple remedy that will break up a cold quickly and cure any cough that is curable is made by mixing two ounces of Glycerine, a half ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compounded pure and eight ounces of pure Whisky. You can get these in any good drug store and easily mix them in a large bottle. The mixture is highly recommended by the Leach Chemical Co., of Cincinnati, who prepare the genuine Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure for dispensing.

BARNUM STRANDED.

A tumbler, getting forty dollars a week with the Barnum and Bailey circus, in the days of Barnum, took part in a flip-flop exercise over a lot of elephants.

One of the elephants was a comedian and did some funny stunts during the somersaulting. Usually this elephant did her funniest stunt just at the time the tumbler was doing his flip-flop. There always was applause for the elephant.

After a week or two on the road the show reached Sandusky. The tumbler went in to see Barnum.

"Well?" said Barnum.

"I'm Smith the Tumbler. I'm getting forty dollars a week. I am the hit of the show. From now on I'll get a hundred or I'll quit."

"Smith? A tumbler, eh?" said Barnum. "And the hit of my show? Let me see about that."

He took out his book, looked down the long list of performers and finally discovered the name of "Smith, tumbler; forty dollars a week."

"Smith," said Barnum, "I have a hundred tumblers and you'll not get any extra money. I think we can spare you if you are not satisfied."

"I tell you I'm the hit of the show. I'm getting all the applause. I guess I'll take that hundred a week, Mr. Barnum."

"You'll not get it. Get out," said Barnum.

The tumbler looked at the showman in astonishment. Then he said: "Oh, very well. I'll quit. This is where, Mr. P. T. Barnum, I cut out and leave the Barnum and Bailey show stranded flat in Sandusky, Ohio."—Saturday Evening Post.

GAME WARDEN TELLS PLANS.

State Game Warden Lincoln has reorganized the state fish and game department for the propagation of fish and game in the state. This fund was created by the hunter's license law passed by the last general assembly.

Warden Lincoln has appointed Dr. M. W. Wilson of Des Moines as assistant warden with headquarters in Des Moines and there are now two men devoting all their time to the work. The restocking of the rivers and lakes and the propagation of game birds will begin at once.

There has been an erroneous report circulated to the effect that the ninety odd thousand dollars which the hunter's license produced will revert back to the state treasury this coming July. "The only funds which do revert back to the state treasury are those that are provided for by appropriation and which are unexpended. The hunter's license is not an appropriation and my attorneys have declared that it is a perpetual fund," said Game Warden Lincoln.

I am now making arrangements for the introduction of Hungarian partridges and ring-tail pheasants in the state. I am negotiating for a lot of eggs of these birds which will be distributed among the game lovers of the entire state. Certain conditions will be exacted of those to whom they are sent and as they can be hatched by the ordinary domestic fowl, there will be a lot of this game for the hunter within a few years.

By distributing these in every locality every hunter will have an opportunity of hunting these game birds, which are considered the best that can be raised under artificial conditions.

The increase in the money which can be used in the support of our department makes possible the stocking of not only the lakes but the rivers and small streams with game fish. The game fish laws will be rigidly enforced and within a few years, with the additional restocking which will be filled with game fish. It is my intention to expend every cent of the money received through the hunter's tax for the purpose for which it was intended."—Hampton Recorder.

VOICE FROM THE PAST

Items Clipped From Review Files of 1874 Reminders of Old Times.

REVIEW OF JULY 22, 1874. Treasurer Cornwell is confined to his room at the Burk House by illness. We are greatly pleased to know that his sickness is not considered to be of a dangerous character.

That Broadway street man that had his gate broken down Sunday night says he wishes the young lady at his house would find a beau that didn't weigh so much.

JULY 29, 1894. Solomon Slater of East Boyer tallies once more—it's a girl.

It is asserted that if the comet hits Chicago 1,106 divorcees will be blasted in the bud.

BOUGHT—Cassaday has purchased the lot adjoining him on the east and contemplates having a building with a forty feet front some of the days. He bought of R. Heffelfinger.

The "other half" of Jess McAhren is in town in the shape of his brother. When you see one of them you think it is the other, and when you see the other you think it is Jess. We overheard a young lady remark that "she thought Jess McAhren was going to get married, because he had his good clothes on and his moustache blacked."

