KATHARINE SIMS WEDS THURSDAY

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sims
Weds Mr. Paul T. Sturges, of Sioux City

CEREMONY AT BRIDE'S HOME

Wedding Costumes Beautiful—Bride
Gowned in Silver Cloth Trimmed
With Silver Chantilly Lace

Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sims occurred the marriage of their daughter, Katharine, to Mr. Paul T. Sturges, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Sturges, of Sioux City.

The ceremony took place before the fireplace, which was lanked with ferns, shasta daisies and white hollyhocks. Smilax and Killarney roses were also used in the living room, while Russell roses and smilax were used in the dining room. Daisies, hollyhocks and smilax decorated the staircase.

After Jensen's "Benediction," by Miss Winifred Wright, the wedding march was played and Mr. Sturges, attended by George W. Sturges, of Kingsley, his brother, took their places before the altar. Both wore corsage bouquets of white and pink sweet peas. The bride, daintily gowned in silver cloth with trimming of silver chantilly lace and wearing a tulle veil fashioned in a Dutch cap with lace points, was met at the foot of the stairs by her father, and entered on his arm. Her bouquet was white sweet peas with a pink shower. Rev. M. M. Cable, pastor of First Methodist church, performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Jacob Sims, mother of the bride, wore a gown of corn flower blue georgette, and Mrs. Sturges, mother of the groom, was dressed in beaded tan georgette. Both wore corsage bouquets of pink and white sweet peas.

Following congratulations light refreshments were served, the bride cutting the bride's cake which was in the center of the dining room table surrounded by smilax.

Mrs. Sturges is a graduate of the State University of Iowa, where she was affiliated with the Gamma Phi Beta society. For the past two years she has taught in the Sioux City high school. She is a young woman of attractive and cordial personality and her friendship is valued.

MRS. "JIM" JONES DIES AT OMAHA

Wife of Former Crawford County Sheriff
Died at Her Home in Omaha
on Last Friday

LIVED HERE 25 YEARS AGO

Family Moved Into Denison From Otter Creek Township When Mr. Jones Was Elected Sheriff

From the Omaha World-Herald we take the following account of the death of Mrs. J. D. Jones, the wife of James D. Jones, at one time sheriff of Crawford county:

"Mrs. J. D. Jones, who was the last surviving charter member of the South Omaha Baptist church, died at her home, 4512 South Twenty-second street, at 5 o'clock Friday morning. She was 79 years old, and lived in Omaha for forty-five years. Two sons, Frank A. of Omaha, and C. E. of Houston, Texas, survive her.

"Funeral services will take place at her home at 2 P. M. Saturday, and burial will be in Forest Lawn cemetery."

Mrs. Jones will be favorably remembered in Denison by many of the older citizens. The Jones family moved into Denison from Otter Creek township after Mr. Jones became sheriff of the county. In 1875 Mr. Jones was elected to the board of supervisors and later to the office of sheriff.

Formerly the farm hand had to know how to milk the cows, but if he works for the city folks he must know a lot of other things to repair the touring car.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kropp and family and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kropp and daughter spent Sunday at Lakewood park.

The Herman Adams and Frank Retman families, of Denison, were Sunday callers at the H. G. Retman home, 2024 N. 1st street, Monday.

Charence Clauson autoed over from Deloit Wednesday afternoon to look after business matters. He reports business as good in the new venture at Deloit, in the auto and repair business.

From reports brought in by farmers the wheat crop in this locality is going to be a complete failure. The prospects until recently were most favorable, but a couple of hot days after the rains last week ruined it completely.

Although the acreage in this locality is not large it will be a total loss.

The new residence erected by Otto Berggren on his farm northeast of town is rapidly being constructed by contractor S. M. Sjogren, and his crew of carpenters. The new house will be a modern and cozy home for Mr. Berggren and family.

THOUGHTS TURN TO CRAWFORD

Mrs. Sylvester Horr, Writing From

Often Thinks of Old Crawford

DELOIT FOLKS VISIT HORR'S

Crops of All Kinds in South Dakota Are Exceptionally Good This Season—
Lester Albright Sustains Loss

Thunder Hawk, S. D., July 17, 1920.
Editor Review:
It has been some time since I have written for the pages of the Review. Our thoughts turn homeward to Crawford county, the land of our birth, as we had the pleasure of entertaining our friends, Mr. and Mrs. Lacey Myers and Mr. and Mrs. Heman Newcom and two little boys Wednesday night. They were passing through to the Yellowstone National Park. We received quite a lot of home news, among which was that Bert McKim had resigned as rural carrier at Deloit last spring. We were quite disappointed in not getting the news through the paper. We, who are moved from there, appreciate all the news. What would not seem like news to you people would be enjoyed by us.

