Side Lights on Next Sunday's Lesson for Teachers and Pupils

By CHAS. K. MEYERS

Nov. 6. The Last Supper.—Matt. 26, 17-30.

We have to consider this week one of the most notable events in the life of Jesus the Christ, when bodily present on the earth. All four of the gospels relate to the last supper, and Paul in I Cor. II, gives still further details, which had been revealed to him. John relates in the thirteenth to seventeenth chapters; Mark in the fourteenth, and Luke in the twenty-second.

The special occasion of the gathering of Jesus and His disciples at the time in question was to follow the custom of all good Jews in celebrating the Passover feast. The mention of the Passover brings to mind those eventful days in the history of the Jews, when they were in captivity in Egypt, and the last night they spent in that land. The angel of death was to pass over the people dwelling in Egypt, and slay the first born in every household. The only exception would be the homes where the believing Jews sprinkled the blood of a lamb on the outside at the door; and inside were sitting about a simple meal ready to start out of the land, on notice from Moses, speaking for God. From that time on faithful Jews observed yearly the anniversary of eating that simple meal. As such, Jesus and His disciples met in an upper room of a house in Jerusalem. The lesson verses tell how Jesus sent disciples into the city and meeting and following a man bearing a pitcher of water, found the place where the Passover was to be celebrated.

When eating the Passover, Jesus and the disciples observed all the customs of the Jews. As they ate, there occurred the conversation in which Jesus announced that one present was to betray Him, and later pointed out Judas as the man. The statement that it were good for the man who betrayed Him, to have never been born, was a fearful setting forth as to the fate of Judas. It is generally believed that before Jesus instituted the new sacrament of the Lord's Supper, Judas had gone out. It was at this time that Jesus took upon Himself the duty of a servant and washed the feet of His disciples, teaching them humility, and that no service was demeaning if done through love. It was while sitting about the table that Jesus gave the remarkable talks contained only in John's gospel and found in the 14-18th chapters. As all may remember, the 14th begins, "Let not your hearts be troubled." I can but urge every reader to be familiar with these particular chapters as they are most precious in promises which belong to all.

The record says that Jesus took some of the bread before Him and breaking it in pieces gave a portion to each disciple, announcing that it was His body, and that taking a cup filled with the liquid used for drink, He directed all to take some, saying it was His blood. In I Cor. II, it is added, Jesus commanded that the custom of eating and drinking His body and blood be kept until the time when He shall come again to earth.

Books upon books have been written as to this last supper, and fierce controversies have raged and still divide certain churches as to whether at the present time a miracle is enacted when the blessed sacrament is administered and the bread becomes in truth the very body of Jesus. Therefore it is useless in this paragraph to explain all as to this remarkable supper. I do believe, however, that it is the duty of every christian at intervals to attend the place where this sacrament is administered and partake of it. It is a most precious privilege to obey the command to observe the supper, and show forth one's faith in the death and final coming to the earth again of Jesus the blessed Son of God. If a beloved mother or father had told anyone of us to do a in truth the very body of Jesus. There remembrance of them," we would not fail to do so. In fact, it would be a joy to comply with the loved one's request. As to fitness, that must be left to the conscience of each person guided by the best light at his command.

It is to be hoped that this lesson will have more than ordinary thought and be the means of making very many see their duty as to partaking of the remembrance supper, and to see that to do this worthily requires a life based on the commands of Jesus, and further things set forth by the great apostle Paul.

"I am pleased to recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as the best thing I know of and safest remedy for coughs, colds and bronchial trouble," writes Mrs. L. B. Arnold, of Denver, Colo. "We have used it repeatedly and it has never failed to give relief." For sale by all dealers.

"Lame Leg Well"

"I wish to say that I have used Sloan's Liniment on a lame leg that has given me much trouble for six months. It was so bad that I couldn't walk sometimes for a week. I tried doctors' medicine and had a rubber bandage for my leg, and bought everything that I heard of, but they all did me no good, until at last I was persuaded to try Sloan's Liniment. The first application helped it, and in two weeks my leg was well."—A. L. HUNTER, of Hunter, Ala.

Frank Gotch Will Resign His Title.

