

TAPERED ASPHALT SHINGLES

Thick at the butt and tapered to the top, just like a wood shingle, and covered with a good coat of crushed slate either red or green.

This is the only tapered shingle on the market as the manufacturers have a patent on them and we have the agency for this territory.

The manufacturers guarantee satisfaction. We have sold several car loads of them and they are O. K.

Best of all the price is about the same as the common flat shingle.

We also handle the common shingles in the single shingle and slabs, and all kinds of asphalt roofing. Have a good stock on hand.

Since the death of Judge Gaynor of the supreme court there has been some little doubt expressed as to how his successor on the bench should be selected. The best method in the opinion of the committee has the power to nominate his successor and the chances are that this method will be adopted. If the state central committee is called upon to make the selection it looks very much as if Judge Albert, of Jefferson, would be nominated as a candidate. His splendid record on the bench and the impression which he made at the state convention at Cedar Rapids appealed to the leaders of the party and no doubt will impress them when they come to making the selection. Our understanding is that Judge Albert has strong claims for this nomination and will be the choice of the committee to make the nomination. When we select a candidate for the bench and select a vice president is making, that it all depended upon the number of towns to be visited by the candidate. No sooner was his name mentioned in the papers than he struck out for a trip to the Pacific coast and back again, not forgetting that he should appear on the platform at every station where the train stopped. The writer happened to be in one of the large towns of North Dakota through which his train passed about eleven o'clock at night, and word had been sent on in advance of his coming that he would be prepared to meet the people at that hour of the night. A very few people were at the station when the train pulled in and the candidate alighted from the train and selected a post office the depot platform from which he addressed those who had come to meet him. His remarks were somewhat confusing as he drifted from one point to another with lightning rapidity. His chief argument against the republican party was that the party was not progressive and its candidate was a reactionary. He was not at all in making the claim that Mr. Harding's nomination was brought about by old line republicans rather than the progressive element of the party. He forgot to mention the fact that the party of the gang that nominated Mr. Cox and Roosevelt at San Francisco. He should have told the crowd that the candidates at San Francisco were nominated by the old democratic machine made up of characters like Boss Murphy and other Tammany leaders. When comparison is made of the elements responsible for the nomination of the different candidates for president and vice president, the republicans will have little to fear. The truth is the republican organization this year is a unit and so called progressives and standstillers are vying with each other in their enthusiastic support of Harding and Coolidge. The republican party is more of a unit this year than it has been for many years and a spirit of confidence prevails throughout the country that this is to be a republican year. Governor Cox apparently has made up his mind that his success depends upon one point to another with lightning rapidity. He is making the claim that the republicans that a large campaign fund is to be subscribed in order to elect the republican ticket. He seems to have a vision that millions of dollars are being subscribed by republicans to buy the election. This, of course, is the popular argument but the difficulty is that there are no facts to justify the charge. There is much more reason to believe that while the democrats are making the charge that the republicans are raising a large campaign fund, that the democrats themselves are engaged in this particular work and are trying to cover up their tracks by charging that the republicans are doing the same thing. Mr. Cox is evidently possessed of an unusual amount of nerve to go out on the stump to attack his political opponents in the way he is doing. When he is called down and demand is made upon him to produce proof of these assertions he will find that it is easier to make a charge than it is to prove it. Everyone knows that the republicans are having troubles of their own in raising funds and

Mr. Cox perhaps knows this as well as anyone, but he is working his campaign for all there is in it regardless of fact to sustain it. The dignified campaign which Senator Harding is making commends itself to the thinking public rather than the boisterous and intemperate method of procedure which seems to characterize the conduct of both candidates on the democratic ticket. The American people will favor the candidate who most appeals to them that he is a statesman rather than a politician. Governor Cox is long on politics but evidently short on statesmanship, while evidently the reverse is true as to the republican candidate. Up to this time the conservative thought of the country is with the republican party and we believe this sentiment will grow as the campaign progresses.

