

The man there's little usually th whom othe does little

DES MOINES IOWA
Aldrich chas curator
Historical dept

THE DENISON REVIEW

THE PAPER YOU TAKE HOME

Advertising will build the bridge of confidence that will get you over the stormy waters of business.

VOL. LIV

DENISON, IOWA, WEDNESDAY, OCT. 15, 1919

No. 42

THE DOINGS, COMING AND GOING OF THE PEOPLE IN THE TOWN TO THE WEST

OUR DOW CITY NEWS BUDGET

THIS DEPARTMENT EDITED BY MISS GOLDA HONZ

IF YOU KNOW AN ITEM OF NEWS, WANT AN AD OR SOME JOB WORK SEE MISS HONZ

On Wednesday of the past week at 1:30 p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rule, in the west part of town, was the scene of one of the prettiest of October weddings, when their youngest daughter, Miss Helen, became the bride of Mr. Lester Cue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Cue, of the Dunlap vicinity. Pink and white roses provided the decorative scheme, filling the house with their lovely fragrance. A beautiful canopy of roses was arranged beneath the double door between the parlor and dining room, which formed the setting for the ceremony. Promptly at the appointed hour, to the strains of a prettily wedding march rendered by Miss Dorothy Rule, niece of the bride, the bridal party passed down the stairway and took their places, where Rev. W. T. Rink, of the Methodist church, read the vows of the beautiful ring service. The couple were attended by Vernon Rule, brother of the bride, and Miss Charlotte Nutter, of Charter Oak. The bride presented a charming picture in her high school graduating dress of white satin, georgette and shadow lace and carrying a bouquet of pink and white roses. The bridesmaid was attractively gowned in white satin and also carried a bouquet of pink and white roses. The groom was neatly attired in a suit of dark green as was his attendant in a dark blue suit. Only the immediate relatives, with a number of close friends, composed the assemblage, graduating guests. After the ceremony and extending of congratulations a most elaborate two course tray luncheon was served, consisting of a large variety of good things. The bride is too well known to require much of an introduction, having grown to young womanhood in Dow City. She attended the local public school, graduating with the class of 1919. She is affiliated with the Methodist Episcopal church, in which she is a most active worker. The groom is also well and favorably known here, too, holding a much valued membership in the local Methodist church. Both have an unusually wide circle of friends in which they hold the very highest respect and esteem. During the luncheon hour Misses Blanche Cole, Mae Houston, Lillian Aronson and Isabel Scott, intimates of the bride, acted as waitresses. Shortly after luncheon the newlyweds left for Ft. Dodge to visit at the home of her brother, Garfield Rule, and family. They will make their home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Cue, on a farm near Dunlap. All unite in wishing them the very best that life affords. Out of town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Rule, of Ft. Dodge; Fred Rule, of Council Bluffs; Mr. and Mrs. Marion Cue, Miss Mae Murphy and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rule, of Dunlap, and Misses Lillian Aronson and Charlotte Nutter, of Charter Oak.

On Tuesday evening of the past week at the school gymnasium a basketball game was played between the boys of the high school and the town team. The high school were the winners by a score of 32 to 12. Supt. P. A. Long acted as referee during the game.

The ladies of the Baptist Aid were invited to the pleasant country home of Mrs. W. N. Schouten to spend the afternoon Wednesday. The time was devoted to quilting, a splendid social hour being enjoyed as well. The company was treated to a delicious luncheon at the close of the day.

Mrs. S. E. Wiley and her visiting cousin, Mrs. Sarah Hass, of Nevada, returned Thursday evening from Woodbine, where they enjoyed a few days' visit with relatives, the Charlie Talcott family. Mrs. Hass, who had spent some two weeks here, left Friday on her return trip home.

Miss Nellie Rule enjoyed a visit last week from Mr. and Mrs. William Ehlers, who were recently married at the home of her sister in Hastings, Neb. Mrs. Ehlers was formerly Miss Golden Rule, of Harlan. They stopped here on their way from a visit in Harlan to their home at Scribner, Neb., where Mr. Ehlers is engaged in the banking business.

James Turnlund has resumed his position in the D. E. Bremser store, which he held before going into the service of Uncle Sam. He began his duties the early part of last week. All are glad to see him back at his post again.

The Royal Neighbors met in regular monthly session Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Dinan. Nothing of special import took place at this time, other than the usual transaction of business. The members of the order have an invitation to meet with Mrs. Frank Bolton at Denison for the November session. The invitation has been gladly accepted and needless to say next month's meeting is being looked forward to with much pleasure. The ladies plan on going to Denison on the morning train and spend the day at the home of Mrs. Bolton.

Mrs. M. B. Bailey was up from Dunlap several days last week and visited at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. C. Howorth.

Mrs. W. A. Copeland was a passenger from Council Bluffs Thursday for a visit at the home of her brother, C. O. Miller, and wife.

