HOMICIDE.

ANDY FRAZIER INSTANTLY KILLED.

George Haverstock and Jack Schuster Die from the Effects of Their Wounds.

On last Monday evening, about seven o'clock, our citizens were startled at hearing the terrible news that Andy Frazier was instantly killed and George Haverstock mortally wounded by Jack Schuster.

Immediately a stream of people poured out to the scene of the tragedy. Excitement was at its height. Sheriff Clark arrived early on the spot, and on the instant parties started in different directions in pursuit of the one who fired the fatal shots—Jack Schuster.

Some of the parties were absent all night, but it was reported for the one which went to Harper's rancho to overtake Schuster. They found him in a thicket and called upon him to halt. He did not obey the order but started to run, and he had a revolver in his hand, the same with which he had committed the deed.

As the party did not wish to take any chances, they again ordered him to stop, and on his refusing to do so, several shots were fired, one of which took effect. Upon approaching him it was ascertained that he had received a serious, if not mortal wound. Placing him in a wagon, he was brought to and attended by Dr. Monroe. Human skill could avail nothing, for he had received his death wound, and died about noon on Tuesday.

In the meantime poor George Haverstock was brought to the Metropolitan Hotel and kindly cared for, but on Tuesday about 3 p. m. his spirit passed from earth and his sufferings were ended.

The cause of the tragedy was—as near as we can learn—as follows: Schuster was under the influence of liquor during election day, and owing to the condition he was in, engaged in a quarrel with one of our oldest citizens—Mr. McKenzie.

He left town with a vengeance against McKenzie and went to the Frazier rancho. From there he passed across the road to the residence of Mr. Crowell. None of the family were at home. Knowing the place where they kept the key, he took the key and gained possession of what is generally known as a Needle Revolver. He then secreted himself behind the palings of the fence, in a corner, and as Andy Frazier and George Haverstock rode up, he fired, the ball piercing Andy's brain. The next shot inflicted a mortal wound on Haverstock. What ensued is given above.

FROM NEW CROW AGENCY. NEW CROW AGENCY, M. T., July 29, 1875.

CAPTAIN WRIGHT: James Hildebrand and his horse were killed on the morning of the 27th inst. by a party of Indians, about 16 miles south of this place.

Mr. Hildebrand was very narrowly escaped. Mr. Hildebrand was on night herd over the cattle, and had just returned with Mr. Gale, the head, and had turned the stock over to him, when they were attacked. The Indians had approached within 300 yards of the camp and allowed Mr. Hildebrand to get within 40 yards of them, when they fired on him from behind a rock, the first shot killing the horse. He fell almost in his tracks.

Mr. Hildebrand charged towards the Indians, but had only gone a short distance when he received his fatal wound in the left arm near the shoulder, shattering the bone and cutting the main artery from which he bled to death in about 20 or 30 minutes. He fired one shot from his gun and one from his revolver after he was wounded, then told his companion he was shot. Charlie told him to go to shelter, when he ran about 100 yards and fell by the side of a shrub.

The men all speak in the highest terms of Charlie Gale's coolness and bravery. He got behind a rock and saved his horse and kept the Indians back until relief from camp reached him. Nels Sill, Frank Murray and Sam Mallin reaching him first. The Indians fired on all of the men giving some of them close calls. Some thirty Indians were directly and indirectly engaged in the fight with Hildebrand and Gale, but were trying to take the cattle and failed, for the men went for them in time. Mr. Hildebrand's body was brought to camp, and yesterday we performed the last sad rites to a departed friend, and started a grave yard at the New Crow Agency.

Mr. Hildebrand was a native of Ireland and about 37 years of age. He leaves many friends behind.

Mr. Patrick Hyde, lately wounded by the Sioux, is yet suffering severely, and has become quite low. Wound more severe than at first supposed.

U. KNOW. All quiet just now.

Broke Jail. About noon to-day Sheriff Clark took his usual walk to the jail, and upon finding the inmate good morning was in conversation with a contemptuous sile.

This exasperated Mr. Clark, and he rushed frantically to the inner room in order to know why these profound quietude. He ascertained. Like a bird yearning to leave its cage, so yearned Mahaffey for freedom from his boarding house. He yearned with an anger, and so successfully that he dropped himself from close confinement to roomy freedom, and is now prospecting around the foot-hills. It has not been ascertained yet whether he took the Virginia, Helena or Zack Rooper's coach. The agents of the respective lines can physically deny having passed him over their routes. Sheriff Clark offers $100 reward for his apprehension.

Lewis and Clarke Elections. Up to the hour of going to press we have not received the complete returns from Lewis and Clarke county. From the tabular statement of the Herald we learn the following: Joe Toole is elected District Attorney—no opposition; Tatem, Republican, and Constans, Democrat, for members of the Council, are ahead; Ross Dugan, Democrat, is elected County Commissioner; J. C. Walker, Dem., Sheriff; Totten, Dem., Clerk and Recorder; O. B. Hedges, Republican, Probate Judge. The Republicans elected a School Superintendent, County Surveyor and Constable.

INDIAN NEWS.

The Sioux Attack a Bannack Camp!

One Bannack Killed and One Wounded! All Their Stock Captured.

