LEGISLATURE ENJOYS A RECESS

Lively Discussion Over Pending Bills Extension Grounds.

PRIMARY LAW IS MODIFIED

Bone Dry Measure Passes Senate—Highway Legislation Interesting—Equal Suffrage Busy.

DES MOINES, Feb. 24.—After a strenuous week the legislature adjourned Saturday for a ten day recess. Some lively tilts were featured in committee meetings and on the floor of both houses there were some interesting debates over pending measures. John W. Rowley of Van Buren, who was a candidate for governor before the primaries two years ago on the principal address in support of his bill to sell 22 acres of the extension grounds. Representative Lee of Sac county was the leader of the other side and made eloquent and forceful argument in reply to Mr. Rowley's accusations. The bill was defeated by a close vote. The road issue is still foremost in the house and every move made of importance is predicated upon the attitude toward the bills pending. March 9th has been set as the time for taking up the road bills and great relief will result when the matter is disposed of as the unsettled condition hinders progress in legislation. In the senate bone dry laws are being passed. The primary election law has been the prominent feature. In both houses something like 900 bills have been introduced and the presentation of new measures is a daily occurrence. All hope of a short session is gone and those in touch with matters do not look for adjournment before the second week in April.

Primary Election Law Modified.
Senator Kimball's primary election bill which would take off of the primary ballot all state officers under governor and leave their nomination to a state convention passed the senate by a vote of 33 to 10. The Foster amendment gives the voter the right to paste in or write in names of delegates to the county convention. Under the Kimball bill the names of the candidates for United States senator, governor, congressmen and all county or township officers and delegates to the county convention will appear on the primary ballot. The county convention will select delegates to the state convention which delegates to state officers will be nominated. The senate voted to keep the circle off of the ballot, to continue the non-partisan nomination of judges, and to eliminate from the ballot of presidential years the names of electors and print thereon simply the names of the candidates for president and vice president.

Bone Dry Measure Passes Senate.
The action of congress in making it a crime to ship liquor into states that have prohibitory laws stimulated action on one of the bone dry bills introduced early in the session by Senator Whitmore of Ottumwa. There will be no more legal drinking of intoxicating liquors in Iowa except by the drinker who goes in person across the state line and himself drinks what booze he brings back with him. With the adoption of the Whitmore bill violations of this law will be made subject to action brought at the point of delivery and will enable county officials to prosecute in their own counties. Delivery of intoxicating liquors is made equivalent to sale of the liquor in so far as locating the point at which action may be brought. In effect the bill cuts off the railroads from transporting and by the words "or other" relating to carriers, places the same prohibition upon all truck or automobile lines of persons who haul for hire, against driving across the state line to bring liquor into the state. Senator Helmer attempted to amend the bill by striking out the words "or other," but his amendment failed to carry.

The bill passed by the following vote:
Ayes: Arney, Ball, Balkeman, Edwards, Enger, Fellows, Fleck, Fox, Kett, Foster, Gibson, Grout, Henigbaum, Kimball, Kingland, Laffer, LeCompte, Lindly, Lytle, Mitchell, Parker, Price, Proudfoot, Ratcliff, Rule, Smith, Stephenson, Taylor, Van Alstine, Voorhees, Whitmore and Wilson—31.
Nays: Adams, Broxam, Byington, Caswell, Chase, Coburn, Evans, Eversmeyer, Fralley, Green, Hale, Haskell, Helmer, Jackson, Newberry, Schrup, Thompson and White—18.

Highway Legislation Getting Interesting.
The organization of the house was presumably based upon the attitude that would be assumed toward highway legislation. The principal bone contention is the state highway commission and the granting of more authority to boards of supervisors and township trustees. The election of Mr. Pitt speaker indicated that a bare majority of one of the republican members favored a change in the present highway law, but account must be taken of the 14 democrats in the house when it comes to putting a measure through that body, hence there is considerable uncertainty as to the exact lineup. Soon after the introduction of what is known as the Johnston-Pitt bill those opposed to its provisions, known as progressives when it comes to highway legislation, drafted a bill making amendments to the present law and providing for changes that it was hoped would satisfy those who want more power conferred upon local authorities. This bill was introduced the past week by Representative Elwood of Howard county and by the use of some sharp parliamentary tactics by means of an amendment to the previous bill. That makes it necessary for the vote to be taken first upon the amendment. Both sides are lining up for the most interesting fight of the entire session. Much of the energy on both sides has been stored up for the past four years, ever since the highway commission was established.

The essential points of difference between the Elwood and Johnston road bills follow:
1. The Elwood bill retains the three highway commissioners. The Johnston bill would abolish the three and have a "one man board," a highway commissioner.