The 500 club has resumed its social gatherings for the season, the first of which took place on Tuesday evening of the past week with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stepanek. After having devoted several hours to this popular game, a nice service of refreshments was brought forth as the evening's closing feature. R. E. Lusk received the gentleman's prize, a deck of cards, awarded in the contest, Mrs. O. J. Judd capturing the ladies' prize, a pretty hand painted plate.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Goldworthy received word Wednesday of the birth of a fine baby son to their son-in-law and daughter, I. A. Anderson and wife of Stanhope. Dow City friends extend congratulations. The mother and babe are being cared for at a hospital in Chicago.

Jim Baber has been confined to his home the past week owing to illness, but we are very glad to state that he is now improving.

Mrs. P. J. Brown and little son were passengers to Denison Thursday evening, where they were guests at the home of her brother, Ben Wingrove, and family, returning Friday.

Wednesday night a daring robbery was attempted here at the Stewart Lumber company building. A small piece of glass was broken out of the rear window of the hardware department, thus devising a means by which to gain hold of the lock that was unfastened and the window raised. Fortunately nothing has been missed, therefore it is not known whether an entrance was made or not. Local talent is suspected.

A. A. Fishel and wife, of Omaha, spent Tuesday night of the past week here with his brother, W. E. Fishel, and family, also visiting at the W. B. McDonald home. Wednesday they went to Denison, where they attended the wedding of their son, Daniel Klick, to Miss Hazel Nordholm.

Mrs. F. C. Howorth, with her mother, Mrs. M. B. Bailey, of Dunlap, spent several days recently in Boone, where they attended the suffrage convention, which voted at this time to change their name to the Iowa Branch of National League of Women Voters. They report a very interesting convention.

Ed Gibson returned Wednesday from a several days' sojourn in Chicago, where he witnessed the world's series of baseball games.

Ora Malone, the auctioneer, was a caller in town Thursday from Denison. J. R. Griffin has returned home from an enjoyable two weeks' visit with relatives and friends in Illinois and Indiana.

James and David Clark were in Va. Thursday attending a swine sale.

The members and friends of the Priscilla club met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. W. E. Dow as hostess of the day. The rooms of the home presented a very attractive and pleasing appearance, being decorated in appreciation to the fall season. Autumn leaves were used in profusion and the mountain ash with its berries lending a bit of beauty to the whole. There was a large attendance upon this occasion and the hours were pleasantly filled in with the usual social chat and the like. A feature of distinction was the elegant repast enjoyed at the close of the day. Mrs. Dow always proves herself a royal entertainer at all times and this occasion was no exception. Out of town guests included Mrs. Mary McHenry and Mrs. Mott McHenry, of Denison, and Mrs. P. F. Branaka, of Eagle Grove.

John Mathys and O. S. Carlson were in Omaha Thursday buying cattle.

Mrs. Ella Kresselmeyer and little son were in town between trains on Thursday from Arion and visited her daughters, Mrs. John Retman and Mrs. Robert Johnson.

Mrs. M. A. Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Paul McElwain and little son and Mesdames Henry Roy and Jim Baber were county seat visitors Thursday.

A cement walk is being put in on the east side of the residence properties of J. W. Stepanek, Orvie Boham and Fred Colby, which is a great improvement to that street.

Mrs. George Ahart and little daughter, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Ed Lyons, of Charter Oak, departed Wednesday afternoon for Texas on a visit to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilbur.

On Monday, October 6th, another baby son was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Keairnes. Both mother and babe are reported to be getting along nicely.

Mrs. Ed Ahart and her sister, Mrs. L. E. Barger, spent the day Tuesday visiting in Omaha.

Miss Velora Smith left Friday for her home in Lamoni after a several weeks' visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. Morris Griffin.

Art Houston returned on Wednesday from Rochester, Minn., to which place he had accompanied his brother, J. J. Houston, a week previously to consult the specialists in regard to his poor state of health. As yet the specialists have not been able to fully diagnose his case and it was necessary for him to remain there for a longer time.

Mrs. F. C. Howorth returned Thursday from a several days' visit with her friend, Mrs. Moorhouse, at Ghedden.

W. H. Buss, wife and son, Charles, and her sister, Mrs. P. F. Branaka, were visiting in Denison Saturday.

A. L. Jackson and F. C. Howorth were Omaha business visitors Thursday. The ladies of the W. H. M. S. met in the basement of the Methodist church Wednesday for the purpose of packing the barrel of canned fruit preparatory to shipping to the deaconess home at Des Moines.

Thos. McCollough, wife and little son Donovan, have returned home from a pleasant week's visit with relatives at Coleman, S. D., and Sioux City.

Miss Essie Shaugter was a passenger from Vaill Friday for a short visit with friends.

Clair Lloyd was an arrival Friday and is a guest at the home of his mother, Mrs. Julius Ahart. He has just received his final release from the army, having returned from Coblenz, Germany. He was in the service a little better than a year, having been abroad most of that time.