Mr. John Dolan, just in from the Yellowstone, reports that the Sioux attacked two lodges of Bannacks who were in camp on Twenty-five Yard Creek near the O'Dare cabin. Bannack Tom states that the Sioux came to their camp and made the charge on foot. They succeeded in killing one Bannack and mortally wounding another. They then surrounded the herd and drove off every hoof of stock.

The squaws and children reached the settlements in a most deplorable condition. Mr. Dolan says it was a heart-rending sight. Bannack Tom says the Sioux are thick on the hills and swarming all over that section of the country. It is evident from their manœuvres that they are bent upon committing depredations in a short time on an extensive scale such as was never heard of in the annals of the border.

We are not alarmists, but it behooves every one to keep a sharp look out and not delude themselves into the belief that our glorious Republic will do anything for us. The Sioux know this well, and it is about time that we acknowledge it.

FROM FORT PEASE. FORT PEASE, July 31, 1875. CAPTAIN WRIGHT: Day before yesterday, about 8 p. m., two boats reached Pease in them. A few days before they had an engagement with the Indians, and during the fight one of their boats was captured, and they lost several guns and a great deal of ammunition, provisions, etc., but none of them were hurt, although the bullets fell into the boats and struck around them. Some time ago they attacked this fort, but were not strong enough to disturb us, and a few "knocks" from the big gun sent them off in double quick time. We consider ourselves pretty safe while in the fort, but cannot venture outside farther than a mile without seeing Indians.

Buffalo are here in large bands, and we have no trouble in procuring fresh meat. Last night a meeting was held by the whole populace of the fort, and after expressions of sympathy for the soldiers, and regret at the death of those who had worked hard for the advancement of this expedition, and particularly to Mr. Carter, the courier who volunteered to go to Bozeman and back and accomplished the same.

S. D. L. The Fate of Comstock. The undersigned, citizens of Bozeman, having read a report regarding the death of Comstock, made by a man signing himself Michael Ryan, feel it our duty to correct the misstatements therein contained—especially the statement that "he was buried off the road between Bozeman and Fort Ellis," which is so worded as to lead the casual reader to believe he was interred under circumstances of marked disrespect. The card heretofore published by H. N. Maguire, regarding the matter is true in every particular and detail. Comstock's wants would have been supplied by these citizens had he asked assistance, and they knew before he committed suicide the destitute condition he was in. He shot himself in the suburbs of the town, in a study and retired spot, seemingly having selected it with care for the express purpose. He was waited upon at once by Dr. A. J. Hunter, and had he been a millionaire at the time, no more would or could have been done for him in the way of surgical aid, and his remains were respectfully interred in the Bozeman Cemetery, overlooking the town to the eastward, where they now repose. The suicide occurred in the early fall of 1870.

DEATHS.

FULLER—At Schenectady, New York, July 24th, 1875, Mrs. Sarah A. Fuller, aged 60 years.

The deceased was the mother of T. P. and E. J. Fuller, of Helena. James Hildebrand.

The deceased was well known to all the old residents of Bozeman as a man of genial temperament, strict integrity and one whose word was as good as his bond. During an acquaintance extending back for years, we can honestly say that we never knew him to do aught but what was right. He lived as a man, and died like a hero.

George Haverstock. The deceased, one of the victims of the late terrible tragedy, was from Iowa—During the war he possessed an enviable reputation as a gallant soldier. When the Brigade of Prentiss was captured on the bloody field of Shiloh, the Iowa regiment, of which George was a member, was captured. But six escaped capture or death.

Among that small number was the subject of this sketch. George Haverstock was about 30 years old. He leaves a widowed mother in Iowa to mourn his loss—the loss of one who proved himself to be a strictly temperate and moral young man, who endeared himself to all who knew him. To the mother who grieves for her son in her Eastern home the community offers its heartfelt sympathy.

Rest in peace good and brave boy. James Andy Frazier. The deceased was born in Hamilton county, Illinois, on the 13th of January, 1854, and was the eldest son of the late G. W. A. Frazier. Andy had lived with his parents in Bozeman since he was a little boy and was universally known in this community. At school he was a general favorite among his mates, and by his perfect demeanor won the esteem of his teachers. After his father's death he did his utmost towards making life's pathway smooth for his widowed mother, his sister and brother. To the public he was known as a young man of irreproachable morals; deviating from the right and always shrinking from the wrong. He was indeed a model, one worthy for our youth to take pattern after. To his grief-stricken mother, sister and brother, we can but say, that in their dark hour of affliction they can console themselves with this, that Andy's irreproachable life on earth will insure for him everlasting bliss in the Only Life.

Dear Andrew you have left us, But our loss to Heaven is gain; You're freed from earthly sorrow And from earthly care and pain. Oh, Andrew! kind and true, To us your memory's dear; And many eyes in Bozeman Will shed a heart full tear.

You was a kind, a loving brother, A schoolmate and a friend; And our sympathy's but part expressed In the tribute that we send. You leave a heart-sick mother, Friend, and sister, kind and true, And your loving brother Willie, Whose thoughts are e'er of you.

But mother, dear, cheer up! Bow not your heart with care, For your darling boy is happy In the land where all is fair. And when your short life is o'er, Oh! who can tell the joy, When again unto your bosom You clasp your darling boy.

We all pray to meet you, Andrew, In that happy home above, Where all joy and gladness, And light, and peace, and love. A. J. D. BOZEMAN, M. T., August 3d, 1875.