2. The Elwood bill retains the commission as the supervisory department of road improvement, clothed with all but one of its main present powers. The Johnston bill would make the commissioner merely an advisory officer except in bridge building and return authority in road building to the county supervisors.

3. The Elwood bill provides that supervisors shall initiate road improvement and the commission shall have full supervision. The Johnston bill provides that supervisors not only shall initiate but shall supervise the work also.

4. The Elwood bill would put commissioners and county engineers under the Cosson overseer law. The Johnston bill would make the commissioner answerable to the governor who appoints him every two years.

5. The Elwood bill makes no specific provision for the issuance of bonds but tolerates the present system of bonding a debt after the work has been done. The Johnston bill would prohibit bond issues of any kind for road or bridge improvement.

6. The Elwood bill would take three per cent of the automobile fund for maintenance of the highway commission. The Johnston bill would allow only $25,000.

Both provide for acceptance of the $2,000,000 federal aid.

Regular Army Sharply Criticized.
The demands of the regular army, made through the judge advocate at Washington, that members of the Third regiment Iowa National Guard, just back from duty on the border, should pay for the clothing they will discard upon being mustered out, was made the subject of a vigorous protest by a joint committee from both houses. The committee on behalf of the senate was composed of Fralley of Lee and Evans of Butler. On the part of the house, Adkins of O'Brien and Miller of Boone. The resolutions were composed of five counts and were passed by a vote of 100 to 10 at the beginning of the session.

It has been made to discredit the National Guard; that insulting flings on the part of regular army officers is a common practice; that the order issued is in conflict with the articles of war; that the war department through highly colored posters is endeavoring to get young men to enlist in the regular army and at the same time is indulging in tactics that will deter young men from entering the service. Numerous allusions were made to methods that the committee declared is penurious and un-American. The resolutions declare that the federal government has already received its pay in full for clothing issued to the state and brought by the enlisted men into federal service and will by this method be paid twice for the same clothing; once by the state and once by the enlisted men. The clothing at issue, according to the resolution, was antiquated, out of date, worn out and much of it fifteen years old when issued to the men. For this clothing each man of the Third regiment must pay on an average of $14.35. The drastic language employed in the resolutions, caused a lively discussion in the senate but upon roll call received a unanimous vote. Weaver, in the house, proposed a modification of some of the more drastic utterances and they were adopted.

Butter Makers Want Cream Pasteurized.
At the state convention of butter makers held in Des Moines recently, it was voted to ask the legislature to pass a law compelling butter makers in all creameries to pasteurize all cream as a public health precaution. Disease germs may be carried in butter, say the officers of the association, although there is no known case of disease which could be traced to germs in butter. The butter makers are acting independent of consumers and physicians.

Equal Suffrage Busy.
Prominent women of all parts of the state are urging that the present general assembly start the suffrage amendment on its way toward the people again. They aver that the question of equal suffrage got mixed up in the primary fight on the gubernatorial nomination and that it suffered greatly thereby. They are sure that if it comes before the people at a time when party maneuvering is absent that it will carry by a large majority. The committee in both the house and the senate will report favorably for resubmission. While the women favorable to the amendment are busy women, opposed to suffrage have been busy and have presented their side of the controversy to the committee.

State Agent Bill Under Fire.
The administration bill asking that $25,000 be appropriated that special agents may be employed in seeing to it that laws are enforced and criminals are run down in any or all parts of the state is creating about as much interest in the house as is the road question. At one time the committee on appropriations voted to ask that the bill be indefinitely postponed but upon a reconsideration brought about by pressure from both the governor and the attorney general the bill was ordered out by a vote of 21 to 16. Some vigorous and forcible language was used by Starzinger of Polk and

$5,000 DUROC JERSEY SALE

B. A. Samuelson, of Near Kiron, Holds Very Successful Sale February 20th—Buyers From Distance

70 HEAD MAKE AVERAGE OF $71.00

Mr. Samuelson Well Known Breeder and Stock Commands Highest Prices—List of Buyers.

This newspaper is in receipt of a letter from Mr. B. A. Samuelson, who resides near Kiron, in which he says that his thirteenth annual sale of pure bred Duroc Jersey sows and gilts, held on Tuesday, February 20th, was a great success and brought bidders and buyers from different sections of Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota and Nebraska. When we say that the 70 head sold averaged $71.00 a head it is plain to be seen that Mr. Samuelson's sale was a success and that he had the kind of stock breeders the farmers demand. The sale totaled almost $5,000. Four sows went to Minnesota, two to South Dakota, six to Nebraska and twenty-nine to different parts of Iowa, and the balance to Snc. Ida and Crawford county.