A. W. Wilson was among the Omaha visitors last Tuesday.

S. J. Acker came up from Omaha Saturday for an over Sunday visit with his family.

The outstanding event of the community which claimed the attention of a large number of our people during this past week was the homecoming banquet given at the opera house on Friday evening as a courtesy to the soldiers and sailors represented on the town service flag. The royal welcome extended those who were thus honored was characteristic of the feeling of joy which pervades the community that the boys—or the greater majority of them—are now back home. At the beginning of the evening, about 8 o'clock, the banquet feast was spread, consisting of two elegant courses. For long tables were arranged lengthwise of the building, each table seating thirty-two guests. The spacious room was handsomely and appropriately decorated with flags, red, white and blue bunting, autumn leaves and flowers. The most prominent of all was the stage which as a whole was a bower of beautiful flowers, asparagus with various kinds of flowers, carrying out the finishing touches. Autumn leaves and flowers furthered the season's note in the table decorations which were unusually dainty and attractive. After the dinner hour the Triangle Amusement company put on a motion picture entitled "This is the Life" in a five reel production, followed by a two reel mixed comedy. Excellent music was furnished throughout the evening by the Gallagher orchestra of Vaill. At a late hour the crowd dispersed, pronouncing the evening as one having been well spent. The occasion was a decided success from every point of view.

Jay Field was a passenger to Council Bluffs Saturday morning, where he spent the day and visited at the home of his sister, Mrs. W. C. Burke.

Mrs. N. R. Wilder left Thursday evening for Minneapolis for a visit with her niece, Mrs. Jack Williams, and family.

Mrs. Iva Jordan returned to her home in Anoka, Neb., Friday after a few days' visit here with her relatives and friends.

A. P. Moeller was a passenger to West Side Saturday evening for an over Sunday visit at his parental home.

Mrs. B. G. Lyman came down from Carroll Friday for a visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Rudd, returning Saturday evening.

Mrs. A. B. Carlson left Saturday for Chicago on a business mission and for a visit with relatives. Her daughter, Marian, will remain at the O. S. Carlson home south of town during her absence.

Editor E. E. Roland, of Williams, was a pleasant caller in Dow City on Saturday.

Mrs. E. R. Fagan and Miss Ellen Goddard were visiting and shopping in Denison Saturday.

Dr. F. N. Rowe was an arrival Thursday afternoon from Donna, Texas, to join his family who have been here for several weeks at the parental, Earl Rowe, home.

Miss Frances Hunkler came over from Manilla Friday for a visit at the G. M. Brake home and to attend the soldiers' banquet.

Carl Hansen was down from Denison Thursday visiting the home folks.

Mrs. Gladys Pett, who has been the efficient lady clerk in Herman's store for several months, severed her connections therewith Saturday and has resumed her former position in the Jack Allen store at Arion. While in Dow City she and her mother, Mrs. Riley Talcott, occupied the B. M. McElwain residence, vacating the same Saturday when they moved to Arion. We understand the residence property has now been rented to J. P. Gorman, the newly employed mechanic at the Fleishold garage, who will move his family here from Omaha.

U. S. Thomas and wife and children, of Rockwell City, were here making an over Sunday visit with his brother, E. L. Thomas, and family.

Elder Chas. E. Butterworth was a passenger to Deloit Saturday evening, where he conducted the Sabbath preaching services at the L. D. S. church.

Col. W. S. Mapes with a detachment of a thousand men from Camp Dodge is in command of the military guard now on duty at Gary, Ind., where the big strike has stirred up such a commotion. Col. Mapes has been in command of the Fourth division at Camp Dodge for some time. Another detachment from this camp has been doing guard duty during the upheaval at Omaha. Orders from the war department have been received for the complete cleaning up of Camp Dodge and a large force of men are removing the weeds, flushing sewers, repairing the walks, renovating barracks and the like. It is believed that a large body of regulars will be sent here as soon as their services will no longer be needed in trouble districts over the country. Sixty cripples a day are being sent from Fort Des Moines and Government Hospital No. 26 will soon be abandoned after serving over 10,000 disabled soldiers.

W. E. Albert, state game warden, is having all of the sloughs and bayous along Iowa streams sealed and the game fish are being placed in state waters. Recent rains have interfered with the work as some of the rivers are bank full and have overflowed into the low places. Fish from state hatcheries are also being distributed. Thus far 13 car loads of fish have been dumped into the various streams. Of this number six cars were from the hatchery at Lansing.

The state authorities recently visited Spirit Lake upon request of property owners to investigate the damage to property caused by the unusual volume of water in the lake which is washing away banks, uprooting trees and overflowing lowlands hitherto free from such a visitation. The engineering department at Ames has been authorized to lower the outlet at the south end of the lake and permit a larger flow into Lake Okoboji and the outlet from this lake will take care of the surplus.

The weather department at Washington, D. C., has authorized the establishment of a new weather station in Iowa to be located on the western shore of Lake Okoboji. The Okoboji station will be in charge of Frederick J. Smith.

The biggest county in the state is Kossuth with 626,005.81 acres. Pottawattamie county is second with 606,460.15 acres. Osceola county is smallest with 254,412.83 acres and Louisa is next to the smallest with 254,712.52 acres. The average size of the counties is about 370,000 acres.

