HON. H. C. LAUB DIES TUESDAY

Interested in stores in Carrollton (now Carroll), in West Side, in Smithland, in Galland's Grove, Shelby county, in Harlan, in Dunlap, at Butler's Mill, Harrison county, in Correctionville and in St. Johns, Harrison county, near the present site of Missouri Valley. During his life time Mr. Laub was owner, in whole or in part, of thirty-five different mercantile establishments.

Merchandising was but one side of this busy man's career. During these pioneer years he was sheriff of Crawford county. He summoned the first jury that ever sat in a Crawford county court, and he used to tell with glee that he had to walk clear to the south edge of the county to serve some of the summons. He was the first county surveyor, resigning this job in favor of our beloved "Uncle Morris" McHenry. He was county superintendent of schools for a period of twelve years. But this was not all. He was a contractor and builder. He built the first ovens and burned the first brick made in Denison. He built the first school house in our city, the building now used by the Lutheran parochial school. If we mistake not he was the contractor who built the court house and the "west brick" school. When the Northwestern commenced to push its line through to the westward, H. C. Laub was the man who contracted to haul the poles and erect the first telegraph line that connected Boone and Council Bluffs. W. A. McHenry was our first telegraph operator.

Mr. Laub was the first to show his faith in Denison by the erection of something more than a frame shanty for a business house. The old stone and cement structure on Main street, now torn down, was the first substantial store building in the city and this was later succeeded by the "Laub Block," built in 1871, which, together with the McHenry block, was the pride of Denison for many years. He was the contractor who built our present city hall, he erected the McKim hall, he extended the Laub block on Broadway. In all he built more than forty residences and he was at one time the largest property owner in Denison. He was the best of landlords, never oppressive and always anxious to keep his buildings in the best of repair. He invented a car-coupling device, which, while not a financial success, showed great inventive genius, and well illustrated the many-sided effectiveness of the man. Later in life he met with some financial reverses, but these did not effect him greatly save as they curtailed his ability to give. Mr. Laub was the most cheerful giver we have ever known. It was almost a passion with him. He wanted to give; it was a pleasure not a task. No man had to urge him to do his duty, he always did it and a little more. He retained large interests to the end of his life, however, and we are glad that he was able to spend his last days in comfort, in a beautiful home, surrounded by loved ones and friends and books and all the things that make life worth the living.

Three years before coming to Iowa Mr. Laub was married to Miss Lydia Baer. They were married in Frederick, Maryland, February 7, 1848. We are told that Mr. Laub met his bride-to-be when, as a lad of sixteen, he ran away from the Pennsylvania farm to make a fortune for himself. Mrs. Laub shared with her husband all the trials and hardships of the pioneers. Their home in Denison was the center of social activity and both were noted for their hospitality. Mrs. Laub was a great force for good in the community and her sweet and lovable character will never be forgotten by those who knew her. To Mr. and Mrs. Laub eight children were born, all of whom, save Lydia Belle, who died in her twentieth year, and Mrs. J. B. Romans, whose tragic death occurred a number of years ago, survive their parents.

The living children are William H., our present mayor; Mrs. Alice M. Ainsworth and Mrs. Carl F. Kuehne, of Denison; Mrs. W. T. Perkins, of Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. G. F. Bartholomew, of Evanston, Ill., and Ely C., of Sioux City, Iowa. Mrs. Lydia Baer Laub died in 1896, being seventy-six years of age.

On the seventh of February, 1898 Mr. Laub was united in matrimony with Miss Mary E. Snouffer, daughter of Henry and Sarah (Baer) Snouffer. To them one son, Henry Clay, who was the delight of his father's declining years, was born. Mrs. Laub has proven herself a loving, tender and affectionate wife. She devoted herself to her husband's welfare and it was her highest ambition to minister to his comfort and to his needs. It will be her consolation in this hour that she made his last years happy ones.

Politically Mr. Laub was a dyed-in-the-wool republican. Before the birth of the republican party he was a whig and he was one of the many who turned eagerly to the new party of liberty and union. He was an active partisan throughout his life. He rarely if ever missed a vote, and he was honored by his party in many ways. Not only was he elected to the county offices which we have enumerated, but he was, in 1880, elected as representative of Crawford county in the Iowa legislature and he served two terms with much credit. He was a delegate to many state and district conventions, and it was at one of these that he fell in love with a young man named Dolliver. Mr. Laub was one of the sponsors of Dolliver during the early days of his brilliant career, and in fact his first nomination to congress was largely due to Mr. Laub's efforts.

Mr. Laub was a Methodist for seventy-six years. He was converted at the age of ten and all the vicissitudes of life never caused him to falter in the faith. He was prominent in the work of the church, both locally and throughout the state and his name is known wherever Methodism has a foothold in Iowa. His hearty and heartfelt "Amen" has brought encouragement and cheer to many a Methodist clergyman, and his name has appeared first and foremost on many a subscription for the church and for its missions.

It is hard to sum up such a life as this. A man who does so many things makes mistakes and makes enemies, but he also makes successes and makes friends. Such a positive, active, aggressive force as Mr. Laub could not avoid the one or the other, but the balance of life is very greatly in his favor. He left an indelible impress upon a large community. His acts of charity were manifold. His accomplishments were large. He was effective, dynamic, controlling, powerful. He succeeded in more different fields of activity than any other man western Iowa has known. He was lovable. He made warm friends and held them throughout life. He was kindly and considerate. He was a good judge of human nature and he liked to speak kindly of his fellows. Not long ago it was the writer's privilege to interview him as to the early history of the county and it was a real pleasure to find how eager he was to give credit to others and to tell of their achievements rather than his own.

