The Fort Dodge papers tell of an "actress" who came to Fort Dodge recently and put up a story of hard luck in connection with the disbanding of her company. She wanted to sell her lynx furs for enough to go home on, and, according to the story, she succeeded well. Twenty-five sets of furs were the total number purchased from her by unsuspecting and accommodating people, but a "diagnosis" of the goods showed them to be of jack rabbit quality, of lynx coloring.