When she found out it wasn't him she took it all back, and said she "thought it was rather strange if Jess had really come to his senses, and thought of marrying."

ANOTHER BRICK BUILDING—Last Saturday Messrs. McHenry Bros. purchased of Mr. Thomas Cavanagh the east half of his lot next to the new bank lot. They will immediately commence the erection of another building in connection with the bank. This will be finished in the same style as the bank and will make another handsome addition to Denison. The lower floor will be devoted to mercantile purposes, and it will be good news to the majority of our readers to know that the upper floor will be fitted up for a town hall. Mr. Cavanagh is to have the west half of the lots on which these buildings will be erected. Altogether this is a first class improvement for Denison and of which our citizens may well be proud.

AUGUST 18, 1874.

The brick work on the court house vaults is completed. The entire job will be finished at an early date.

Charlie Cassaday has slung a new stoop, porch or piazza, whatever you may choose to call it, to his house, which is a decided improvement.

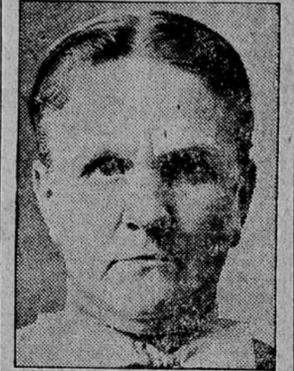

AT FORT DODGE—M. McHenry, H. C. Laub, J. D. Ainsworth of Denison and J. DeWolf of Vall are in attendance at the congressional convention which is in session today at Fort Dodge. The editor being present, the readers will please make allowances for the Review this week.

THE ELEVATORS—On Monday last the elevators at the depot in this place were in active operation. They are now ready to receive and attend to all grain that may be brought to this market. Both of them, though working on different principles, are pronounced to be in first class working order. Mr. C. B. Hartfield, an experienced grain buyer, is installed as the elevator man at Strohm's. The price paid for No. 2 wheat is 75 cents per bushel. Several parties estimate that the amount of wheat to be shipped from the various points in this county this year will be between 300,000 and 400,000 bushels.

HORSE THIEF—On last Monday a man offered a horse for sale upon the streets so cheap that the suspicions of our deputy sheriff were aroused. The horse was detained and the man "hit out." Yesterday a description of the man and horse was received and it was found that the suspicions were correct. He had stolen the horse and saddle at Exira, Audubon county, and the owner is expected here today for his property. It was too bad the fellow got away, but strong hopes are entertained of his speedy capture.

For Twenty-Six Years

Mrs. Lamaster, of Kentucky, Suffered with Internal Catarrh and was Finally Relieved by Peruna.

MRS. W. W. LAMASTER.

"I SUFFERED for twenty-six years with bladder and kidney trouble, and being advised to give Peruna a trial, I did so, and am thankful to say that eight bottles of Peruna and three bottles of Manalin entirely cured me of this trouble, and I am as well as ever."—Mrs. W. W. Lamaster, 8127 McAtee Ave., Louisville, Ky.

Catarrh Causes Kidney Disease.

Catarrh is a frequent cause of kidney disease. The pelvis of the kidney, as well as the tubules, is lined with mucous membrane, and is therefore subject to catarrhal congestion. Sometimes the catarrh is so slight as to cause no attention. Other times it leads up to very serious conditions.

Any remedy capable of mitigating the catarrh is a much more rational treatment than to give palliatives that only relieve the patient of one or more disagreeable symptoms.

It is claimed for Peruna that it is an internal systemic catarrh remedy, and reaches the catarrh in whatever organ it happens to be located.

"I was cured of a severe attack of inflammation of the bowels by taking Peruna. I am glad to recommend Peruna to any one."—Mrs. J. J. Eross, 553 Water St., San Antonio, Texas.

TROLLEY TALK.

At a meeting held in Climbing Hill last week by the stockholders and farmers interested in the proposed Sioux City & Eastern, committees were named to look after the securing of subscriptions and right of way. Some 250 farmers attended the meeting and they were unanimous in favor of building the line.