According to A. R. Corey, secretary of the state board of agriculture, the aid for county fairs will total about $90,000 this year under the law passed by the legislature last winter. Ninety fairs are expected to file applications for assistance. Last year state aid amounted to only $50,000 but the maximum any association might receive was lower than 1919.

Miss Blanche Stoddard, superintendent of schools for Hardin county, announces that four nurses for that county have been provided for and are already on duty. The nurses were secured through the efforts of the Red Cross working with the county schools city councils and boards of supervisors. Various other counties in the state are planning to put nurses in the rural communities. Examination of teeth, test of eyes, observation of sanitation and the selection of nutritious food to suit the physical condition of the children are to be prominent features of the work to be undertaken.

Safely stored in machinery hall at the state fair grounds are 200 army motor trucks of the latest design and pattern. The war department is finding it an expensive business to take care of its trucks. It would have cost the department $40,000 to have obtained storage rooms for those that are here. Two watchmen remain on duty all the time at the big machinery hall and five expert motor truck drivers are available in case there is use for the big vehicles. Nobody but an army trained driver is permitted to handle them. The free use of both cars and drivers is at the service of the fair officials as compensation for storage. During the national swine show all of the fancy animals were transported to and from the trains by these trucks.

The committee having in charge the revision of the code has been continuously on duty ever since the appointment was made upon the adjournment of the 38th general assembly in April. The committee is composed of James Trewin, of Cedar Rapids; J. C. Mabry, of Albia, and U. G. Whitney, reporter of the supreme court, Des Moines. It is announced that the work will have been completed by January 1st and that 2,500 copies will be printed which will serve as a working basis when the legislature convenes in extra session about the middle of January. In this code all of the statutes bearing on one subject have been collected under titles, there being thirty-four titles in the book. This compilation will afford a working basis from which the revision code will finally be completed. It is expected there will be considerable debate over many of the items of the statute books before the legislature consents to their going into the new code and not a few may be repealed. The extra session will be convened by proclamation of the governor and the old officers of the 38th general assembly will hold over.

W. C. Ramsey, who has been chief clerk for several sessions, is now filling the office of secretary of state, by appointment, and this will necessitate the election of a new clerk.

William Miller, a prominent Leo county farmer, fell from a load of hay four years ago, striking the hard road upon his head, breaking his neck which resulted in complete paralysis. He consulted the noted surgeons of the country but none would attempt an operation. Finally a local surgeon, Dr. Austin Philpott, of Fort Madison, after Mr. Miller had pleaded with him, consented to make an effort to restore his body to Dr. Philpott. The broken neck at the break, removed the fractured portion of the sixth and seventh cervical vertebrae and replaced them with pieces made from half the left shin bone. The new pieces were spliced in place and the wound dressed. Upon regaining consciousness Miller discovered he could use muscles and limbs that he had been unable to move since his fall four years ago. He is now resting easily and is well on the road to recovery.

A recent decision of the state supreme court confirms the decision of the district court of Union county in sustaining judgment rendered against Gibson because he spoke disrespectfully of the Y. M. C. A. and the Red Cross and referred to the soldiers as "trench meat" and "cannon fodder." The decree enjoins a year in jail, the payment of a fine of $1,000 and costs amounting to $120.50. Previous to the decision of the supreme court, Gibson was out under bonds of $3,000.

Two brothers, Chester and John Compton by name, residents of a little town in Ohio, conceived the idea of working the farmers by furnishing a record book which would enable the holder to make out his income tax report correctly. The record purported to be an official publication from the internal revenue department and the Comptons started to do business under the title of the "United States Audit Bureau of Washington," but became frightened over the use of that name and changed it to the "Income Tax Record Bureau." They selected Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for their field of exploitation and sent into that territory

Bruce Quick and LaPort P. Sohr who began business in the vicinity of Bennett. The books sold for $5. Everett Partridge, representing the internal revenue department, got next to the proposition and placed the whole outfit under arrest, charged with impersonating a government officer.

O. W. Wilson, of Oelwein, pleaded guilty in the federal court at Cedar Rapids to counterfeiting. Wilson is 68 years old and something of a genius around his sorrows. He had been trying to perfect a glass making machine, but it would both better and make cheaper this transparency, but in an evil moment he turned his mechanical knowledge to the making of a die that would turn out as nearly a perfect silver dollar as it is possible to make. Detectives declared the counterfeit equal to the real government dollar in workmanship and design. When arrested he made no defense, had no apologies to offer and no claim for leniency, "the boys would say," he died game."

J. Walter Campbell, of Maquoketa, who was a member of the crew of the Santo, a tramp schooner that made a trip to Cape Horn points with a cargo of lumber, gave testimony in the trial of Capt. Pedersen and his son, Lieut. Pedersen, in federal courts in New York that convicted both of the men for causing the death of Mate Jensen of the coast of Africa last spring. Campbell claims that he witnessed the father and son push Jensen off of the ship into the raging sea and forbidding the members of the crew from attempting his rescue. Young Campbell was forced to sign a statement exonerating Pedersen, but when the ship returned to New York he made an open confession and was immediately retained as the principal witness against the sea captain. Campbell graduated from the high school at Maquoketa and at the age of 18 decided that he would see something of this old world before he settled down in the quiet environs of his home town, consequently he took the first sea passage offered him.

