IN SUPP. NORRIS PROPERLY IMPROVING THE PARK?

The Madisonian calls upon Superintendent Norris to rise and explain why the money appropriated by Congress has not been expended in making the rough places smooth.

Personally, we know nothing of the operations of Col. Norris in and about the Yellowstone National Park, but if the stories of tourists who have traveled in this direction are to be credited, the Col. has neither been idle nor remiss in his duties to the Government or the people during the past two years.

But there is certainly a wide and irreconcilable difference of opinion between our information and that of the Madisonian on the subject. We may say that, without exception, parties with whom we have conversed have spoken in most favorable terms of the work which is being performed in the building of roads, construction of bridges, erection of buildings, etc., and it seems to us there must be some truth in these statements, or tourists could not make almost the entire tour of the Park in wagons, as they have done and are now doing.

It is possible that some persons may expect too much from a comparatively small and, perhaps, inadequate appropriation. What you know, thousands of dollars after the Superintendent's salary and incidental expenses are paid, will not go so very far in the opening up and constructing of roads, over rugged mountains, across swamps and through almost impenetrable forests.

Then after the roads are built, the expense of keeping them clear of fallen timber, for several years at least, must necessarily be quite heavy. While these things should be taken into account, and Col. Norris treated with a reasonable degree of fairness in criticizing his operations and the general administration of affairs in his charge, we have no disposition to screen him from censure, if it can be shown that he is not faithfully performing his official duties.

The Judith Basin Mines.

From parties who have recently returned from a visit to the newly discovered mines in the Judith we learn the following: The discovery was made on the northwestern tributary of the Judith, by Hoover and Buchanan brothers. The gulch is about five miles long, but bed rock has not been reached, on account of water, and no very encouraging prospects have been obtained at any point in the gulch, although there are found at almost any point. The best prospects have been obtained just on the edge of the rim-rock, on the bars. At a few points the gravel on the rim-rock yielded excellent prospects of coarse gold, but, so far, no discoveries have been made that would justify the belief that rich or extensive mines have been discovered.

Everything at present appears to partake of uncertainty and to depend on the probability, or rather, possibility, of what a thorough prospecting of the gulch may develop. This will necessitate the bringing in of a drain-ditch, which will take considerable time and money. There is a good fall to, and an excellent supply of water in the gulch, so that if a "pay streak" is found running its entire length the ground can be easily worked, and it will soon develop into a lively camp.

Quite a large number of "stampers" have visited the gulch since the discovery of gold was made, but many of them have returned, either under the impression that there are no paying mines in the vicinity, or their chance will be just as good by waiting for future developments. A mining camp, however, has been regularly organized, claim laws passed, and the tire gulch stacked off into claims of 300 feet and duly recorded.

This week we saw a sample of the gold from the bars. It was brought to town by F. C. Burns, and looks to us sufficiently favorable to justify reasonable anticipations of finding paying mines in the gulch, which is, we know, somewhat rich, and is quite coarse, bright and clean, and appears to be of excellent quality.

Is it a Combination? It is quite a "combination" has been formed between the respective owners of the two "pea-nut" stores in town. They are now located contiguous to each other, so that customers going in to either, on coming out, notice the adjoining store, forget that he has bought what he needed, and go right into May's or Basinski's, as the case may be, and duplicate his purchase. We are somewhat in the dark yet as to how the plan works, but we see no reason why it should not operate like a charm.

Tornado at Miles City.

Just as we were locking up our files to print this issue about 4 P. M. Miles City was visited by a tornado of unusual violence. The atmosphere was darkened by a cloud of dust which was followed by a very heavy rain. Several of the large cottonwood trees in the Park were snapped off like pipe stems. What damage was done we have not learned except that Mr. Ellis's store was blown in and his stock severely injured. The JOURNAL office banks like a sieve and our men will be obliged to sleep to night suspended on hooks. Hollis & Gerrish's drug store had its large windows demolished; Beebe's Hall was unroofed and otherwise badly damaged; Church's livery stable had its roof blown off, and its others yet to be blown down. Lieutenant Long and Hathaway, 5th Infantry, were driving through the Park and were near losing their lives by a

"In the Blunt" "Physiological Lectures to the Ladies." A Leaf From his Experience. "In the Blunt" "Physiological Lectures to the Ladies." A Leaf From his Experience.

As you have on several occasions favored us with Sally with space in your wide-awake paper, to show her smartness and ventilate the sayings and doings of myself and friends, I think it would be but fair should you allow me the same privilege, that your many readers may be informed of the sayings and doings of Sally and her friends.

"Ant Sally," as she is familiarly called, has a bosom friend by the name of Mrs. Straitzig, and these two have attended two lectures at Bozeman, on physiology, delivered by Mrs. Belle Chamberlain. As a result, the situation of things at our home has been changed very materially. My friends enjoy the fun hugely and say it is "darned good," and much better than a show, but to me it is anything but pleasant or agreeable.