The line as now proposed will run out of Sioux City in a southeasterly direction, hugging the Missouri river bluffs as far as Camp Creek and then following the creek valley on an easy grade, a mile southeast of Bronson, then to Climbing Hill and Anthon, or a mile south of it—according to how Anthon warms to the proposition—Midway, Battle Creek, Ida Grove, Schleswig and Denison.

This route is subject to change if the engineering reports are against it, but it is used as a working basis. Luton, which was once proposed as a station on the line, and which has one of the heaviest stock subscribers, is cut out.—Ida County Pioneer.

Sunday School Column

Side Lights on Next Sunday's Lesson for Teachers and Pupils.

By CHAS. K. MEYERS.

June 5—Jesus walks on the sea.—Matt. 1; 22-36.

The lesson of today is closely connected with the one of last Sunday. The record of Jesus walking on the sea to the relief of His disciples, who were battling for hours amidst angry waves, is found not only in Matthew, but in Mark 6 and John 6. From the record in John we see that after Jesus had fed the multitude those who had eaten were ready to make Him their earthly king, and were ready to do this by force. He therefore departed from that place to a mountain to be alone, and that He could be alone, indeed, he told or constrained the disciples to take boat and cross to the other side of the Sea of Galilee. Then He was alone. We have no record of what then took place, but all feel sure it was a time of prayer and communion with God. It will be remembered that Jesus said the right way to pray was to pray in secret. The offer to make Him an earthly king would have been a temptation to a worldly minded person. The man or woman who has a clear conscience prizes highly "being alone" for communion with themselves and their God.

Leaving the blessed scene of the dear Saviour alone in prayer, let us call to mind the disciples who had started to row themselves across the sea. It was far from peace and contentment with them. The winds were contrary, the waves tossed the boat fiercely. They did not reach the land.

The record in Mark says, "Jesus saw them rowing." Then He went to their relief. There is a beautiful song, the words of which say: "I know my Saviour cares." The words could have been based on the incident of the storm on Galilee which we are studying about. In another place Jesus gives the promise: "I will not leave you comfortless. I will come unto you." How precious is this saying to the Christian. Jesus saw the disciples' need and went to them. In like manner He will come to us now. We have but to ask for His spirit if we do not feel we have it.

Let us now note the remarkable words which Jesus used in making His presence known. He said: "Be of good cheer, it is I; be not afraid." Most of us can remember when we were in the dark and a little afraid, and that father or mother called out, "I am here." Then all trouble was over, and with confidence we reached out our hand, or proceeded on our way. Jesus is still saying to us, His disciples and believers: "Be of good cheer; be not afraid." He makes good the promise not to leave us comfortless. O, the precious, loving Saviour and Shepherd that He is!

The impulsive Peter is again in evidence. Jesus came to the relief of the storm tossed ones, walking on the water. Peter asked permission to advance to meet his Lord. The answer came back, "Come." Over the boat's side he went and he began to walk, but then came the fatal looking about, the fear of sinking, the loss of faith. He began to sink and called for aid. Promptly came the hand of the Saviour and the gentle rebuke: "Oh, thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?" The failure of Peter to walk finds example in the experience of Christian people. We look now at the case of Peter and wonder at his lack of faith. We too have promises from God, but fail to get benefit because we have not the faith to launch out boldly on the promises given to us. Let us not condemn Peter until we ourselves have the faith and the confidence and act on them as certain to be fulfilled as that we expect the sun to descend to grasp the promises of the rise the coming morning. Jesus said Peter failed through lack of faith. Let us strive to have no failures in our lives through lack of faith in the promises of the Bible.

So we have learned how Jesus was alone in prayer, of His caring for His disciples and going to their rescue with most loving words, and of the lack of faith in Peter. May these thoughts make an impress on each reader.

Honorable James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, submitted an interview in which he gave out true republican doctrine, pointing out to the farmers of Iowa the benefits they derived from the protective policy of the republican party and defending the Payne tariff law passed at the special session of congress a year ago, against assaults of our United States senators. Mr. Wilson has had a long experience in public life, and perhaps is more familiar with the conditions of trade and what affects the welfare of the farmers than any other man in the country. He is a thorough believer in the republican party, in its policies, and the administration of President Taft. We commend the interview, which is to be found in another part of this paper, to a careful perusal by the readers of the Review.