South Dakota has been having plenty of rain this season, or at least our part of the country, as far as I know, and I think the rain is general, and crops are immense. Gardens are fine, wild grass is also fine. One can make hay anywhere the grass is not pastured. Stock of all kinds is rolling fat; milk cows are pouring out the milk that produces the cream that makes the farmer's pocketbook swell to its fullness and puts on the smiles, and enlarges their bank account. Our crops this year consist of wheat, oats, sorghum, millet, corn and flax.

Many of you will remember A. D. Albright, of Deloit, who has resided here for several years. His son, Lester, had the misfortune to lose his barn and granary by fire Wednesday evening, the 14th; also his nice new Dodge car. We understand he was working at his car at his home and the fire exploded, blowing up his car and setting the barn and granary on fire. It is a big loss. We do not know whether insurance was carried or not.

We celebrated this year the fifth in a neighborhood picnic at the home of our daughter, Mrs. C. D. McKim, and family. Had plenty of ice cream and lemonade. A long table fairly groaned under its weight of good things, and three tables were served. Croquet was played and the children enjoyed swinging and the older ones enjoyed music and singing. Before leaving for their homes all joined in singing the "Star Spangled Banner." A new country cannot be best for enjoying a gathering of any kind.

With much loving remembrance to all friends, from your old correspondent,
Mrs. S. Horr.

NOTICE TO OUR CUSTOMERS
Inasmuch as the wholesale house with whom we do business demand their cash every thirty days, and realizing that all mail-order houses demand their cash by the same order, we feel it no more than right that we have a settlement every month. We wish to accommodate our customers all we can, and expect to do so, but we have not the financial backing, nor the capital the wholesale or mail-order houses have, therefore we must have a settlement at the end of each month. All accounts that are over that time will be charged 8 per cent interest. It is not that we are afraid of the account, but we must do business as other men do or fall by the way side. We thank you for the past business and solicit a continuance.

News and Comment About Iowa People and Events

BY
J. W. JARNAGIN

Julius F. Breitenstein is dead at Burlington at the age of 76 years. He was a member of the crew of the Merrimac when it whipped the Monitor in the war of the great rebellion. At the Grand Army encampments he thrilled his comrades by reciting the thrilling events of that great conflict upon the Atlantic ocean. Mr. Breitenstein enjoyed a national reputation as a trap shot expert, being a familiar figure at the big gun tournaments for years where he won scores of trophies.

A few miles down the Mississippi river from McGregor are the far famed admiring rocks that have been a source of admiration and wonder ever since the state was settled. These so-called rocks are more sand than rock and there are all kinds of coloring in the sand under the huge banks that support them. Recently a company of sightseers were admiring the scene at the foot of the deep gulch and Miss Ruth Miller, of Waterloo, was in the act of talking a picture when several tons of rocks, sand and earth high up the delevity gave way. Miss Miller and a twelve year old boy were crushed to death and numerous others had a narrow escape. The ravine in which the pictured rocks are situated is very steep and in several places is overhung by cliffs of sand stone and dirt. The scenery in the gorge is very fine and hundreds of sightseers climb from the valley below to the height of the admiring rocks above. The recent accident has convinced the people that there is need of some protection and the board of supervisors of Clayton county have been appealed to.

A tight money market which has caused the closing down of several large iron industries, releasing thousands of laborers, is causing a flood of surplus labor in the harvest fields of Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska and the Dakotas. As a result of this surplus and federal employment bureau heads in Des Moines inaugurated a movement to check the steady chain of job seekers flowing here from the east.

Employment in a landing here and Iowa may find itself flooded with men without work. A. L. Urick, state commissioner of labor, George E. Albert, federal labor superintendent, and Arthur Bishop, county labor agent, are mapping out a plan to meet the situation.

Upon the death of George W. Gilbert at his farm home near Prairie City, Jasper county, his son, Jesse M. Gilbert was given $14,337.38 in cash as his interest in the estate left him by his father. Jesse made some lucky real estate deals on his own account during the land boom last summer and cleared up about $11,000. With $25,000 in cash he started for the oil fields in California. That was in the last week in April. He promised his brother, John, that he would write him as soon as he arrived at his destination, but nothing has been heard from him. Efforts have been made to locate him without avail. He has been traced to within thirty miles of his destination, but there the trail ends and nothing can be heard regarding him. The heirs have an apprehension regarding his safety. He still has about $2,000 due him from his father's estate, the administrator says.

