

MANY CHANGES IN PASTORATES

Rev. Father M. F. Nolan of Mo. Valley resigns; Father McDermott of Woodbine goes to Atlantic; Father Hansen at Stuart

CHURCH SUPPER NETS $100.00

Supper Under Supervision of Mrs. D. V. Moore, as Chairman, Froyes Big Success—Candy Booth Well Patronized

Dunlap, Nov. 23—Special—

It is noticed that Rev. M. F. Nolan of St. Patrick's church at Missouri Valley resigned last week to take effect at once. Father Nolan has been in charge of this parish for over thirteen years, but has been in poor health the past two years and this is his reason for resigning. He has many friends in the church and also among the non-Catholics. Father McDermott of Woodbine has been transferred to Atlantic, Iowa. He will be greatly missed by his congregation at Woodbine, also among the members of the American Legion where he has kept an active interest since the war. Both these vicars were present at the farewell services given in honor of Father Hansen of St. Patrick's church here when he left for Stuart, Iowa. This will make quite a few changes in the immediate vicinity.

The Misses Bessie Lehan and Jennie Burke were in Logan, Friday morning, for a visit to their parents. They report the roads in fine condition. A prenuptial shower was given at the home of Mrs. J. T. Slattery on Friday evening, at which time about twenty were present. This was in honor of Miss Hawn, whose marriage takes place soon. Mrs. Slattery was assisted in serving by the Misses Marie Sullivan and Mary Shields. A delightful two course luncheon was served and the evening was very pleasantly passed at cards and other amusements. The bride-to-be received many beautiful presents.

L. K. Moore came up from Omaha Monday afternoon, returning Tuesday. Superintendent of the public school was one of the passengers for Ames to attend the football game as was C. C. Caldwell and his son Clark. Mr. Harold Haight who has been spending a few days here as a passenger for Woodbine Thursday.

Mrs. I. P. Pounds came up from Woodbine for the week end here. Dr. Walter L. Reichel and the mistress of the house, Mrs. E. B. Burn, Friday evening about six P. M. when he and some others had driven it out near the river and were hunting. When first seen it was in flames, a number from town witnessed the fire which was quite spectacular. This was quite a misfortune to Doctor, although he carried an ambulance and, although he attended the foot ball game in Ames Saturday, returning the same day.

At the Contest held Friday evening at the high school Leah Service received first in the Dramatic class and Mildred Rogers second. In the humorous, Miss McIntosh first, and Margaret Robertson second. Oratorical, Clark Caldwell first and Sidney Robertson second. Leah Service receiving first over all. The next appearance will be in the triangular contest held by the three towns, Dunlap, Woodbine and Denison. The appearance will be at the district contest later in the year.

The supper given by the ladies of the church last Thursday evening was one of the biggest given there for some time and netted the ladies about $100. These parties were entertained at the supper one composed of the teachers of the high school, another Mrs. N. Thomas entertained eight ladies, viz Mesdames Anna Foush, Fred Astengel, J. E. Brown, G. E. Nordaker, Anna Colburn, A. K. Jones, J. J. Moorhead. Another was entertained by Mrs. Bertha Craft and was composed of Mesdames J. S. Hull, George Thompson, Izza Nicolls, Mrs. J. W. Denniston, Mrs. Denniston, A. N. Jordan, Robertson. One class of Sunday school girls sold candy at a booth and received quite a small sum which is to be used by them as an individual class. The supper was under the supervision of Mrs. D. V. Moore as chairman of the C. C. of the church and was considered very much of a success. Many more people might have been served only that the supply of food gave out and people had to be turned away.

BOLD THIEVES IN "MESPOT"

Householder of Basra Relates Experience Which He Declares is No Means Uncommon.

The securing of public safety is only one of many improvements the British have made in Mesopotamia but it seems to be the one that has chiefly impressed the public mind. The first person who spoke to me of it was an Oriental teacher of Arabic, Maude Radford Warren writes in the Saturday Evening Post. We sat in a house in Basra on a cloudy evening, looking out of the window, watching the shadowy forms of passersby.

"You will notice that the Arab houses have blank walls facing the street," he told me.

"If the walls are broken by windows these are barred. If there are doors these are small or else secured. Do not think this is done for the sake of keeping the women sheltered or the sun off. It is to keep thieves out."

"One night I was sitting in this house with my friends when a knock came at the door. First I looked out of the window. I saw a number of people on two sides of the house. I went to the door and I said: 'Who is there?' The answer was: 'I am a thief.'"

"I suppose in America if anyone was so lumatic as to say that, you would telephone for the police. But here under the Turks it was wise to let the thieves in. Why not? There were too many of them, and they would have been angry and would have killed some of us in revenge some day. So we let in the man who knocked, and some of his friends came with him."