Former Iowans are making history for themselves and for their country these times. Herbert Hoover was brought up in Cedar county. John R. Motz, a world wide worker in Y. M. C. A. organizations, was a former resident of Allamakee county. Frank Mondell, republican leader in congress, representing a district in Wyoming, was brought up on a farm near Spirit Lake. Senator Reed, of Missouri, who is a bitter opponent of the league of nations, began the practice of law in Cedar Rapids. Mayor Smith, who came near being a victim of the mob's wrath in Omaha recently, is a former resident of Greenfield. John Fletcher, vice president of one of the big banks in Chicago, who recently thrilled the country by his appeal to labor to make the largest contribution of finished products possible that the world's shortage of manufactured goods might be overcome, is a former resident of Williamsburg. Frank Waters years ago was a boy in Cedar Falls on the main street crossing in the days when the old B. C. & N. was in existence. This did not require all of his time so he ran a boot blacking establishment as a kind of a side line. He is now general manager of the great Chicago & Northwestern railway system and he recently made old friends at Cedar Falls a visit. A lot of fellows in that town who had better opportunities in their boyhood days, are still loitering around pool halls and saloons. Some of the most noted of the Methodist bishops were former Iowans. Bishop Stuntz was a boy on a farm in Story county. Bishop Lewis and Gov. Harding were brought up on adjoining farms in Osceola county. Bishops Edwards and Mathew Hughes both began their ministerial labors in Pottawattamie county. The late Bishop Bashford began preaching in the days when he married & N. was a prominent resident of that section. William Sunday, the world's greatest evangelist, was born on a farm in Story county, and S. Earl Taylor, the great missionary leader, was brought up in Buchanan county. George E. Roberts of New York, one of the most noted bankers in the United States, is a Fort Dodge product, and Theodore Shonts, who died recently, after demonstrating his capacity for managing the construction of the Panama canal and afterwards the great interborough railway systems in New York, was brought up at Centerville and married a daughter of the late Gov. Drake. William Sunday, the world's greatest evangelist, was born on a farm in Story county, and S. Earl Taylor, the great missionary leader, was brought up in Buchanan county. George E. Roberts of New York, one of the most noted bankers in the United States, is a Fort Dodge product, and Theodore Shonts, who died recently, after demonstrating his capacity for managing the construction of the Panama canal and afterwards the great interborough railway systems in New York, was brought up at Centerville and married a daughter of the late Gov. Drake. William Sunday, the world's greatest evangelist, was born on a farm in Story county, and S. Earl Taylor, the great missionary leader, was brought up in Buchanan county. George E. Roberts of New York, one of the most noted bankers in the United States, is a Fort Dodge product, and Theodore Shonts, who died recently, after demonstrating his capacity for managing the construction of the Panama canal and afterwards the great interborough railway systems in New York, was brought up at Centerville and married a daughter of the late Gov. Drake.

Former Iowans are making history for themselves and for their country these times. Herbert Hoover was brought up in Cedar county. John R. Motz, a world wide worker in Y. M. C. A. organizations, was a former resident of Allamakee county. Frank Mondell, republican leader in congress, representing a district in Wyoming, was brought up on a farm near Spirit Lake. Senator Reed, of Missouri, who is a bitter opponent of the league of nations, began the practice of law in Cedar Rapids. Mayor Smith, who came near being a victim of the mob's wrath in Omaha recently, is a former resident of Greenfield. John Fletcher, vice president of one of the big banks in Chicago, who recently thrilled the country by his appeal to labor to make the largest contribution of finished products possible that the world's shortage of manufactured goods might be overcome, is a former resident of Williamsburg. Frank Waters years ago was a boy in Cedar Falls on the main street crossing in the days when the old B. C. & N. was in existence. This did not require all of his time so he ran a boot blacking establishment as a kind of a side line. He is now general manager of the great Chicago & Northwestern railway system and he recently made old friends at Cedar Falls a visit. A lot of fellows in that town who had better opportunities in their boyhood days, are still loitering around pool halls and saloons. Some of the most noted of the Methodist bishops were former Iowans. Bishop Stuntz was a boy on a farm in Story county. Bishop Lewis and Gov. Harding were brought up on adjoining farms in Osceola county. Bishops Edwards and Mathew Hughes both began their ministerial labors in Pottawattamie county. The late Bishop Bashford began preaching in the days when he married & N. was a prominent resident of that section. William Sunday, the world's greatest evangelist, was born on a farm in Story county, and S. Earl Taylor, the great missionary leader, was brought up in Buchanan county. George E. Roberts of New York, one of the most noted bankers in the United States, is a Fort Dodge product, and Theodore Shonts, who died recently, after demonstrating his capacity for managing the construction of the Panama canal and afterwards the great interborough railway systems in New York, was brought up at Centerville and married a daughter of the late Gov. Drake.