A VISIT TO THE NORTHWEST

The United States is so big and varied in its scenery and resources that one is not able to judge of its vastness by simply visiting one state or even several states. The only way to gain a comprehensive view of the country is to visit the various sections of the country. Denison people have not been slow to profit by this suggestion because every day we hear of someone from Denison taking a trip to some remote portion of the United States, where conditions are studied and compared with those of our own country. The Editor of the Review but recently took an automobile trip which carried him through northwestern Iowa, western Minnesota and eastern North Dakota and South Dakota which furnished a real entertainment and from the standpoint of knowledge acquired of the sections visited proved exceedingly profitable. When we were in the north ten days ago, it was raining and prospects were for undesirable roads, but within two or three hours, we found the rain had stopped, the sun had asserted itself and the roads were growing better, and by the time we arrived at Sioux City, we found roads were in good condition for travel. After leaving Sioux City, we found the roads in very good shape. From there to Hawarden, where we stayed the first night. The next day we passed through Sioux Falls and Brookings, and as far as Ortonville in western Minnesota. On Tuesday we went north along the Ortonville, we went north along the line of Minnesota and North Dakota as far as Fargo and west from Fargo to Mandan, where we stayed the third night. The next day was spent in the vicinity of Medina and Cleveland, N. Dak., and in the afternoon, we drove to Bismarck where we stayed the night. On Monday morning we crossed the Missouri river on a ferry and made our headquarters for two days at Mandan, going into the country west of Mandan some sixty or seventy miles and visiting several sections of that portion of the state. On Wednesday morning we recrossed the Missouri river to Bismarck, and journeyed north some 25 miles to Williston, and from there east to Regan some fifteen miles east of Williston, where a considerable portion of time was spent visiting farms and neighborhoods. After this we traveled as far east as Tuttle on the Pingree branch of the Northern Pacific railroad, and from there south across the country to Steele, on the main line of the railroad. From there we proceeded as far east as Jamestown and south from Jamestown into South Dakota, through Ellendale and Aberdeen, and from there to Sioux City via Redfield. Upon arriving in Denison, we found that we had covered two thousand miles in a trip lasting not over eleven days. Six days of this trip were spent on several occasions before and were struck with the marked improvement in both the cities and country since our first acquaintance with that locality. Our first trip was in 1913, when we found a village of three hundred people where is now a busy commercial center or not less than fifteen or twenty thousand people. The city of Fargo, in North Dakota, Jamestown and Bismarck are all progressive cities with from six to fifteen thousand people, while but a few years ago their population was but a small fraction of what they can boast of today. The country, but a few years ago, was a vast prairie with here and there a farm opened up while today the country is under a high state of improvement with splendid farms, with improvements which equaling the quality of what can be found in Iowa or other southern or eastern states. Great large farms are being developed on every hand and fields with splendid crops of both small grain and corn. It was exceptional to find a good field of corn in North Dakota a few years ago while now there is little difference in the prospect of the crop between that country and this. We do not recall that at any time we have been more impressed with the appearance of a country than with what we saw in the trip north from Sioux City to Fargo and west from Fargo to the Missouri river. We cannot better describe the appearance of the country than to say it is one vast field of grain, extending the whole distance. Most of the grain has been harvested and was in the shock except where threshing machines were in operation. The yield of wheat is all that could be expected except in cases where the rust has caused some damage. There are certain kinds of wheat subject to rust more than others. They have a

THE PHILBROOK WEDDING

The marriage of Rev. Rowland Philbrook, son of Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Philbrook, former residents of Denison, and Miss Gwendolyn Taylor took place last Wednesday at Sioux City, at St. Thomas' Episcopal church at nine o'clock in the morning. The wedding was largely attended.

Rowland grew to young manhood here in Denison attending the public schools and graduated from the high school. He attended the state university of Iowa and later the Episcopal college at Philadelphia where he prepared himself for the ministry. Since completing the course there he has been stationed in Wyoming and for the past year has been the pastor of the Episcopal church at Rawlins, where he is also chaplain of the state penitentiary. He is a young man of exemplary character, possessed of those qualities which are necessary for the ministry.

