July 16.—Manasseh's Wickedness and Repentance.—2 Chron. 33, 1-20.

"Then Manasseh knew that the Lord He was God." This is the very last sentence of the lesson today, but it stands out as the leading thought for our consideration.

We are studying today about the Kingdom of Judah whose capital was at Jerusalem. The last king we heard of was Hezekiah, who was a good ruler, and brought about the observance of the Passover, and who was so energetic in upholding the true religion of Jehovah.

Now this was not done without repeated warnings from God. The bible says "The Lord spake to Manasseh and his people, but they would not hearken." None will be surprised at what then happened, for there was but one thing to be done to such a king, such a people then, and such a people now. Severe punishment came, in the form of the capture of the city of Jerusalem by the king of Assyria.

Blessed indeed are those who do not have to go through sin, degradation, shame, rebellion against the bible religion to find that the "Lord is God." The king in question found this out before death, and was allowed to repent and try his hand at undoing the great evil he had done.

Towering over all history both bible and secular can be read in words of living light, "The Lord He is God." We feel sure we see this in the history of our country, in the founding of the government on principles based on the liberty of conscience taught in the bible religion; in the preservation of our national life, in the terrible civil war which scourged the South for the atrocities of slavery and the North for allowing the curse to exist through the years since it was recognized in the constitution.

What comes closest to us, however, is the fact that each reader must face the question of whether he or she is ready to shape their lives along the good and righteous lines of acknowledging the right of God to rule in their hearts, or whether the opposite course is to be taken, and God defied, until crushing defeats, unhappiness, smiting of conscience compel the record to be written, "Then John, Mary, father, mother, knew that the Lord, He was God." It is needless to say that in the light of experience the only right way is to love God at all times.

The history of Manasseh shows the mercy of God, in that he was given a chance to repent, and his repentance accepted. The bible states as to the king that he did his best to undo the wrong he had done. He commanded the people to serve God, broke down the idols he had put up. While this did much good, the record says, "Nevertheless, the people did sacrifice in the high places."

So in our day, one cannot undo in a few years the evil example of a life time in sin. The right thing is to repent and do the best possible, but how much better to have a clean record all the time. So although our lesson is about a king living over 600 years before Christ was born, his history makes for us one of the strongest moral lessons of the bible. May we profit by it.

BUCK GROVE ITEMS.

Quite a number of our young people and others went to various places to celebrate the glorious fourth, but none had a better time than the "stay at homes," who got together and had a picnic. All present agree that it was one of the pleasantest times ever enjoyed. Plenty of good things to eat for dinner and supper. Lots of ice cream and lemonade and a good time generally. Each one seemed bent on a good time and all had it. Young and old played games even by moonlight, and all went to their homes really rested and refreshed, notwithstanding it was one of our warmest days. It was truly a safe and sane fourth.

King and Queen of Spain Are Worried About Son's Health

BEING king and queen does not mean happiness or the absence of worries and troubles. For instance, the king and queen of Spain are just now greatly concerned about the health of their younger son, Prince Jaime, born July 22, 1908. Though nearly three years old, the boy has never spoken, and there have been rumors that he is a deaf mute. He has been fragile since his birth, and it has taken great care to keep him alive. His father, the king, is not strong. Indeed, the statement that he has tuberculosis has recently been published, and it is certain that the youthful monarch—he is only twenty-five years old—has been compelled to take the best of care of himself, and he spends as much time out of doors as he can. Prince Jaime is to be taken to Switzerland this summer, where it is said that an operation will be performed in hopes of removing the difficulty with his speech. Naturally the mother, who is a daughter of Princess Henry of Battenburg, youngest sister of King Edward VII, of England, is worried, as any mother would be under the circumstances. The picture above shows the unfortunate young scion of royalty and his brother, Alfonso, prince of the Asturias, heir to the throne. They have one sister, Princess Beatrice, born July 21, 1909.