Former Iowans are making history for themselves and for their country these times. Herbert Hoover was brought up in Cedar county. John R. Motz, a world wide worker in Y. M. C. A. organizations, was a former resident of Allamakee county. Frank Mondell, republican leader in congress, representing a district in Wyoming, was brought up on a farm near Spirit Lake. Senator Reed, of Missouri, who is a bitter opponent of the league of nations, began the practice of law in Cedar Rapids. Mayor Smith, who came near being a victim of the mob's wrath in Omaha recently, is a former resident of Greenfield. John Fletcher, vice president of one of the big banks in Chicago, who recently thrilled the country by his appeal to labor to make the largest contribution of finished products possible that the world's shortage of manufactured goods might be overcome, is a former resident of Williamsburg. Frank Waters years ago was a boy in Cedar Falls on the main street crossing in the days when the old B. C. & N. was in existence. This did not require all of his time so he ran a boot blacking establishment as a kind of a side line. He is now general manager of the great Chicago & Northwestern railway system and he recently made old friends at Cedar Falls a visit. A lot of fellows in that town who had better opportunities in their boyhood days, are still loitering around pool halls and saloons. Some of the most noted of the Methodist bishops were former Iowans. Bishop Stuntz was a boy on a farm in Story county. Bishop Lewis and Gov. Harding were brought up on adjoining farms in Osceola county. Bishops Edwards and Mathew Hughes both began their ministerial labors in Pottawattamie county. The late Bishop Bashford began preaching in the days when he married & N. was a prominent resident of that section. William Sunday, the world's greatest evangelist, was born on a farm in Story county, and S. Earl Taylor, the great missionary leader, was brought up in Buchanan county. George E. Roberts of New York, one of the most noted bankers in the United States, is a Fort Dodge product, and Theodore Shonts, who died recently, after demonstrating his capacity for managing the construction of the Panama canal and afterwards the great interborough railway systems in New York, was brought up at Centerville and married a daughter of the late Gov. Drake.

Former Iowans are making history for themselves and for their country these times. Herbert Hoover was brought up in Cedar county. John R. Motz, a world wide worker in Y. M. C. A. organizations, was a former resident of Allamakee county. Frank Mondell, republican leader in congress, representing a district in Wyoming, was brought up on a farm near Spirit Lake. Senator Reed, of Missouri, who is a bitter opponent of the league of nations, began the practice of law in Cedar Rapids. Mayor Smith, who came near being a victim of the mob's wrath in Omaha recently, is a former resident of Greenfield. John Fletcher, vice president of one of the big banks in Chicago, who recently thrilled the country by his appeal to labor to make the largest contribution of finished products possible that the world's shortage of manufactured goods might be overcome, is a former resident of Williamsburg. Frank Waters years ago was a boy in Cedar Falls on the main street crossing in the days when the old B. C. & N. was in existence. This did not require all of his time so he ran a boot blacking establishment as a kind of a side line. He is now general manager of the great Chicago & Northwestern railway system and he recently made old friends at Cedar Falls a visit. A lot of fellows in that town who had better opportunities in their boyhood days, are still loitering around pool halls and saloons. Some of the most noted of the Methodist bishops were former Iowans. Bishop Stuntz was a boy on a farm in Story county. Bishop Lewis and Gov. Harding were brought up on adjoining farms in Osceola county. Bishops Edwards and Mathew Hughes both began their ministerial labors in Pottawattamie county. The late Bishop Bashford began preaching in the days when he married & N. was a prominent resident of that section. William Sunday, the world's greatest evangelist, was born on a farm in Story county, and S. Earl Taylor, the great missionary leader, was brought up in Buchanan county. George E. Roberts of New York, one of the most noted bankers in the United States, is a Fort Dodge product, and Theodore Shonts, who died recently, after demonstrating his capacity for managing the construction of the Panama canal and afterwards the great interborough railway systems in New York, was brought up at Centerville and married a daughter of the late Gov. Drake.

Former Iowans are making history for themselves and for their country these times. Herbert Hoover was brought up in Cedar county. John R. Motz, a world wide worker in Y. M. C. A. organizations, was a former resident of Allamakee county. Frank Mondell, republican leader in congress, representing a district in Wyoming, was brought up on a farm near Spirit Lake. Senator Reed, of Missouri, who is a bitter opponent of the league of nations, began the practice of law in Cedar Rapids. Mayor Smith, who came near being a victim of the mob's wrath in Omaha recently, is a former resident of Greenfield. John Fletcher, vice president of one of the big banks in Chicago, who recently thrilled the country by his appeal to labor to make the largest contribution of finished products possible that the world's shortage of manufactured goods might be overcome, is a former resident of Williamsburg. Frank Waters years ago was a boy in Cedar Falls on the main street crossing in the days when the old B. C. & N. was in existence. This did not require all of his time so he ran a boot blacking establishment as a kind of a side line. He is now general manager of the great Chicago & Northwestern railway system and he recently made old friends at Cedar Falls a visit. A lot of fellows in that town who had better opportunities in their boyhood days, are still loitering around pool halls and saloons. Some of the most noted of the Methodist bishops were former Iowans. Bishop Stuntz was a boy on a farm in Story county. Bishop Lewis and Gov. Harding were brought up on adjoining farms in Osceola county. Bishops Edwards and Mathew Hughes both began their ministerial labors in Pottawattamie county. The late Bishop Bashford began preaching in the days when he married & N. was a prominent resident of that section. William Sunday, the world's greatest evangelist, was born on a farm in Story county, and S. Earl Taylor, the great missionary leader, was brought up in Buchanan county. George E. Roberts of New York, one of the most noted bankers in the United States, is a Fort Dodge product, and Theodore Shonts, who died recently, after demonstrating his capacity for managing the construction of the Panama canal and afterwards the great interborough railway systems in New York, was brought up at Centerville and married a daughter of the late Gov. Drake.