William Vanderhamm, of Hawarden, lost a gold ring 32 years ago while shocking wheat on his farm. It was his wedding ring and he greatly regretted his loss. About 18 years ago there was born into the Vanderhamm home a son named Elmer. While plowing one on his father's farm a couple of weeks ago the young man discovered some glittering object between the corn rows and when he picked it up here was the ring his father had lost 14 years before the boy was born. The ring was in a perfect state of preservation but Vanderhamm is much heavier now than in his younger days so he had to have a jeweler add a little to its circumference before he could wear it.

The belief that government aid to highway improvement will recognize gravel as a competent material in road construction and thereby give counties desiring to improve the primary road system with this material valuable aid has created much interest in heating gravel deposits. There was a time not so very many years ago when land underlaid with gravel was regarded as worthless, but now such land brings fabulous prices. Gravel has been discovered in about every county that has voted to pave its highways. It is announced by the counties alone own 75 gravel pits and state highway commission that Iowa lose 4. The commission says also that its investigation indicates that there is in sight enough gravel within the state for all road construction needs for the next five years. Counties are paying a wide range of prices for land with gravel deposits, sometimes as much as $2000 per acre and again as little as $500 per acre and gravel is sold as a by-product of road building and when screened and cleaned, for road and bridge concrete, is from $300 to $500.

Since the creation of a conservation commission charged with the selection of sites suitable for state parks there has been considerable marking of the places called to its attention that visits may be made later on. Between Knoxville and Oskaloosa on the Des Moines river, are "The Bluffs," being some 400 feet high. The bluffs have been visited by thousands during the past few years. Near the bluffs, Bellefontaine, now only a memory, was a thriving town before the days of railroads. That was in the last week in early day. Rochester, a few miles away across the river, was also a promising trading center. This movement is being taken by the historical name. Representatives of the state park commission are soon to visit the overhanging bluffs and will surround them with a view of selecting it for a state park.

At Kellogg, in Jasper county, suit was brought in Judge Burke's court by Moberly & Co., dealers in auto accessories, to recover 30 cents from W. H. Loyall, who refused to pay for the articles purchased. Two fuses priced at 15 cents each. A change of venue was taken to Justice Carey's court at Newton. A jury decided that the articles were not as recommended and found for the defendant. The Kellogg firm attorneys were taken to the state supreme court. Court costs and attorney fees already amount to over $100.

Twenty-five men qualified for the state rifle team in the two day elimination shoot at Camp Dodge range, and sixteen will be selected from this group to represent the state at the national tournament which is held at Camp Perry, O. in August. E. R. Wakefield, of Des Moines, won first honors with a high score of 473 out of a possible 500 and B. G. Simms, of Des Moines, was a close second. Adjutant General Lutz will submit the names of the eighteen men and they will then be appointed by Governor Harding. Expenses in the national shoot, which extends through the month of August, are all paid by the government. Thos. Sutherland, of Cedar Rapids, will captain the Iowa team at Camp Perry. Sixty-two men from all points of the state entered the meet, among them being Clarence Andrews of New London, a lad of 13, who scored equally with men many years his senior in the semi-finals. The shoot was under the direction of E. R. Stotts, of Des Moines, and Adjutant General Lasher. Camp Dodge officials placed one of the barracks at the disposal of the shooters and assigned Capt. M. S. Eddy of the 39th infantry as officer of the range. The rifles, the regulation army Springfield, and munitions were furnished by the camp.

Gerald Dixon, a Knoxville lad, accompanied a number of companions to the Des Moines river for an outing. While fishing and bathing the boys were reclined upon the grass under a clump of trees to rest. Young Dixon went to sleep. A few minutes later Elmer Jones, one of the young men who was with him, glanced up and was terrified to see a big snake coiled about the face. Securing a forked stick he succeeded in uncoiling the reptile from Jones' body just before he awoke boy's neck and arms with its head waving from side to side before his with a cry of terror. The boy was not harmed and in excitement the snake made its escape.

Expectation that the educational work at Camp Dodge will progress with a close second, Adjutant General Lasher, who has directed the last year was expressed by Col. H. R. Perry at the Des Moines recruiting office. The schools at Camp Dodge furnish practical training to a large number of the young men in almost any line, and the instructors he has are university teachers. Almost all the Camp Dodge instructors are instructors in the state university. The heart of agricultural school there is the dean of the school of agriculture at Ames. The schedule for enlisted privates nowadays is briefly this: Military work in the morning, training in the afternoon. "Ultimately," said Lieutenant Thom, "training in army schools will be recognized as equivalent to training in regular schools."

This movement is being taken by the historical name. Representatives of the state park commission are soon to visit the overhanging bluffs and will surround them with a view of selecting it for a state park.