Mr. Samuelson is one of Crawford county's substantial farmers, who early realized the benefit to be derived from raising a pure strain of hogs. He believed that the Duroc Jersey strain would prove to be the best money maker for farmers of the corn belt to start his herd, which from year to year has been improved until now it is recognized to be one of the best in the west.

In his letter Mr. Samuelson thanked the Review for the part it had in making the sale a success. Mr. Samuelson used space in this paper in two issues.

How Business Grows.
Many merchants complain about poor business, and then they never set aside a dollar in the effort to get more business. In this they act against every recognized principle of success.

All the big enterprises set aside a large sum for their sales and make advertising departments. It is the work of these departments to make new friends. It is recognized that a firm's regular customers are constantly dropping out, due to death, removal, competition rivals, etc. Unless a constant effort is made to attract new friends, one's business is likely to fall off instead of increase.

No retail business can grow unless it acts on this principle. New friends and patrons must constantly be secured. They are not likely to come haphazard. They go to the people who solicit them. If constant mail order houses and the outside cities solicit them by advertisement, while the home merchant doesn't, they will go to the place that seeks their trade as that place seems to them the most wide awake and enterprising.

W. O. Finkbine and Carl F. Kuehnle Give Novel Recognition to Leaders in S. U. I.

IOWA CITY, Feb. 23.—W. O. Finkbine, of Des Moines, and Carl F. Kuehnle, of Denison last night were hosts to seventy students of the State University of Iowa at a banquet at the Hotel Jefferson.

The guests represented every class, team, society, club, fraternity and other undergraduate organizations connected with the university. Mr. Finkbine and Mr. Kuehnle are alumni and noted for their loyalty and interest in the betterment of the institution.

Addresses by President Jessup, Homer G. Roland, editor of The Daily Iowan; Leonard Raker, senior law; Mr. Kuehnle and Mr. Finkbine, Theodore Wagners, alumni secretary and Elwood Davis, captain of the football team, dwelt on the responsibilities of leadership and the opportunities for greater co-operation for the betterment of the university and the state.

Mr. Kuehnle urged the students to make the university favorably known by the examples of their own lives as well as by legitimate boasting. "The university is bigger than its reputation," he said, "and a little bragging for the moment will not hurt it."

Mr. Finkbine described the students as the quick assets of the State University of Iowa. "Are we going to realize on you?" he asked the leaders at the banquet. He predicted that these leaders would have a most important part in solving the great problems of the country.

The banquet will probably be an annual affair hereafter. As a significant recognition of the positions of leadership in the student system it promises to give new meaning to many offices.

The Sublimity of Nature and Solitude.
The assiduous lover crosses the world. For many and many a mile. And reaches a narrow strip of wood Where the dainty Dryads smile; A beautiful valley stretches below Kissed by the asphodel, And the zephyrs of summer tenderly blow.

To Oblivion's desolate dell. He pictures existence in cellophane. And turns toward the far-reaching plain. To view his treasured visions and prospects dead. And lost, perished in vain. "Bless you," he said, "O solitude, shall not henceforth repine. But shall muse contented within thy rude Wide encampment and hallowed shrine."

"I shall place my trust in thee, O earth. And call thee kith and kin; I shall bathe in the waters of the loved, And drink of the fairy gin. I shall build me a hamlet within thy lanes Somewhere near the Golden Gates. And abide by the ambrosial fragrance Until the storm of life abates."

The hermit is sleeping in the land he loved. And the flowers guard his sacred shrine. The supernatural Dryads dirge is heard. 'Mid the beautiful lay of the sheltering pine. The assiduous lover lists and dreams: His trust was placed so well. That he will ever be reversed and loved. And blessed by the asphodel. —By Robert Worthington Davis.

She was attended by her sister, Marie, who wore a suit of navy blue. The groom's attendant was his brother, Vincent Launderville. A delicious breakfast was served to a few intimate friends and relatives at the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Rowan, south of town. The bride is a highly esteemed and respected young lady. The groom is a steady, industrious young man. They have both grown to manhood and womanhood in this community and their numerous friends extend well wishes for a long and happy wedded life. Mr. and Mrs. Launderville left on the afternoon train for Kansas City, where they will visit relatives, after which they will reside on the farm with the groom's mother.

After congratulations had been extended to the bridal couple a bounteous wedding dinner was served to all present. Both young people are well known in Vail and surrounding country, this always having been their home. They have a large circle of friends who extend hearty congratulations and best wishes. The happy couple left on No. 83 for a wedding trip in the west. When going away the bride wore a spring suit of gold colored cloth with hat, shoes and gloves to match. On their return they will go to housekeeping on the McCullough farm west of town.