near being a victim of the mob's wrath in Omaha recently, is a former resident of Greenfield. John Fletcher, vice president of one of the big banks in Chicago, who recently thrilled the country by his appeal to labor to make the largest contribution of finished products possible that the world's shortage of manufactured goods might be overcome, is a former resident of Williamsburg. Frank Waters years ago was a boy in Cedar Falls on the main street crossing in the days when the old B. C. & N. was in existence. This did not require all of his time so he ran a boot blacking establishment as a kind of a side line. He is now general manager of the great Chicago & Northwestern railway system and he recently made old friends at Cedar Falls a visit. A lot of fellows in that town who had better opportunities in their boyhood days, are still loitering around pool halls and saloons. Some of the most noted of the Methodist bishops were former Iowans. Bishop Stuntz was a boy on a farm in Story county. Bishop Lewis and Gov. Harding were brought up on adjoining farms in Osceola county. Bishops Edwards and Mathew Hughes both began their ministerial labors in Pottawattamie county. The late Bishop Bashford began preaching in the days when he married & N. was a prominent resident of that section. William Sunday, the world's greatest evangelist, was born on a farm in Story county, and S. Earl Taylor, the great missionary leader, was brought up in Buchanan county. George E. Roberts of New York, one of the most noted bankers in the United States, is a Fort Dodge product, and Theodore Shonts, who died recently, after demonstrating his capacity for managing the construction of the Panama canal and afterwards the great interborough railway systems in New York, was brought up at Centerville and married a daughter of the late Gov. Drake.

Former Iowans are making history for themselves and for their country these times. Herbert Hoover was brought up in Cedar county. John R. Motz, a world wide worker in Y. M. C. A. organizations, was a former resident of Allamakee county. Frank Mondell, republican leader in congress, representing a district in Wyoming, was brought up on a farm near Spirit Lake. Senator Reed, of Missouri, who is a bitter opponent of the league of nations, began the practice of law in Cedar Rapids. Mayor Smith, who came near being a victim of the mob's wrath in Omaha recently, is a former resident of Greenfield. John Fletcher, vice president of one of the big banks in Chicago, who recently thrilled the country by his appeal to labor to make the largest contribution of finished products possible that the world's shortage of manufactured goods might be overcome, is a former resident of Williamsburg. Frank Waters years ago was a boy in Cedar Falls on the main street crossing in the days when the old B. C. & N. was in existence. This did not require all of his time so he ran a boot blacking establishment as a kind of a side line. He is now general manager of the great Chicago & Northwestern railway system and he recently made old friends at Cedar Falls a visit. A lot of fellows in that town who had better opportunities in their boyhood days, are still loitering around pool halls and saloons. Some of the most noted of the Methodist bishops were former Iowans. Bishop Stuntz was a boy on a farm in Story county. Bishop Lewis and Gov. Harding were brought up on adjoining farms in Osceola county. Bishops Edwards and Mathew Hughes both began their ministerial labors in Pottawattamie county. The late Bishop Bashford began preaching in the days when he married & N. was a prominent resident of that section. William Sunday, the world's greatest evangelist, was born on a farm in Story county, and S. Earl Taylor, the great missionary leader, was brought up in Buchanan county. George E. Roberts of New York, one of the most noted bankers in the United States, is a Fort Dodge product, and Theodore Shonts, who died recently, after demonstrating his capacity for managing the construction of the Panama canal and afterwards the great interborough railway systems in New York, was brought up at Centerville and married a daughter of the late Gov. Drake.

