

UNIQUE SOCIAL AFFAIR AT ARION

MOCK WEDDING TAKES PLACE
Young Ladies Costumed to Represent the Young Men and Make Best of Leap Year Season.

On Monday evening, February 14th, a jolly crowd of twenty young ladies met at the Arion hall for a Valentine party in honor of Miss Stella Butler. Half of the crowd of girls were dressed to resemble handsome youths and made the best of leap year by looking carefully at their ladies' programs and seeing that each dance was taken. During the evening refreshing lemonade was served by Marie Marr and Dorothy Butler. At the close of the festivities a mock wedding took place. Those in the bridal party were: Bride, Miss Butler; groom, Flossie Phillips; bridesmaid, Beesie Galland; best man, Miss Talcott; flower girl, Ava Butler; officiating clergyman, Pauline Palmer, who had a new marriage ceremony for those who take advantage of 1916. At the place where the ring bearer is supposed to give the ring to the minister a beautiful silver spoon was given to the bride. Misses Grace and Ava Butler, who represented the Goldust Twins, had remarkably unique costumes.

Word comes from Omaha that Vorne Talcott and several other medical students who have been making a close study of diphtheria during the epidemic in that city, have contracted the disease, but are getting along well, as they do not have a severe attack. On Thursday, February 18th, occurs the election to decide whether or not the consolidated independent district of Dow City shall issue bonds for $75,000 for the purpose of building and equipping a new school house for the consolidated district. At this election the women may vote the same as men, under the same restrictions and qualifications, a separate ballot box being provided for the votes cast by women and a separate canvass made of their votes. The intention of the school board is to build a school house which will provide for the needs of the district and meet the requirements for state aid for consolidated schools and which will place our high school on the fully accredited list of high schools.

Two of the members of the board, together with Mr. E. L. Barber, of Denison, who has been secured to act as architect, made a trip of inspection last week and visited several consolidated schools to get pointers on what will be the best in the way of a building and equipment for our school. They interviewed members of school boards, superintendents, patrons of the schools and business and professional men in nearly a dozen consolidated districts, and found that in every case the average attendance during the year has been larger than it was under the old system. They found that in every case the people are very enthusiastic about their schools and that the consolidated school is an unqualified success.

Classified Advertising

Comparatively few business men realize how they might profit by making use of classified newspaper advertising. These little columns are read perhaps more thoroughly than anything else in the paper. Every one is interested to know what other people are offering for sale, what people want help and what people are looking for situations.

Classified advertising is a genuine department of news events, reflecting the daily life of the people, their desires to sell and buy.

Classified advertising is the means by which the farmer in the outside districts reaches consumers in the town who will pay better prices than he can get at the stores. It is the means by which the merchant can reach the outlying country. It is the efficient promoter of all kinds of business relations, at the cost of a few small coins.

Location of Governor's Office.

The Organic Act establishing the territorial government of Iowa contained no provision requiring the Governor or Secretary to keep offices at the seat of government, according to Mr. John E. Briggs, the writer of an article recently published by the State Historical Society of Iowa. Thus when the capital was removed to Iowa City it did not include the removal of the executive offices. Governor Chambers took an aversion to Iowa City, declaring that he would reside in Burlington. It appears that he had an office at Iowa City only during sessions of the Legislative assembly. In 1844 a memorial was addressed to Congress asking that the Governor and Secretary be required to keep their offices at Iowa City. This question was raised again in 1848, but nothing came of it. Not until 1864, indeed, was an act of such a character passed. Then a law requiring the Governor to "keep the Executive Office at Des Moines, in which shall be transacted the business of the Executive Department of the State Government" was placed upon the statute books.

The Problems of Retail Trade.

The development of a force of salespeople, capable of rendering intelligent and competent service to the public, is perhaps the biggest problem the merchant has to deal with. It exists just the same in a store having but one or two clerks as in the bigger establishments. Every one of these concerns is a business school, in which constant training in good salesmanship is proceeding. As a result there is no place where the public gets a more intelligent and helpful service than in a town of the type of this.

To be a good clerk requires something more than ability to add up a column of figures or quote prices. The clerk must be intelligently informed about the various lines of goods that he is handling. He should read trade papers and keep his eyes open in the newspapers to get helpful information about his line.

The intelligent clerk gives a dependable impression as to what kind of goods are most durable and most satisfactory. He can also tell what kind of material is best suited to the purchaser's tastes, habits, manner of living and associations. A purchase made with the aid of such intelligence is far more satisfactory. Goods that just fit wear twice as long and are cheap at any price.

In a town like this the force of salespeople are of a permanent character. As few changes as possible are made, and the better positions are apt to be filled by promotions from the lower jobs in the same store. The proprietors give personal attention to the work of instructing clerks. This builds up a force of people who are capable of rendering a high degree of intelligent service, and of helping customers make purchases that will be permanently satisfactory.

This is the kind of thing that the customer misses when he goes away to buy in some distant city or sends to a mail order house. There is a lack of intelligent service, the sales forces are less permanent, less intelligent about their goods, and they make no particular effort to fit the purchase to the customer.

Advances in Wages.

The past six weeks has seen a remarkable number of announcements of advanced wages in factories, mills and other industries.

It would be an interesting study in human nature to trace the destination of this extra money. Some of it will go for more picture shows, lawdry ornaments for the parlor table, candy, tobacco and liquor. There is plenty of folly in the world and it is hard to say whether there is more of it among the poor or among the rich.

If the main of course an advance in wages is applied to real needs, to clothing, more substantial food, etc. The ambitious, common sense working man should not be satisfied, however, unless he has done something with it to give him a more assured position in life. A substantial part of every wage raise ought to go to the payment of debts and if possible to a bank deposit. The sun shines today, but periods of business depression are bound to recur.

The Birth of a Nation will keep on doing good business if the negroes will hurry up and get a few more cities to condemn it.

The following licenses to wed have been issued by the county clerk during the past week: Feb. 11, Edward Nordhorst and Adele Jahn, Feb. 12, Gus Scheidert and Anna Hansen; Russell C. It must give the Weather Bureau a feeling of solid confidence to know that if all signs fall, they can still fall back on the Old Farmers Almanac.
