DAKOTALAND.

(Tune "My Maryland.") Dakotaland is where I dwell, Dakotaland, Dakotaland. No other land I love so well, Dakotaland, Dakotaland. I love each hill, each vale, each dell, Long may she stand and prosper well, Long may we live her fame to tell, Dakotaland, Dakotaland.

Our verdant hills and valleys wide, Dakotaland, Dakotaland. Broad fields of grain, Dakota's pride, Dakotaland, Dakotaland. Her rivers sparkle as they glide, The sun reflection in their tide, And cattle grazing on each side, Dakotaland, Dakotaland.

O, many a city here is seen, Dakotaland, Dakotaland. While fields and meadows intervene, Dakotaland, Dakotaland. Here man a homestead lies serene, The farmer's wife, she reigns a queen, And wild flowers deck the parishes green, Dakotaland, Dakotaland.

Long may the glorious sunlight shine, Dakotaland, Dakotaland. O'er this fair land, this land sublime, Dakotaland, Dakotaland. Long may her youths and maidens find A home within this land divine, And may God bless this land of mine, Dakotaland, Dakotaland.

If there is one man in the country whose support of progressive principles is above suspicion, it is Robert M. LaFollette, of Wisconsin. His advocacy of progressive ideas has been so consistent and permanent that no one now questions his sincerity and his motive. He has been a leader in the field for many years, and knows, perhaps, better than any other person, what has been accomplished and how it has been done. As an expert witness from the progressive standpoint, he must be considered the best qualified witness to give an opinion and when he speaks his opinion is entitled to the profound respect of all who are seeking light upon the subject. He was in close touch with the Roosevelt administration, up until its close, and if any one knows where Roosevelt stood during all the time he was president and what relation he sustained with the progressive cause, Senator LaFollette knows. If the analysis Senator LaFollette makes of Roosevelt's relation with progressivism is true, then it must be conceded that the progressive republicans of the country have abandoned all they were accomplishing for progressivism and have taken up with a hopeless cause and are being grievously misled. This is what Senator LaFollette says in part:

"The Roosevelt administration came to a close on March 4, 1909, without leaving to its credit a definite progressive national movement with a clearly definite body of issues. On the 24th of March, 1909, Roosevelt sailed to Africa. He was absent from the country until June, 1910. In that period, under the administration of President Taft, the progressive republican movement made greater headway than during the entire Roosevelt administration. This was largely due to the fact that Taft's course was the more direct, Roosevelt's the more devious. Openly denouncing trusts and combinations Roosevelt made concessions and compromises which tremendously strengthened these special interests. Thus Roosevelt smeared the issue, but caught the imagination of the younger men of the country by his dash and mock heroics. Taft cooperated with Cannon and Aldrich on legislation. Roosevelt cooperated with Aldrich and Cannon on legislation. Neither president took issue with the reactionary bosses of the senate upon any legislation of national importance. Taft's talk was generally in line with his legislative policy. Roosevelt's talk was generally at right angles to his legislative policy. Taft's messages were the more reactionary; Roosevelt's the more 'progressive.' But adhering to his conception of a 'square deal,' his strongest declarations in the public interest were invariably offset with something comforting for privilege; every phase denouncing 'bad' trust

CARL F. KUEHNLE AT MUSCATINE

Delivers Principal Address at German Day Celebration in Muscatine on October 6th.

MOST STIRRING EVENT OF DAY.

Relates the Many Struggles Incident to the Establishing of a German Colony in America.

The "Muscatine Journal" gives an interesting account of the German Day Exercises at Muscatine on October 6. Among the speakers were Congressman I. S. Pepper of the Second Iowa District and Mr. Carl F. Kuehnle, of Denison. We quote from the Journal as follows: "Hon. Carl F. Kuehnle, banker, lawyer, educator, a self-made man and one of the most prominent German-Americans in Iowa, delivered an address that was one of the most stirring of an afternoon replete with splendid addresses. His father was an exile as a result of the Revolution of 1848. Mr. Kuehnle related the struggles incident to the establishing of a German colony in this country. October 6th is the anniversary of the landing of the first German emigrants in America. October 6, 1883, upon the 200th anniversary of the landing of the first German emigrants, the first public celebration of this momentous occasion was appropriately celebrated at Philadelphia and German day was then and there formally christened. It has annually been celebrated throughout America since that by the Germans. This day is the anniversary of an event of significant importance to the United States. Had the emigrations continued in as small numbers only as during the period from 1883 to 1820, and even later, the day would not be as important from an American standpoint as it is at present. But when we take into consideration the fact that between 1820 and 1880 over 3,000,000 of Germans have left their fatherland and come to the United States and that of our total population at least 10,000,000 are either German born or are descendants of German emigrants, it will readily be conceded that this vast number of German born, German speaking and German feeling people have exerted a powerful influence upon American life, American law, American customs and American thought, and that to a certain extent, they have Germanized America. That is to say, they have left the impress of Germany upon America.

It is but right and proper that we here and now express our condemnation of all such who fail to see the manliness and character of the foreigner but observe and criticize only his weaknesses and foibles. No one pretends that the German character is perfect, nor that Germany stands pre-eminently historically above other nations, yet it should be remembered that the art of printing, the manufacture of gunpowder, the clock, the organ, the windmill, the telescope, the most finished and elaborate exploits in wood and metal, earthenware, glass, chemistry, engineering and lithography are the result of German invention, genius and achievement.

The queen of Spain has a solid silver telephone, but its line becomes busy as readily as those of the plain sort.