Former Iowans are making history for themselves and for their country these times. Herbert Hoover was brought up in Cedar county. John R. Motz, a world wide worker in Y. M. C. A. organizations, was a former resident of Allamakee county. Frank Mondell, republican leader in congress, representing a district in Wyoming, was brought up on a farm near Spirit Lake. Senator Reed, of Missouri, who is a bitter opponent of the league of nations, began the practice of law in Cedar Rapids. Mayor Smith, who came near being a victim of the mob's wrath in Omaha recently, is a former resident of Greenfield. John Fletcher, vice president of one of the big banks in Chicago, who recently thrilled the country by his appeal to labor to make the largest contribution of finished products possible that the world's shortage of manufactured goods might be overcome, is a former resident of Williamsburg. Frank Waters years ago was a boy in Cedar Falls on the main street crossing in the days when the old B. C. & N. was in existence. This did not require all of his time so he ran a boot blacking establishment as a kind of a side line. He is now general manager of the great Chicago & Northwestern railway system and he recently made old friends at Cedar Falls a visit. A lot of fellows in that town who had better opportunities in their boyhood days, are still loitering around pool halls and saloons. Some of the most noted of the Methodist bishops were former Iowans. Bishop Stuntz was a boy on a farm in Story county. Bishop Lewis and Gov. Harding were brought up on adjoining farms in Osceola county. Bishops Edwards and Mathew Hughes both began their ministerial labors in Pottawattamie county. The late Bishop Bashford began preaching in the days when he married & N. was a prominent resident of that section. William Sunday, the world's greatest evangelist, was born on a farm in Story county, and S. Earl Taylor, the great missionary leader, was brought up in Buchanan county. George E. Roberts of New York, one of the most noted bankers in the United States, is a Fort Dodge product, and Theodore Shonts, who died recently, after demonstrating his capacity for managing the construction of the Panama canal and afterwards the great interborough railway systems in New York, was brought up at Centerville and married a daughter of the late Gov. Drake.

Former Iowans are making history for themselves and for their country these times. Herbert Hoover was brought up in Cedar county. John R. Motz, a world wide worker in Y. M. C. A. organizations, was a former resident of Allamakee county. Frank Mondell, republican leader in congress, representing a district in Wyoming, was brought up on a farm near Spirit Lake. Senator Reed, of Missouri, who is a bitter opponent of the league of nations, began the practice of law in Cedar Rapids. Mayor Smith, who came near being a victim of the mob's wrath in Omaha recently, is a former resident of Greenfield. John Fletcher, vice president of one of the big banks in Chicago, who recently thrilled the country by his appeal to labor to make the largest contribution of finished products possible that the world's shortage of manufactured goods might be overcome, is a former resident of Williamsburg. Frank Waters years ago was a boy in Cedar Falls on the main street crossing in the days when the old B. C. & N. was in existence. This did not require all of his time so he ran a boot blacking establishment as a kind of a side line. He is now general manager of the great Chicago & Northwestern railway system and he recently made old friends at Cedar Falls a visit. A lot of fellows in that town who had better opportunities in their boyhood days, are still loitering around pool halls and saloons. Some of the most noted of the Methodist bishops were former Iowans. Bishop Stuntz was a boy on a farm in Story county. Bishop Lewis and Gov. Harding were brought up on adjoining farms in Osceola county. Bishops Edwards and Mathew Hughes both began their ministerial labors in Pottawattamie county. The late Bishop Bashford began preaching in the days when he married & N. was a prominent resident of that section. William Sunday, the world's greatest evangelist, was born on a farm in Story county, and S. Earl Taylor, the great missionary leader, was brought up in Buchanan county. George E. Roberts of New York, one of the most noted bankers in the United States, is a Fort Dodge product, and Theodore Shonts, who died recently, after demonstrating his capacity for managing the construction of the Panama canal and afterwards the great interborough railway systems in New York, was brought up at Centerville and married a daughter of the late Gov. Drake.

Former Iowans are making history for themselves and for their country these times. Herbert Hoover was brought up in Cedar county. John R. Motz, a world wide worker in Y. M. C. A. organizations, was a former resident of Allamakee county. Frank Mondell, republican leader in congress, representing a district in Wyoming, was brought up on a farm near Spirit Lake. Senator Reed, of Missouri, who is a bitter opponent of the league of nations, began the practice of law in Cedar Rapids. Mayor Smith, who came near being a victim of the mob's wrath in Omaha recently, is a former resident of Greenfield. John Fletcher, vice president of one of the big banks in Chicago, who recently thrilled the country by his appeal to labor to make the largest contribution of finished products possible that the world's shortage of manufactured goods might be overcome, is a former resident of Williamsburg. Frank Waters years ago was a boy in Cedar Falls on the main street crossing in the days when the old B. C. & N. was in existence. This did not require all of his time so he ran a boot blacking establishment as a kind of a side line. He is now general manager of the great Chicago & Northwestern railway system and he recently made old friends at Cedar Falls a visit. A lot of fellows in that town who had better opportunities in their boyhood days, are still loitering around pool halls and saloons. Some of the most noted of the Methodist bishops were former Iowans. Bishop Stuntz was a boy on a farm in Story county. Bishop Lewis and Gov. Harding were brought up on adjoining farms in Osceola county. Bishops Edwards and Mathew Hughes both began their ministerial labors in Pottawattamie county. The late Bishop Bashford began preaching in the days when he married & N. was a prominent resident of that section. William Sunday, the world's greatest evangelist, was born on a farm in Story county, and S. Earl Taylor, the great missionary leader, was brought up in Buchanan county. George