"They did not make polite greetings, but they took all the people late separate rooms, the women in one, the children in another, and the men in a third. This was because if they had been left together they might have secretly encouraged one another not to tell where money or jewels were hidden."

"All the people in the house were very much afraid, and they told where their hiding places were, but said that they had been robbed only a few weeks previous and they had nothing left."

"The thieves were very angry. 'We must have something,' they said. So they went for a cart, and they took what furniture and bedding and cooking dishes they wanted, and then went away. They left us our lives, and that was about all."

"You see how quiet these streets are even now, about nine o'clock? That is not entirely because Arabs prefer to go to bed early, though they do not keep late hours. But they have the old habit of not taking risks at night."

Odd Japanese Legends. There are many delightful legends about old statues of the gods in Japan. In the Hase temple at Kamakura, high on the crest of a hill overlooking the bay, is a great gilded kwannon of camphor wood—an eleven-faced image of the Goddess of Mercy—which for centuries has hearkened to the prayers of the fishermen. A long time ago, in the dim past when dragons were abroad in the land and gods condescended to play with men, some fishermen saw a great light shining out at sea, writes Elsie F. Well in Asia. They sailed in their junk toward the light and found the image and ever since have worshipped at her shrine.

At the same time a similar image of Kwannon, also made of camphor wood, floated in at Yamato and was placed in the Hase-no-Kwannon, a temple that was the favorite resort of courtiers in the Nara period. It is still today a popular temple for pilgrims, who come in the spring, when the cherries are in full blossom and all the lanterns are lighted to transport themselves back to the days when the gods were young.

The Mango Industry. The office of foreign seed and plant introduction of the United States Department of Agriculture has assembled, through the work of its explorers and through exchange with the British East Indian departments of agriculture, one of the largest collections of selected mango varieties in the world. There are now fruiting at the plant introduction field station, Miami, Fla., about twenty varieties this year, and these represent the selections from more than seventy sorts of this great fruit. Some of these have scarcely more fiber than a freestone peach and can be cut open lengthwise and eaten as easily with a spoon as a Rocky Ford cantaloupe. They have an indescribably agreeable aroma reminiscent of pineapples. The mango tree, when it is in bearing, is a gorgeous sight, for it is a large long-lived tree and the golden-yellow fruits as they hang in great clusters from the dark green foliage make one of the great tropical plant sights of the world.—Indianapolis News.

Wanted Further Information. The suddenness with which the great war broke out, and the confusion of mind that overtook persons who were not in a position to follow closely the course of events day by day, is amusingly shown by this story told in Everybody's Magazine.

A British administrative official, stationed in a village in the interior of Africa, just after the outbreak of war received the following telegram from his bureau chief: "War declared. Arrest all enemy aliens at once."

Two days later the bureau chief was handed the following reply: "Have arrested two Frenchmen, a Dutchman, three Germans, two Americans, a Pole, three Russians and an Italian. Please tell me whom we are at war with?"

THANKSGIVING KNOWN TO ALL

Every Nation and Race Has Had Some Form of Thanksgiving for a Bountiful Harvest

INDIANS HELD FESTIVAL DAY

Long Before the White Race Came to This Country the Indians Held a Day of Celebration

Thanksgiving day is made up from parts of celebrations of that day by other peoples. The time is taken from one, the feast from another, and the gathering together of the people from still another. Long before the white race came to this country the Indians held a festival day during this season of the year. They had a great feast of roasted deer and bear, boiled corn and stewed pumpkin, and the women and the warriors partook of it on equality.

The feast was kept up far into the night, and was followed by a dance of the braves, keeping time to the songs sung by the dusky maids of the forests.

Thanksgiving also owes something to the religious rites of ancient nations. The oldest of these is the Jewish feast of the tabernacles, with its magnificent festivities. The festival occurred annually, at the end of the harvest season, and continued for eight days. Sometimes it was held as early as the 25th of September, but never later than the 20th of October. It was the feast of the "ingathering" of the harvest of all the fruits, the corn, the wheat, and the oil. The labors of the field were then over for the year, and the feast was an occasion of joyousness and gladness to the people. At Jerusalem, where they lived in booths this season, the nation assembled in processions took place each day, and at night the court of the temple was illuminated by lamps and flames of incense. At the end of seven days' joy the booths were dismantled and the people celebrated an eighth day of solemn rest.

The glory of the great Hebrew festival has long since passed away, but the fundamental principle—that every one should rejoice in the fruits of the harvest, together with the whole people of the land "before the Lord"—has entered into the harvest observances of Christian lands.

TO QUOTE WISELY AND WELL

One must be a wise reader to quote wisely and well. And then what service is rendered his reader by advertising him where the good things are, besides the modesty of the practice. An author should esteem himself honored by being wisely quoted; his fame is published the more widely, as the volume circulates and is read. Let wit celebrate wit with its own overflowing hospitality.—A. Bronson Alcott.