A few years ago Mr. Laub was the victim of an accident which resulted in a broken hip and which compelled him to use crutches for the remainder of his life. This accident would have proven fatal to many men of his age, to most men it would at least have spelled chronic invalidism and have ended all activities, but Mr. Laub's indomitable will enabled him to surmount all difficulties and to overcome all inconveniences. In spite of his infirmity he was a regular church attendant and almost to the last his was a familiar figure on our streets as he went about attending to his business affairs.

Mr. Laub was a man of commanding presence. He was tall, big boned, well built, straight as an Indian, lithe, quick motioned, strong. His features showed lines of strength and character, his eye was keen and piercing, but with quick flashes of humor and kindness. He went clean shaven all through his life and it was partially owing to this fact that so little change was noticed in him from time to time. In fact he looked what he was, a sturdy, active, virile, capable, kind hearted man.

With the death of Mr. Laub we lose one of the three or four who remained to us who were grown men when Crawford county had its birth and who participated in all the hardships and endeavors of the pioneers. Another link in the chain that binds us to the past is broken, another of the great men of our community is gone. We can but unite with those he loved in a common sorrow at his departure and a common joy in the heritage of his splendid, well-spent life.

The funeral services will be held at the Methodist Episcopal church on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. J. H. Senseney officiating. It is probable that the business houses of Denison will be closed during the services and it is certain that there will be a very great outpouring of people from every part of the county to pay a last tribute of respect and affection to this great pioneer citizen.

The football team has begun practice again for the game Thanksgiving. The students decided to work hard and have a vacation on Friday after Thanksgiving, so this year there will be no school on Friday.

Nearly all of the students will go to their homes for the Thanksgiving recess, either before or after the football game.

OBITUARY.

On Sunday, Nov. 20th, occurred the death of Mrs. Thomas Malone, at her home in Dow City, the immediate cause of her death being due to Bright's disease. Mrs. Malone has been afflicted with this disease for more than a year and since April has been confined to her home, death coming as a relief from her long suffering.

Margaret Emily Potter was born at Newcomer-Town, Tuscarawas Co., Ohio, June 20th., 1843, being at the time of her death a little over sixty-seven years of age.

She was married to Thomas Malone, February, 21st., 1861. To this union eleven children were born, eight sons and three daughters, all of whom survive to mourn her death.

Mr. and Mrs. Malone with their children came to Iowa in 1881 and to Crawford county in 1884. Her husband departed from this life some fifteen years ago and since his death Mrs. Malone has made her home at Dow City. Mrs. Malone has been a member of the Baptist church for a number of years and bore her severe suffering with christian fortitude and uncomplaining patience. The funeral services were held at the Baptist church in Dow City on Tuesday, the Rev. J. J. W. Place officiating. She was laid to rest in Oakland Cemetery in this city by the side of her husband. The sympathy of a large circle of friends is extended to the bereaved relatives, and especially to the children.

On Monday morning at ten thirty o'clock occurred the death of Mrs. Henry Frahm at her home near Coon Grove. Mrs. Frahm had been ailing for some time prior to her death, being treated for a while at the Denison hospital, from which place she was removed to her home shortly before her death. The deceased was born June 15, 1870, in Switzerland, and came from there to the United States with her parents during her childhood. She was married April 20, 1890, to Henry Frahm, and as a result of the union six children were born, five of whom, with the husband, survive her. The funeral was held this, Wednesday, afternoon, after which the body was taken to Oakland cemetery for burial. Mrs. Frahm had a large circle of relatives and friends who mourn her loss. The Review extends its sympathy to the bereaved husband and children.

On Monday, November 21, 1910, occurred the death of John Baber, Sr., at Dow City, the immediate cause of his death being catarrhal pneumonia. The end came peacefully while he was sitting in his chair surrounded by his children. The deceased was born in Smith county, West Virginia, January 10, 1820, being ninety years, ten months and one day old at the time of his death. He was married to Annie Rigby in 1842, and as a result of this union six children were born, five of whom survive him. Several years after the death of his first wife he was married to Anna Spence. Five children were born to them, two of whom survive to mourn the loss of a kind father. The mother of these children died March 12, 1886, and since that time he has made his home with his children and grand children. He took great pride in the fact that he had forty-four grand children and sixty-six great-grand children.

Mr. Baber was one of the earliest settlers of the county, his residence here being continuous since the Civil war, in which he served in the confederate army. He has always been an honest and industrious man and will be greatly missed. The funeral services were held in the Latter Day Saints church and were conducted by Elder Charles Hunt, of Deloit, who baptized Mr. Baber into this church about fifteen years ago. The body was laid to rest in the Dow City cemetery. The Review extends its sympathy to the bereaved ones.

IT GIVES US PLEASURE TO ANNOUNCE OUR SPECIAL DISPLAY OF HOLIDAY JEWELRY.

You and your friends are respectfully invited to call at our store and see the many beautiful gems and jewels that we have secured for the holiday trade.

Perhaps no gift is ever appreciated by one's friends so much as tasteful jewelry or rare gems. Jewelry always has been and always will be the favorite token of friendship.

Let us suggest to our friends and patrons that they do their Xmas buying as early as possible. Early buyers always find a wider range of goods from which to choose, they get better attention and are spared the overwhelming rush that characterizes the last days before Xmas.

Come and pay our store a visit, if only a short one; you are welcome here, and will be made to feel so.

We are anxious for you to see our display while the lines of goods are full and complete.
