Phil Jones returned Friday morning from Des Moines, where she was in attendance at the W. R. C. convention. Mrs. Jones was a candidate for the office of department treasurer and came within six votes of being elected. The former treasurer was re-elected after having already served several terms. Mrs. Jones made an exceptionally strong showing and doubtless will be elected at the next convention. Harry Clark will depart this evening for Fort Monroe, Va., where he will receive training in the coast artillery service. Harry has been endeavoring to enlist in this department for several weeks and on last Friday received his orders to report for duty. He tells us that the coast artillery mans all of the artillery in France above six inches. For the past year he has been employed in the county surveyor's office and has proven a valuable man. Harry was a member of the Illinois state militia for several years and his training there no doubt will be of benefit to him at this time. Chas. Lamberty, of Camp Cody, N. M., has been spending the past few days in Denison visiting at the home of his brother, George Lamberty. He was called to Arcadia on account of the death of his mother. Charles informs the Review that the troops at Cody expect to leave for France in the near future and all of the Denison boys are anxious to get there. The Denison boys are now in machine gun companies and have mastered these weapons. They are now practicing with the new Browning machine guns which he says are proving superior to the foreign made weapons. The Browning gun is much faster and they are not as easily jammed as the Lewis. In speaking of this gun Charlie told of his company being out on the range and a dog undertook to run across in front of the target. The dog was struck with seven bullets before he dropped to the ground. Charlie reports that the Denison boys are in the best of health but are all anxious to move.

HELEN'S NINE CHANCES.

Not that she's a cat. Not by any means, but Helen Gibson, firmly believes that she has the cat's allotted number of lives. And still more startling she has used up eight of the nine chances. There is some excitement in playing the game so near the dealer as that, especially when the dealer is Death. And yet this daring girl does not abate for an instant her zeal in the saddle or in her railroad film work. A year ago her popularity was at its height. Then the Universal company, which had been releasing her in two reels, suddenly stopped producing short features until the demand for them should force up the price they brought in the film market. For a year the daredevil ate out her heart in patience. Now she is to have a chance again. I have seen the first two of her new western dramas and they are thrillingly perfect. The first is called "Play Straight or Fight," and contains the most exciting stage coach dash down a mountain side ever staged, with Helen holding the reins. I caught my breath when it was all over. The second is a railroad drama called "The Midnight Flier." Miss Gibson has had a varied and interesting career, and one very little calculated, it would seem, to prepare her for motion picture work. After graduating from the central high school in Cleveland, O., where she was born, she obtained permission from her parents to go to Blas, Okla., where Miller Bros.' 101 ranch was located during the off season. She had spent several vacations with friends on a neighboring ranch and had learned to ride and enjoy riding in that way. While at Blas Miller Brothers got ready for their road show, and remarking her proficiency in the saddle, asked if she wouldn't like to join out with them. Without asking for parental authority, she jumped at the chance, and signed up for the entire season, traveling through every state in the country. When the season closed it was in Venice, Calif., and Tom Lane engaged the whole troupe to make western and Indian pictures. Not caring to be a squaw, Helen obtained permission to ride with the Indian boys in the wild Indian pictures, without saddle or blanket. She also played a few pictures with Kalem at this time. Then followed several years of rodeo riding and prize taking at Pendleton, and other big roundups, including Salt Lake City, Boise, Idaho, Vancouver and Winnipeg. Then she came to Universal.

The surgical dressing department of the Red Cross received a requisition for 210 8x12 pads Thursday and the workers responded so well to the call of the chairman that the work was completed in two days and the goods were all packed for shipment Saturday evening. Mrs. Cronkleton returned to Council Bluffs Friday after a pleasant visit here. Mrs. J. Peters was in Woodbine attending the commencement exercises last week. Her brother, Senator Holdogal, made the address of the evening. Mrs. H. A. Little returned from her visit Monday afternoon. Mrs. Howard Alexander, of Woodbine, visited relatives here last week. Asa Dwine, of Dow City, was here Monday. P. Shields made a business trip to Pisgah Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Keppford, who live near Arion, were brief visitors here Friday. Hubert, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. VanNess, who lives at Fayette, has enlisted in the coast artillery service. Word to this effect was received in Denison last week by the local board. Having contributed money to the hospitals some motorists think they are free to run down as many people as they want to.
