A beginner on a brand-new golf course was having a particularly trying experience on a hole laid across a well-sloping but exceptionally pleasant golf. "When he did not miss the ball he hit the ground behind it. His caddie, summing up the position with cold, professional eye, remarked to his companion: "My word! It wouldn't cost him much if he was playing with new-laid eggs!" Modern Politeness. Where the crowds rub elbows, the polite man is now too often one who has something to sell. He is suave, bland, conciliatory, and complimentary, and it is an axiom in business that the poorer the article, the smoother must be the salesman. A grotesque situation—this assumption of the unnatural for a purpose, clearly visible to the one it is desired to influence—often by the concealment of truth.—Alan Southern in Harper's Magazine.

Sunday School Notes

March 7. John Writes About Christmas Love. I John 4: 7-21. There could hardly be a plainer setting forth of the true nature of God and perfect christian living than is given in our lesson this week. The declaration is made that "God is love," and then follows what that means to the world, and every professed christian. I well remember hearing a native of Burma who spoke in this country set forth the vital difference between the gods of heathen land and of the bible. No matter where you go, for example, it is ever found that in every religion, except the bible, God or the all powerful force is believed to be a person with hatred to man and the great end and object in life is to placate or fool this person. The words of our lesson tell us there is no use considering ourselves christians unless there is both love to God and our fellow men. All will recall that great verse of John 3:16 which tells us that God so loved the world He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him shall not perish but have everlasting life." The same John who wrote the fourth gospel wrote the three epistles and the book of Revelation. It is recorded of him that he was the disciple whom "Jesus loved." Thus by experiencing that wonderful love John responded with love for his Master. He makes plain that only by loving both God and man to the fullest can we be perfect in His sight. After glorifying God for His love to us in the gift of His Son Jesus, John gives the most important word of advice: "My God so loveth the world that He sent His only begotten Son to love one another." It is a crucial test of how far along one has gotten in christian living, by finding out just how far we come from loving our fellow men. This means not only our intimate friends but all races of men the world around. An honest confession will show that we all have occasion to be ashamed of our lack of love as compared with the standard of God's love to the peoples of this world. It is no trouble to love one's friends, but when it comes to loving those who do not want to be loved and are unappreciative we poor mortals do not come up to the example of Jesus in loving every one, even to dying for them. It was the great Apostle Paul who said in the famous "charity" chapter no matter what one did for others if not actuated by love it was as nothing. John in the lesson of today says that love for one another stands first in christian living. He says that perfect love casteth out fear. With this love there is no terror in looking to the judgment to come. One of the outstanding results of belief in the christian religion is a love and consideration for all mankind. It is only christian nations which are moved to help when the cry comes of famine, earthquakes, disease, doing great damage to life and property. The Red Cross has its origin and inspiration in the spirit of "love for suffering mankind" taught by the religion of Jesus. It was with a feeling of love for humanity, a desire to free the downtrodden, which caused this country to free Cuba from Spain, and to enter the late war against despotic Germany and Austria and cruel Turkey. There was rejoicing over the victories which said that not for generations will hereditary monarchs drive human beings to battle to please their lust for power. It was very bad that pretended christian nations were at war but the evidences of the christianity of the bible did not show themselves in the conduct of Germany in its invasion of Belgium and France. Our lesson says that if a man says he loves God and hateth his brother he is a liar. Hatred is just the opposite of love. It is a terrible thing to have in our lives. There is no true happiness in planning how to revenge and meet hate with hate. Communities in which hate rules the sentiment of the people are not pleasant ones to live in. Families where there is no love among the members have the floor pretty near a hell on earth. The children go astray with no respect for mother and father. It may be that we can not come up to the high calling of the christian fold by John in the lesson, but we can set our faces toward love in the heart for those about us. We can impress our associates that the love of God rules in our hearts and that we are trying to spread it abroad wherever we go. Brute force, hate, a dominating spirit, can do much, but nothing to be compared with a spirit of love, consideration for others, an attempt to put yourself in your neighbor's place and see things from his viewpoint. Let us all pray for the love which John tells about.

REMINISCENT OF OTHER DAYS Century-Old Building in Providence, Rhode Island, Is a Survival of Napoleonic Era.

A recent incident in Providence, Rhode Island, calls attention to an old landmark reminiscent of Napoleon and his construction of the Madeleine in Paris. Napoleon's building set a little fashion in America, and several structures more or less like it were built in different cities. The Arcade building, in Providence, is the only one of them left. Erected about 1820, it became an Ionic temple, that was also a center of retail trade, and its pillars remain today the largest monoliths in the country, except those which have been raised for the growing Cathedral of St. John the Divine, in New York. The record tells how they were cut by hand, in the town of Johnston, and dragged to Providence on sleds, nearly a hundred years ago. It tells also that the dedication of the building was a grand public affair, and that the temple was long held to be one of the architectural wonders of the United States. It is not of such commercial importance as it used to be, but one may be glad that the city has not lost such a reminder of the Napoleonic era.

Always Remove Splinter. "If you get a splinter of wood in your hand always take it out immediately," cautions a medical authority. "Some kinds of wood are especially poisonous to some people—the California redwood for example. Delay may cause a sore hand for several days, or even more serious discomfort."

Frank Opening Sentence. Mr. X., the London subeditor, was asked to write an article on superstition and imbecility. When the article was printed the opening sentence was found to be as follows: "That imbecility is not on the wane perusal of the following lines will amply demonstrate."

Of the total 120,138 are listed as negroes. The whites of native parentage are given as 1,206,028; of foreign parentage, 2,384,384, and of foreign birth, 2,525,202.

Comfort to Housewife

When there's a houseful of company to feed, and a big day's work ahead, the MONARCH Range is a comfort to the busy housewife. She knows her dinner will be well cooked, and on the table on time. She can depend on her MONARCH. The MONARCH Range is an investment that brings rich returns in comfort and satisfaction. It makes the work easier and pleasanter because it does away with all cooking uncertainties. And it is a permanent comfort in the home for it gives the same satisfactory service each succeeding year. The Joints Stay Tight—That's the Secret MONARCH Ranges cook right because they're built right. The steel plates are riveted to the castings of unbreakable iron, making a solid joint. Ranges with bolted seams filled with stove putty are not durable, economical or satisfactory because the joints do not stay tight. Another reason why MONARCH Ranges outlast other ranges is that they are protected against rust, which shortens the life of most ranges. Vitreous Enameled Flue Linings make rust impossible in a MONARCH. No stove blacking is needed on MONARCH Ranges for MONARCH tops are polished and then blued by our exclusive MICRO-PROCESS. Come in and inspect them.
