Sept. 24.—Review Lesson for the Past Quarter.

A review of the lessons for the past quarter presents to our view a most wonderful part of the life work of the great Apostle Paul. It brings to mind the hardships which he endured and the determination with which he pushed his work of spreading the gospel of Jesus. Through every situation he was master of himself, never afraid of what man could do to him.

The first lesson found Paul at Thessalonica and Berea, where he had come after leaving Philippi. At Thessalonica he had hard work, the Jews being very violent against him. To the credit of the people at Berea they searched the bible to see whether the things Paul said were true and with this spirit many were led to believe on Jesus and to be christians from that time onward. The point was well made on the study of this lesson that people now should read the words of Jesus and of Paul with minds ready to believe if the facts there presented call for this to be done.

One of the strong lessons was taken from the letter of Paul to the christians at Thessalonica. He called attention to the fact that the gospel he preached came with a showing of power, miracles were performed, the lives of men and women changed. In the latter verses of that lesson there was a wonderful presentation of the scenes at the end of the world, when the dead shall be raised and the Lord descend with a shout and those who have loved and served Him shall dwell with Him forever. Let no christian forget that the mighty God is their friend and He will care for them.

Paul at Athens! How much that sentence means. In the midst of the best culture of the age, among men who were used to public discussions where the past history of that country was used as an example to conduct at the present time, Paul did not seem at a disadvantage but measured up to all which was required of him. It was at Athens that he made the great address on Mars Hill, when with brilliant skill he made use of things present to view, to lead on to a declaration as to Jesus, accountability for deeds done in the body, judgment to come and announced the great truth that all men are the offsprings of God and so brethren. He dealt idolatry a strong blow when reasoning that if we are such offsprings, that things made by hands could not be God's, possessed of superior powers.

At Corinth Paul made one of his most successful stops. Here he was a year and six months, and as a result hundreds believed on the name of Jesus. Here he was strengthened by a direct vision from God telling him to have no fear but to speak boldly. Writing to the church at Corinth, Paul presented a great statement as to the power of the gospel. He said that to those who were worldly wise, the gospel seemed foolishness, but those who believed, it was the power to convert their lives into obedience to God, and assure them everlasting life. He made no claims to glory in what he had done as a missionary, but only said he gloried in the cross of the blessed Jesus.

The lesson of August 6th had for its basis that far famed chapter from I Corinthians on charity and love as the supreme moving power of the world. God Himself is love, and the nearer we come to having love dominate our every action and thought the nearer we become like Him. The ending verses proclaim that now we see as through a glass darkly but in due time we shall see God face to face. Glorious promise. Let none fail to realize the full assurance.

In these days when such great demands are made on christian people for money to carry on the gospel work of August 18th, which treats on giving much interest attaches to the lesson. The great apostle says that each should set apart what he can give, and not act grudgingly for God loveth a cheerful giver. There is the promise that God will deal generously with those who help His cause. There is no statement made that giving will pardon sins or wrongdoing. In the account of the visit of Paul to Ephesus we had striking example of the opposition to the gospel coming from those whose wealth is made less by reason of people becoming Godly and living right. The saloon power and all its kindred evils fight the religion of Jesus steadily. None should be fooled by this, but look deep to the cause of the opposition.

In the lesson of August 27th comes "None of these things move me, neither that remarkable declaration from Paul, or count I my life dear so that I might finish my course with joy." There was opposition, threats of personal violence, the cry of friends urging him to cease "his strong endeavors" for Jesus. He with loud protest said that nothing would keep him from further work. Grand man that he was. In the following lesson with humbleness he tells of his sufferings for the gospel and the grace with which God has sustained him.

The lessons telling of Paul's arrest, his defense before the mob, are fresh in mind. The hardships Paul endured, his zeal for the gospel, his magnificent epistles so full of hope and joy, his courage despite obstacles, challenge our admiration, and can well excite all to renewed work for the cause for which he offered up the full measure of his life and strength.

Fish Out of Water. When a living fish is taken out of the water it kicks vigorously, erects its fins, gasps convulsively, and in a short time, fifteen to thirty minutes, it becomes motionless. But the muscles still possess what physiologists term "irritability," which may continue for several hours, in some fish lasting from ten to fifteen hours. In such fish as the salmon it lasts longer than in cod or haddock, owing to the smaller amount of contained water in the muscles of the former.—All Outdoors.

Fall's Definite Corset Fashions Are to be Found in the Nemo Corsets

in complete and correct variety, and, too, if you care to heed the advice of our corsetier, health and comfort as well; for health and comfort are to be had if you but let your corset be correctly fitted to your figure. For this fitting service, unexcelled in all Denison, no charge is made. Of course you are aware of the corset's importance in the new fall gown. If you will allow us to fit you intelligently to a Nemo corset, you will have the new youthful figure. All lines in the gown for fall are youthful lines, and you cannot wear them becomingly if you do not have the right corset, rightly adjusted.

There are Three Types of Nemo Corsets

Preventive, controlling and corrective. Most women should wear the Nemo preventive corset—they would find it easier to keep youthful lines, as it poises the body correctly. Our corsetier will adjust your corset so it fits the figure closely—the waist slightly slightly drawn in, the curve over the hip a shade freer—not suppressed—the skirt long enough to control the flesh on the thigh, with the bones of the back close to the spine, where they are a help to the figure instead of extending and pressing on the kidneys, causing serious discomfort.

The Corrective Corset

belongs to large women and to the women whose figures have grown shapeless from being improperly corseted. Remember our corsetier has studied the anatomy of the body and knows that the right Nemo corset for a stout woman will distribute the soft flesh and reduce it by means of heavier boning, rubber gores, and pressure in such places as it can be brought to bear safely.

Nemo Corset Style 506

as illustrated, for the figure with bulging thighs, reduces them to their proper size and makes the figure look symmetrical. There are three different sections of rubber in the skirt over the thighs, so arranged that they hold the bulging flesh firmly. When seated this elastic spreads, acting as a massage on fat. Try it and see if the bulge does not disappear. Sizes 22 to 32, at $5.00.

Nemo Self Reducing Corset, Style 322

as illustrated, is a wonderful corset for reducing a figure. Women who wear this model tell us every day that their new corset is one size smaller than the old one. Medium low bust, long skirt, self reducing straps support and reduce the abdomen. Sizes 22 to 36, at $3.50.
