

Save Work Time and Steps In the Kitchen

with this Curtis built-in ironing board. It is always ready for use, always clean, always handy, never in the way, no flimsy folding legs to worry with, no need for chairs or props, no heavy board to lift. Equally convenient to iron the week's wash or a single piece.

If you have flat irons, build the cabinet into the wall by the range so as to save steps in using the irons. If you use an electric iron, put the socket inside the cabinet.

This board is made of light, white pine, which will not warp, crack or split. It is contained within a built-in case made of durable yellow pine.

The board can be raised or lowered to suit the height of the person working at it.

If you build a new home you want to be sure to include this extraordinary convenience. But you can remodel your old kitchen and equip it, too, with this work-saver.

The cost is hardly worth mentioning compared to the backaches it will save you.

CURTIS

Decide where you want this ironing board in your kitchen and have it built-in. Begin now to save work, time and steps in the kitchen.

FUEL SITUATION IN DENISON

The fuel situation in Denison grows more intense from day to day. What was a possibility in the way of a short-ago of coal a short time ago is now a reality and every one almost without exception appreciates the gravity of the situation. The cold wave which a day or two ago swooped down upon us but aggravated the situation. Every day finds us nearer a coal famine and argues in favor of greater economy in the use of fuel.

Some of our people console themselves with the idea that we have not had a coal famine up to this time and as there are perhaps a number of tons of coal on hand, therefore no occasion for anticipated trouble, while those more conservative appreciate the fact that it will not do to wait until the last car load of coal is consumed before an effort of retrenchment in the use of coal is demanded.

A strong effort has been made to induce the public schools temporarily at least, to this time all efforts have proved unavailing, and the school board refuses to listen to the appeals of a large majority of the people who recognize that the coal supply is rapidly diminishing because the schools are not closed. The fact that the wages of the teachers will go on if the schools close seems to be the argument of the school board in keeping the schools going. They say that the pay roll amounts to so much a month and that the taxpayers of the city will not allow the payment of the salaries without teachers being employed by teaching.

These people seem to forget that it is liable to become a question of maintaining the public schools to the prejudice of life and health of our people. If the coal on hand can be conserved by strict economy the electric light plant can be kept going as well as the pump station which supplies the city with water. When it comes to the health and life of the community the public schools are of little consequence and should be given little consideration. If the schools should be closed for a short time it would result in nothing more disastrous than retarding temporarily the education of our children, which could be made up at a future time, but if the coal supply is exhausted to the extent that there is not enough left in the city to furnish proper heat for our people and they suffer in consequence, this presents a calamity which cannot be overcome.

The point is made that the city could have had a sufficient amount of coal to have prevented this emergency if the authorities had ordered coal long time. The point is further made that the school authorities had foresight enough to order a large supply of coal. This has nothing to do with the situation which confronts us. The fact remains that the school authorities have control of a large amount of coal which may be useful in maintaining the comfort and lives of many families in Denison and as long as this is true this coal must be kept in order to insure the life and health of our people.

We fear the school board is inclined to take upon itself credit for laying in a large supply of coal and to make that an excuse for holding onto it regardless of what the consequences may be to the public at large. We certainly think they are to be commended for their foresight, but we also believe they would recognize their obligation to devote the fuel on hand to the homes and essential industries.

In other cities like Omaha, Ft. Dodge, Des Moines, the public schools have been closed and treated as they should be as important, but not as important as some other agencies in the community. If the coal famine continues and human beings suffer because of having been denied coal which has been used to keep the public schools running, those who have been responsible for this condition will have reason to regret the part taken in bringing about this result. We have advocated and still advocate closing of churches in Denison if necessary in order to insure there being coal enough left to keep the fires burning in the homes. Pool halls, movie shows and all places such as these should give way and be closed if by closing them the fuel supply may be increased. These things are all right, but they should stand for nothing when health and life of the community are involved.

WELCOMED AS RIGHT SORT

Newcomer's Record Made Him Eligible to Inner Circles of Indiana's Big Penitentiary.

Frank P. Litschert, secretary to Governor Goodrich, spent several days at the state prison, Michigan City, recently, and being fortunate enough to get out again is telling the following yarn:

Warden Fogarty of the prison likes to make as easy as he can the hard lot of the prisoners, and has arranged for ball games at intervals within the prison walls. Convicts form the teams, and while there is some difficulty in getting one to act as umpire, the games usually are pulled off in good style.

A visitor from South Bend was at the prison one day when a game was scheduled, and being a former ball player it was suggested that he put on the prison uniform and get into the game "inco" and put a little professional "pop" into it.

Eventually the "ringer" was all fitted out and was placed in the lot. He was sitting on the bench when a typical convict "hard guy" swaggered up to him and sympathetically inquired: "Hello, bo! What ya in fer?"

The outsider was nonplused, but recovering in a moment he replied: "Oh, I beamed a guy."

"Did ya put 'im clean out?" again inquired the hard guy, with professional interest.

"Yep," said the ringer.

Whereupon the convict, fraternal to the core, gleefully commented: "Atta boy!"—Indianapolis News.

GREEKS HAD FORM OF TENNIS

That the Game is an Old One Is Sure, but Its Origin Is Hard to Trace.

Discussion of possible changes in the terminology of tennis naturally includes the name itself; and here there are many possible origins. The game, in one form or another, is very old. The Greeks knocked a ball back and forth and called the exercise "phennis," for which the Roman name was "tennilludum." "Phennis" and "tennilludum" were ancestors probably of the similar French sport in the middle ages, and modern tennis may, for that matter, have been named from the province of Tennes, where this game was exceedingly popular. Possibly, but improbably, the name is derived from the French "tenez," in the sense of "get ready." "Deuce" is generally accepted as another form of the French "deux," but "racquets" has several possible sources, the most likely perhaps being the old medieval word "racheite," meaning the palm of the hand, when the game was played like modern handball. Chaucer and Shakespeare both knew the game in England, and whether or not they played it, had doubtless looked on with satisfaction, as did Queen Elizabeth.

Would Seem to Be His Right. A suggestion has been made that if the British flag is to be again unfurled above Helgoland, Henry Hedger, verger of the parish at Herne Bay, Kent, Eng., be named to raise the emblem. He it was who hauled down the Union Jack August 9, 1890, from the island passed into the control of the German empire. He was then a coast guardman, and is now a vigorous man of between 60 and 70 years. Mrs. Hedger recalls her four years on the island chiefly by the birth of their youngest son, who grew up to be one of the contemptibles, who helped to hinder Prussia's march through France, but fell in the attempt. The family left the island the day it was taken out of British control, and while the pier was decorated with flags and bunting prior to the visit of the kaiser. All the British official population left at the same time.

Thermometer Trade to U. S. With adequate labor American manufacturers of thermometers, besides being able to supply fully the wants of the domestic trade, are in a position to build up a good export business, but, as is the case in so many industries, they are handicapped at present by the shortage of skilled workers. The making of thermometers is mostly a hand process, with a year's experience or more necessary for the development of a skilled worker.

Starting in the war period, when German goods were shut out of the country, the American thermometer industry has shown marked advancement. Before the war Germany controlled the market here as well as those in other countries, but nearly all of the business formerly held by Germany in South America has been procured by concerns in the United States. It is not believed that Germany will regain her position in the domestic market, and much of the South American business, it is predicted, will be held by the American manufacturers.—New York Tribune.