On Wednesday afternoon last (27th inst.) Sally and her bosom friend started to town to attend one of the lectures, while I had to go and attend a school meeting and discuss plans for building a new school house here.

I was delayed in getting home and did not get there until near midnight. I entered the house very quietly, and began to feel my way through the darkness to our sleeping room as softly as the gentle zephyrs play sing so much about. Sally was musically sleeping, that is, she was breathing rather loudly. Some low-minded people would call it snoring, but for reasons I need not mention just now, I do not call it that. I was determined to reach her side without disturbing her sweet slumbers if possible. I had advanced but a step or two into the room when I stumbled against something and over I went, hitting my head on the washstand, which went down with a crash and into about as many pieces as a box of matches contains, and I will take with me the Milk Way with the aid of a telescope, Sally woke up and screamed "Murder!" with all her might, and the Goodness from the crib yelled like a wild-cat, and to cap the climax of confusion and disaster, it seemed to me that the irrigating ditch had broken into the room, for the floor was flooded with water. I crawled around and found a chair in which I sat down, for I thought my head would burst with pain and the blood was running in a stream from my nose.

Sally lusted around and found a match, and lighted the lamp; then she looked at me—looked at me hard and long—then at the broken stand, water pitter and basins, and there was nothing left to be seen but a left full of water when she went to bed, lying empty on its side. She finally opened her mouth and said: "Mr. Blunt," she always calls me that when she is vexed or angry, but when she is good natured she calls me her old man. Said she: "Mr. Blunt, you have made a nice mess of it, haven't you? Coming home this time of night and destroying everything in the house, but it's just like a clumsy man, always blundering." And she went on at a terrible rate, you better believe, she finally told me that she had discovered that it was very unhealthy for man and wife to sleep together, and that she had prepared my bed for me in the spare bedroom, and I would have to sleep henceforth. I fell over I marched out of that room mightily quiet, without saying a word, but glad to get out of the storm.

I had been in bed about half an hour, when Sally came in with a light in her hand, crying as if her heart would break. She asked me very tenderly if my head pained me very much. I said it did. Then she went right to work and placed a large piece of coat plaster on my ugly cut, and I had received across the bridge of my nose, and tied my head up with wet cloths—crying bitterly all the while. I began to feel sorry for her, and I softly suggested that it would be better for me to sleep with her that night. Her wet cheeks were instantly as dry as a hot brick, and she said: "No, sir! you stay right where you are!" and she walked out of the room with as much dignity as would the Queen of Madagascar.

The next morning I was a beautiful sight. I could hardly see out of my eyes, and my nose looked like a full-grown cucumber. About ten o'clock, Mrs. Straitzig came in, when she and Sally got to talking about the lectures on physiology, and the grand truths that were taught. Mrs. Straitzig said that if she had only known what she was young what she knew now, that she would not to-day be the mother of nine ugly, fretful brats, but in their place there would be two beautiful angels, rightly made; for, as Mrs. Chamberlain had said, she believed that "it is better to be born right than to be born even." "And now," she went on to say, "I know how to govern the man—know how to win their love and keep them in subjection, the golden era prophesied so long will soon come, when the rearing of children, the managing of the husband, and the ruling of the State, shall be done by the consent of the competent; then we will have a glorious time, and," casting a stony look at me, she said, "you know very well, Mr. Blunt, whom I mean by the competent."

And now, Mr. Editor, I protest against this new rule, and against those lectures on physiology, for—let me whisper it—the women know a lot more already. I am satisfied that a brave paper like yours will help us poor men in this matter, and put a stop to it, for if something is not done pretty soon there will be several females in Bluntville, and that without the "consent of the competent."

Yours, for peace, WILLIAM BLUNT. Bluntville, August 30, 1879.

Montana Wheat Crop.

The Black Hills Journal says: "The Montana wheat crop is almost a total failure this year." Where, O where, did you get your information Mr. Journal? You must have received it from an impression of your own native Hills. Montana has a sufficient surplus of wheat, raised this year to supply the entire population of the Hills for six months at least if we had any way of getting it there. This is the country where farmers can make money raising wheat at 60 cents a bushel—the price it is selling at to-day. Talk about wheat being almost a total crop, will you.

Religious.

Fire in Butte.

Butte had a fire on the 31st of last month. According to an account in the Independent it originated in the rear of the building occupied by T. P. Bowler. The fire is supposed to have caught from the explosion of a lamp, and had got under good headway before it was discovered. Bowler's building (name) was totally destroyed, as was the adjoining frame building, which was occupied as a butcher shop. Blum's fire-proof on one side and Dellger & Hyde's fire-proof on the other, stopped the fire. The excitement was intense while the fire listed, and fears were expressed for the safety of the town. Part of Blum's stock was carried out on the street, and was somewhat damaged, as was also Blum's stock of clothing and of boots & harness. The bucket brigade worked faithfully, passing along full and empty buckets. The total loss is estimated at about $27,000. T. F. Fowler being the heaviest loser.