We quote the following account of the wedding which appeared in the Sioux City Journal knowing that it will be of interest to his many friends here: This morning at 9 o'clock occurred the marriage of Miss Gwendolyn Taylor, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James F. Taylor, and Rev. Rowland Philbrook, of Rawlins, Wyo. The ceremony was read at St. Thomas Episcopal church by the Venerable Dray, arch deacon of Wyoming. As the members of the wedding party entered the church, W. Curtis Snow, organist, played the wedding march.

The bride was given away in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white satin made with a train and a veil of tulle which was held in place with orange blossoms. She carried a white prayer book from which hung streamers of white ribbons, finished with bow knots and white rose buds.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Doris Taylor, as maid of honor. Her gown of pink organdie and hat of the same shade were in keeping with the bride's colors, pink and delft blue. Miss Taylor carried an old fashioned bouquet of blue flowers.

Miss Ethel Casey, of Chicago, as bride's maid, wore an organdie frock of blue with white roses and a bouquet of pink flowers. Her hat of blue completed her costume.

Rev. Mr. Philbrook was attended by Rev. Howard Brinker, of Douglas, Wyo., as best man, and Robert Knott, of Sioux City.

A wedding breakfast was served in the home of the bride's parents after the ceremony at 1 o'clock. Small tables centered in the bride's colors and pink roses and sweet peas predominated.

Rev. and Mrs. Philbrook left at noon for Denver where they will remain a several weeks' outing. After September 15th, they will reside at Rawlins, Wyo.

Dak.; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Rees, and children, of Dunlap; Mrs. Mary Baker, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Stoddard, of Wanatchee, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lyon, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bell, and Mr. and Mrs. Myron Bell, all of Denison.

The B. Philhelia class of the Methodist Sunday School was delightfully entertained by Mrs. Ira Gillmor, and their teacher, Mrs. M. A. Penney, at the Gillmor home on Monday evening.

The party was in honor of Misses Marie Weiss, who expects to enter school in Chicago this fall, Gladys Buckley, who will teach school near Schleswig, Escher, Randall, and the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Zella Gillmor, who will attend the university of Nebraska.

The party of twelve young girls was exceptionally gay and in overflowing spirits and the evening was very much enjoyed with music and games. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Mrs. Frank Young, Mrs. W. D. McAhren and Mrs. Milton McAhren, of Sioux City, are being very much entertained. On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Patterson had these ladies and their hostesses for dinner. Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Norris entertained them at their country place for the day.

On Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Conner had them as guests over night for a breakfast, Wednesday morning the bride was attended by her sister, O. A. Patterson and Mrs. W. W. Ferguson entertained at a Kensington when their old friends were happy to meet them again. Thursday, Mrs. Hal C. Conner gave quite a bride-like appearance, so consequently the guests guessed the rest. A large bowl of party flowers was a beautiful centerpiece and place cards to correspond were used. A most delicious five-course dinner was served. After a most delightful afternoon and evening, the wedding party returned to town by Elizabeth Connelly, of Dubuque, and Mrs. Mae Lyons, of Chicago, were the out of town guests. Miss McAndrews was given a kitchen and a beautiful Omaha last week at the home of Mrs. M. McVey.

Miss Edna Mae Simpson entertained a number of her friends at an evening party Tuesday at Farwell hotel when they were given a large and beautiful dinner. Games and music furnished the fun for the evening, and dainty refreshments were served at a late hour.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Kuehnle will have ten guests for seven o'clock dinner on Thursday evening, when Mrs. L. W. Conner, Mrs. D. C. Conner, Mrs. A. L. Haas, of Des Moines, will be the honor guests.

Tom Moorhead of Ida Grove, visited friends here yesterday.

The Denison public schools will open September 6th.

Many Denison people will attend the state fair at Des Moines this week and next.

WHAT IS THRIFT?

—Thrift, in its broad sense, is handling money wisely.

—It is getting the most out of every dollar of the income.

—It is the power of making one's dollars bring more dollars after he has earned them.

—It is administering one's earnings with an eye to the future as well as the present.

—It is using one's money, much or little, as an instrument with which to weave strong fibers into the character.

—It is the power of making one's dollars bring more dollars after he has earned them.

—It does not make misers. It teaches how to spend as well as how to save. We pay interest on time deposits.