Is Frank Gotch going to retire? Has he retired? Will he hand his title to the winner of the Ordeman-Culture match soon to be staged in Minneapolis? Will Zbysko, Hackenschmidt and the giant East Indian fight it out for supremacy after downing Cutler or Ordeman? These are the questions that are agitating the athletic world just now. Meanwhile, the dailies say that Champion Gotch is so well pleased with his farm and its produce that he refuses absolutely to leave the valley of the Des Moines. Perhaps so, perhaps not. The Republican can give the sporting gentry a hunch on the matter that they will do well to tuck away in their memory for future reference or pin in their hat bands for instant use. The farm of Frank Gotch lies about four miles down the river valley. There is a foot path that connects the two. This path was made by the feet of a mighty athlete. The footprints show that the traveler goes at a strong clip. He usually has grippers in his hands and runs with his head well up. As the talk of Hackenschmidt et al grows stronger, the path is better worn. We are willing to lay a little coin at odds that these foreign champs who are looking for a corn-fed wrestler who is fat and lazy, will get an awful jar.—Humboldt Republican.

Graves Here.

A. D. Graves came from Denver Friday evening to see what could be done toward reaching a settlement and selling or opening the opera house block. He is not talking re-opening very much as he is very anxious to sell out his interests here, and is offering them at a figure that will be made to look attractive to someone. The move now is to organize a company for its purchase. The first shot out of the box a Charter Oak man offered to put a thousand dollars into the new company and then rent the building. We do not think there is much doubt of the company being formed and the transfer made. This will open the opera house again. As about half of the people of the town are boosting the move and doing all they can to push it along, we cannot see any reason why it will not be made. Mr. Graves spent Saturday here and then went to Dow City to spend the Sabbath with old friends and relatives there. He returned Monday afternoon. He expects to be here all this week.—Charter Oak Times.

There is little danger from a cold or from an attack of the grip except when followed by pneumonia, and this never happens when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. This remedy has won its great reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cures of colds and grip and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. For sale by all dealers.

"Our English visitors are kindly requested to address the waiters and servants in English, as their French is not generally understood."

ADVERTISING REDUCES PRICE.

Merchant Who Spends Money for Publicity Cannot Afford to Go Back on His Word.

That the millions spent yearly in advertising is in the end a saving to the customer, that only fogies continue to think they pay more for advertised commodities and that the millions spent in this way is an insurance against fraud were some of the statements of Arthur Brisbane at a luncheon given by the Chicago Advertising association.

"A man who advertises a business properly is a distributor and helps to economize for the consumer," he said. "If a man manufactures a million articles and advertises them he can sell them cheaper than the man who makes but a thousand and does not advertise."

"The old-fashioned think they pay more for the advertised article. They pay less and are protected. The man who spends $10,000,000 in advertising is building a reputation the same as if he bought bricks and built a building. He can no more afford to be false to his word and lose that reputation than he could afford to set fire to his plant."

"The advertiser ought to say: 'I have spent so much money to buy a reputation and just that much is behind every statement I make.'

"Writing a successful advertisement is the most difficult thing in the business of writing. You can write an interesting story about noses and every man will feel of his nose and look in a glass. It concerns something which is his. But in writing an advertisement you must first overcome his reluctance to read it."

"Newspaper advertising is the quickest and surest way of building a reputation. It pounds at the consumer every day. The trouble with the average man is that he will advertise a heater only when it is cold. He should pick the hottest day of the summer and say: 'It is hot as the devil today. Next winter will be just as cold.' Then when winter comes the consumer is familiar with that particular heater."

"I do not believe there is any other medicine so good for whooping cough as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. Francis Turpin, Junction City, Ore. This remedy is also unsurpassed for colds and croup. For sale by all dealers.

How She Earned It.

"Cultivate a little more sunshine in your disposition, my dear," said Mr. Dubley. "Happiness and success in life depend upon the quantity of rays one emits."

"Very well, John," replied Mrs. Dubley. "I'll do my best, but I think I'd be happier and more successful into the bargain if you would emit a ten-dollar raise in my allowance."

A cheerful man is a pessimist's idea of a fool.