Personal.

E. E. Pratt, of Hayden, was in town last week. J. D. McCaman, our efficient bounty Treasurer, returned from "America" on Tuesday. Rev. G. B. Crittenden passed through town last week on his way to Chico, presumably to perform an important wedding ceremony. Mr. Philip Thorpe of Hamilton dropped in upon us this week, the first time he has been in the Eastern Metropolis of Montana since he left for the States. Miss Kate Lundvall and Mrs. J. W. Crowell went over to Helena last week. Mrs. Crowell to join her family there, and Miss Lundvall on a visit. Noah Armstrong, returned from Clark Fork mines on Tuesday and leaves to-day for his home at Glendale. Mining operations at Clark's Fork are about suspended for the season. H. J. Hoppy returned from Glendale on Tuesday. He is quite indisposed and contemplates making a trip to Mammoth Springs for the benefit of his health. Hon. Th. R. Edwards returned last Saturday from a two months visit to the States. Mr. Edwards penetrated farther East than he had ever ventured before, and says he enjoyed the trip amazingly. J. C. Baromett, the old-time Mountaineer of Montana, paid Bozeman a visit this week. "Jack" as he is familiarly called, did the honorable for the Pennsylvania railroad excursionists through the national Park recently. Bart Henderson, the champion prospector of America, returned to Rochford last Wednesday night from his prospecting tour to the Little Missouri, Bear Lodge and Yellowstone regions, and the next day—last Thursday—he started with Messrs. Thompson and Silliman to thoroughly overhaul North Park Colorado, where he has been led to believe there is still an immensity of undiscovered mineral wealth. We will endeavor to get the notes of his explorations in the northwest, some time in the near future.—Black Hills Journal.

HELENA LETTER.

HELENA, MONT., Sept. 1, 1879. Clear and cool. A heavy frost injured vegetables in valley gardens on Friday. Archbishop Seghers will administer confirmation at the Catholic church in Helena on the 21st inst. Judge Hughes was elected a school trustee, and D. H. Cuthbert re-elected clerk of the board at the school election on Saturday. The pupils and teachers of the Presbyterian Sunday school spent Saturday at the Flower Garden, enjoying themselves picnic fashion. Donald McLean, the unfortunate man injured by the coach accident on Broadway, shows no signs of improvement, and his case is deemed critical. The rains of Thursday and Friday set off the dust, but was not much to the detriment of fishing and hunting parties, several of which were badly soaked. "The States" must be horrible places. Helenites who have lately returned from them "universally complain of bad health, and wish they had stayed at home. Youngsters with books under their arms were converging to the school house from all parts of the city this morning. The fall term of school has commenced. The Odd Fellows' Temple Association will give a grand ball in the new "Temple" early in October. This will be the first of the coming festive season's innumerable dances. There were services yesterday at the Presbyterian, Catholic and Episcopal churches, and at the Court House, where G. A. Hoffman, Evangelist, officiated. No Methodist minister is now in Helena. Sawtelle, the well-known theatrical manager, has returned to the capital, having disbanded his company at Benton on Aug. 23d. He will probably open out the Helena theatre, with another and a better company, some time this month. The government's purchase of the Helena and Bozeman telegraph line is good news. The line in its present condition serves ordinarily as a roost for hawks and the poles make good enough wood for camp fires, but it would be preferable to have things a little different. At 11 p. m. on Tuesday the wooden buildings around the Magnolia Hotel at the lower end of Main street had a narrow escape from destruction by fire. The hotel became filled with smoke, and investigation disclosed the kitchen floor in a blaze. The flames were quenched before much damage was done. Barclay J. Smith says that detective Rye, who arrested and took him East on a trumped-up charge of embezzlement, will be sued for perjury, conspiracy and false arrest, if he ever strikes Helena again. If Rue fails to return here it will perhaps prevent further developments in "a celebrated case" that agitated the capital some months since, and in which the testimony of the detective is all-important. D. G. Corbin writes to the "Pioneer Daily" regarding the Manhattan Beach question, and pronounces the N. Y. Herald's article purporting to comprise the substance of a Herald reporter's interview with the Corbin brothers to be, with the exception of about five lines, "a gross misstatement of what was actually said." The Manhattan Beach company get lots of free advertising, anyway. Edison, the inventor, requires a large amount of platinum in his system of electric lighting, which cannot under the most favorable circumstances come into general use unless extensive mines of the metal are discovered. It is frequently found in small quantities intermingled with gold in placer mines, but large deposits are rare, and Montana miners who know of, or think they can find, such, will perhaps "make a dash" by communicating the information to the indefatigable telegrapher of Menlo Park.

PERSONAL.

Bishop Tuttle has gone to Meagher county. S. S. Huntley arrived from Fort Benton Thursday. Mrs. Martin Maginnis is summing at Orkney springs, Virginia. Gen. Brislin and wife were in Helena a few days last week, leaving for Ellis on Saturday. Delegate Maginnis and Z. L. White, of the N. Y. Tribune, visited the Silver creek mines on Friday. Jameson, the wealthy Irishman, who for several years has spent his summers hunting in Montana, soon leaves for San Francisco, where he takes passage for China.

SPECIAL TAX VOTED BY AN OVER-WEIGHING MAJORITY.

W. W. Alderson and Davis Willson Elected Trustees—W. W. Alderson, 41 votes; Davis Willson, 36; Peter Koch, 34; David Anderson, 12; scattering, 9. Alderson was elected for the long term—three years, and Davis Willson for the short term—two years. For District Clerk—A. D. McPherson, 56 votes; scattering, 9. For the Special Tax, 63 votes; against 3. Delighted with the Park. Ed. Alderson and Bennie Clark returned from their Wonderland trip on Monday last, having been absent nearly three weeks. They accompanied Messrs. Whitney and Ziegler of West Liberty, Iowa, on a tour through the Park. The "Boys" say that the Iowa gentlemen, who by the way have traveled extensively and visited almost every place of interest in Europe, were unbounded in their expressions of wonder and admiration on beholding the matchless scenery of the Yellowstone Park. Like the original quest, they declared that "the half had not been told them."

Prisoner Escaped.

Cornelius Murphy, one of the prisoners employed in the brick-yard, escaped on Wednesday afternoon. Three mounted men are in pursuit. Up to the hour of going to press, no news have been received of the escaped prisoner or of his pursuers. Following is a description of Murphy: Height, 5 feet 6 inches; Weight, 150 pounds; Age, 22 years. Grey eyes; dark complexion (freckled); light brown hair (cut close); no beard; large mouth; has an habitual smile. Sentenced for three years for horse stealing, from Madison county.—New North-West.

The Gold Bank and Trust Company Failed.

San Francisco, September 1.—A meeting of the stockholders of the National Gold Bank and Trust Company today, it was decided to go into liquidation. The report of the committee appointed to examine the affairs, showed that the capital had become impaired by a loose manner of doing business, for which the officers were censured also. It was shown that the bank had never fully recovered from the disaster of 1875.

General Hammond Placed on the Retired List—Pensions.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The Secretary of War has reviewed the proceedings and findings of the Court Martial of January 16th, 1864, by which Surgeon-General Hammond was dismissed from the service, and recommends that the findings and sentence be annulled and that he be placed on the retired list, with authority conferred by Act of March 12th, 1878, the name of Hammond be placed on the retired list of the army, as Surgeon-General, without back pay, present or future pay or allowance of any kind whatever. The recommendation of the Secretary of War has been approved by the President. The decision of the Attorney-General relative to arrears and pensions affects about 15,000 soldiers in different houses. The amount involved is about a million and a half of dollars.

NEW TO-DAY.

OVER THE LINE.

The Buffalo Scarcity and the Indian Buffering.—The British Organizing a Fear of an Indian Outbreak. New York, September 1.—The World's Outlook special gives an intelligent and concise account of the situation of the Manitoba Indians, and movements for the relief of the suffering and suppression of the threatened revolt from one end of the country to the other. They are suffering from buffalo famine, and the region is so vast and generally so difficult of access, that it is impossible for the Government to meet the demand for provisions. Great quantities of food have been distributed by Lieut.-Gov. Laird, at Battleford, and the mounted police have left nothing undone to relieve the wants of the sufferers. The disaffection of the tribes on account of the innovation of American Sioux and other Indians is widespread. How far westward and northward it has penetrated is impossible to say. Battleford lies three hundred miles north of Great Bear's territory, yet bad feeling is as ripe there as in its own camp, and it is believed that the Indians in the Northern Athabasca District have been tampered with. The number of Indians in the Northwest is estimated at 40,000, and across the Rocky Mountains in British Columbia, 200,000 more. To these add the fugitive Sioux and Nez Perces bands and the total population between Lake Manitoba and the Pacific Ocean is not far short of ninety thousand. Arms and equipments for new force which Col. Smith will organize were dispatched from here some time ago, and stores are being forwarded from Winnipeg. The six companies will muster 450 men and file, which with the mounted police will bring an available fighting strength at the disposal of the Government up to nine hundred men. In case the outbreak should prove serious our Government will organize an expedition similar to the Canadian contingent which accompanied Eort Garry in 1870.
