And may his spirit hovering nigh, Pierce the dense cloud of darkness through.

And know, with fame that cannot die,
He has the world's affection too.

ADDRESS OF PROF. H. E. SHEPHERD.
Mr. H. E. Shepherd, superintendent of public instruction of the city of Baltimore, then delivered an "Address Upon the Genius and Literary Character of Edgar A. Poe."

Upon the conclusion of Prof. Shepherd's address, "Annibal Lee" was read by Wm. F. Gill, Esq., of Boston. This was followed by the personal reminis-cences of Hon. J. H. B. Latrobe.

The assemblage then adjourned to the graveyard, where simultaneously with the singing of a dirge, "Sleep and Rest," by Mrs. Eleanor Fullerton, the monument was crowned with a laurel wreath by Prof. Elliott. This ceremony closed the exercises. The music was furnished by the Philharmonic Society of Baltimore, a club of high local reputation, embracing about one hundred well-trained voices.

DESCRIPTION OF THE MONUMENT.
The monument, which is located in one corner of the old westminster churchyard, corner of Fayette and Green street, is of the pure Ionic style, having on it as few lines as could make a design. It is about nine feet high chaste and elegant, with very little elaboration. Just beneath the capital, which is about four feet square, is the only embellishment of a lyre, on each of the panels below contains a medallion of the poet, suggested by the medallion upon Wordsworth's monument, in St. Oswald's churchyard, Grassmere, England and is said to be the only monument of this style in the United States. The opposite panel bears only the name, and the date of his birth and death, of the poet, the other two panels are unadorned. The lyre has been advanced by persons of cultivated taste that this monument, though extremely simple at first appearance, is in admirable keeping with the memory to which it is a tribute, and grows upon one constantly as a beautiful piece of work, free from any features which could be criticised by either friend or enemy of the poet.

Woman Suffrage.
[From the Wyoming Herald.]

A woman at Medicine Bow, just as she was depositing her vote last election day, was surprised to hear a rough sing out:
"I challenge that woman's vote."
"On what grounds, sir?"
"She hasn't been long enough in the Territory."

Did the woman sit down and cry over it? It is not to be recorded. Her dainty little hand glided back into the folds of her pull-back, and the next thing that audacious cuss knew he was gazing into the muzzle of a Derringer, while the fair voter said:
"How long have you been in the Territory, sir?"

"Look out, madam—don't. That cussard thing might go off—take it away. I beg your pardon. I—don't touch the trigger—I'm mistaken in the woman.
Please point it the other way. I'll lick the lying sheep-thief that says you have not lived right here in this town for ten years. I swear I will!"

He scooted around the corner, and the smiling passed in her track.
I know lots of folks who have got just brains enough to spoil them. If they had less they might possibly amount to something.

It is very seldom we see a man who is too much for the business he is engaged in, but quite common to see the business too much for him.

I don't care how much brains a woman may have, there's lots of time in her life that she would be willing to swap them all off for beauty.

So no folks don't seem to have any faculty to get ahead only by hanging on to coat tails of others. This may be honest, but it is poor.

Farm & Grange.

Horse Notes.
A Des Moines man recently received a car load of blooded stock valued at $20-000.
Denver horses have the epizootic in a virulent form, and a good many of them are dying.

Lothari, the trotter, whom Iowa attendants at races this year have not forgotten, is owned by a saloon keeper at Adrian, Mich.
Never administer medicine through the nostrils, as it may cause suffocation—Horses have been killed by the operation, and the mouth is the natural channel.

A drove of thirty-five Texas ponies passed through Fort Gaines, Ga., on Friday, bound for Florida. They had been on the road sixty-six days. They were held at $20 and $70 each.
E. J. Buchanan, of West Tennessee, is reported as having a horse so sagacious that he goes to the well, lets down the bucket, lets it fill with water, and turns the crank, and draws the water and helps himself.

The number of horses kept upon a farm is said to be a good index of the amount of labor applied to the soil. When we therefore read that ten to fourteen horses are required upon a 'mixed' farm of 300 to 500 acres in England, with the usual proportion of its area in grass, the reflection is suggested that in our agriculture too little attention is given to the cultivation of our crops.

The Irwinton, Ga., Souther says: Da-con Smith, of Wilkinson, owns, or did own a horse which one time in its life saved him an incalculable amount of money by its horse sense. The deacon says himself and wife, while partaking of their noonday meal, were very much surprised at the actions of their horse, which was loose in the road near the house. It would run up to the gate, neigh vigorously, and then run off again. This was repeated several times, and the deacon arose from the table to ascertain the cause of its strange conduct. He reached the door and looked out, and saw away off in the direction the horse had run a dense smoke. He seized his hat and ran to the place. 'Gentleman said he,' 'lightning had struck a tree and set it on fire, and the flames had communicated to my fence around my cornfield, containing about 800 bushels of corn. The fire had consumed about a dozen panels of fencing and reached a branch. My horse, when I arrived, was standing in this branch, dipping her tail into the water, and throwing the water into the burning fence.' The crowd looked incredulous.
The deacon said, 'Gentlemen, if you don't believe it, you can ask Mahaly.'

Curing Bacon.
Take out the ribs, and after cutting off the ham and shoulders, divide the siding longitudinally about half way up. The upper half being the most solid fat section, is cut in suitable pieces for the pork barrel, and the lower half, being thin and streaked alternately with fat and lean, is just the thing for bacon. Take off a narrow strip from the lowest belly side, which is all fat, and makes good lard.
Leave your bacon in one piece, and put it in a plain pickle of salt and water strong enough to float a potato, for two weeks—(if the pork is very heavy, let it remain for three days or a week longer); then hang in a smoke house, and cure to a light brown, more or less according to the taste. Out thin, trim off the skin and smoky edges, and boil or fry and eat hot, and you have a dish relishing to the most delicate appetite, and satisfying to the most hearty. Baked, it is a delicious addition to poultry, and is first rate eaten cold afterward. The English bacon is generally dry salted, and much of it is hung up and kept without any smoke except what it may get from the farmer's kitchen, and is used through the year as we use our salt pork. I find that the pickle is quite as good and much less troublesome than the process of drying. Somed salt petre, but I think it has a tendency to make the meat hard, without any corresponding benefit. The bacon put up in this country and sold as "sugar cured breakfast bacon" is very nice and sweet, but in flavor is exactly like ham.
The addition of sweetening matter spoils it for my taste, and takes away the simple and appetizing flavor of the pure salt and smoke. Put sugar in your ham, but keep it out of your bacon.—Country Gentleman.

How To Select Flour.
First, look at the color. If it is white, with a slight yellow or straw colored tint, buy it. If it is very white, with a bluish cast, or with white specks in it, refuse it.
Second, examine its adhesiveness. Wet and knead a little of it between your fingers. If it works soft and sticky, it is poor. Third, throw a little lump of dry flour against a smooth, perpendicular surface; if it falls like powder it is bad.
Fourth, squeeze some of the flour in your hand; if it retains the shape given by the pressure, that too is a good sign. Flour that will stand these tests it is safe to buy.
These modes are given by our flour dealers, and they pertain to a matter that concerns everybody,—namely, the staff of life.

An Extensive Dairy Enterprise.
A correspondent of the Buffalo Live Stock Journal says that Messrs. Strang & Son, of Hudson, Ohio, own and operate eleven butter and cheese factories, using the milk of about 4,000 cows. The factories are situated near Hudson. The milk is generally bought on contracts at a fixed price. It is skimmed, but not very closely, and the cream is churned while sweet. The butter is not washed. The proprietors claim that they do not take any cream from the milk to injure the quality of the cheese, which is made in several sizes—some of 250 to 400 pounds, others of 25, others of 15. The writer eulogizes the quality of the butter made, and concedes the success of the enterprise, but does not approve of the creamery system, believing that the only safe course is to work the milk into either butter or cheese, a to give the refuse to swine or calves.
