

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

A TASTEFUL TENNIS GOWN FOR MISS HELEN BRICE.

Olive Harper Finds That Wealthy Women Wear Less Jewelry and Pay Less Attention to Dress Than Their Grandmothers Did.

[Special Correspondence.] New York, Aug. 11.—When we say New York fashions we mean those made and designed here, not always imported, but yet sometimes, and in all cases worn by New York women wherever they may happen to go.

The latest really pretty thing is a tennis gown for Miss Helen Brice, who is as tasteful as she is pretty. This gown is made of dark blue serge, laid in white iron waist to bottom.

This gown may also be made in a lighter shade, as it is well adapted for use as a gown for general wear for outdoors. There is one quality of serge that is as light and almost as cool as a cotton dress, and being so, it is the correct fabric for use in the city.

Miss Brice is one of those pretty girls who don't seem to know how to dress. She is not a fashionista, and her admirers, and admirers make her a favorite with young and old.

One of her gowns was for grand occasions was made of pearl white crêpe rayon, over a slip of glace silk, also white. The corsage was pointed and had a ruffled border of the same with puffed sleeves.

Many persons seem to think that the daughters of rich men always wear "satin gowns for breakfast and velvet ones for tea," but it is not so now. The wealthier the girl is the more she studies simplicity in her tastes, and the "style" is apparent only in the perfection of the finish.

In spite of everything said about the extravagance of the fashionable young girls of today, I know from various sources that they do not spend one-third as much money on their personal adornment as they did ten years ago. Young ladies very rarely wear any jewelry, or if they do it is only such as is absolutely necessary to fasten collars or something similar.

One tailor gown, one serge or zanzoni outfit dress, one pretty tea gown, say two evening dresses, one of black lace and surah, like the illustration, and three or four cotton gowns are about all that the average young lady cares to be burdened with in these enlightened days.

The pretty lace Russian blouse is worn over a black pongee skirt, and this has a lace flounce. The sleeves are particularly pretty. The blouse is cut in one piece like a Mother Hubbard and simply belted in.

STAGE GLINTS.

Maurice Barrymore, E. M. Bell, Agnes Miller and Mrs. Phillips will be all missing from A. M. Palmer's company next season.

Jennie Yeaman's will inaugurate her starring tour in her new farce comedy, "12 P. M.," at the Bijou theater, in New York city, Sept. 5.

Charles Foxman has been asked to open negotiations for a tour of this country next season of Mrs. James Brown Potter and Kyrie Bellow.

Louis Adrich is to play one of the three principal parts in McKee Raskin's new play entitled "A Kentucky Colonel." The part of the colonel will be interpreted by Mr. Raskin.

Mrs. Deacon, the central figure of the Abolition tragedy at Cornes, will, it is said, figure in Gordon's new play that he is writing for Charles Foxman. Its title is to be "Uncle Dille Americano."

Camille Schuyler-Sears has accepted the invitation of the World's Fair directors to go to Chicago next summer. He will conduct programs of his own compositions and will appear as organist and chamber soloist.

Ramsay Morris has accepted a new one act comedy by Mrs. B. W. Doremus, author of "The Circus Rider." The central figure was written to fit Elsie de Wolfe. At present the piece is called "Mrs. Pendleton's Fourth Hand."

Talking of Bernhardt, Claire, the palmet, it is said, examined Sarah's hands the other day and found a star in the right palm that he said was wonderfully lucky. In fact, he remarked that he would sooner have such a star than $10,000.

Dental art is to be abolished for those who have the money to pay for the transportation of their remains in case of death on board ship. Air tight steel caskets for the transportation of bodies are now a part of the equipment of all of the best steamers.

TJRF TOPICS.

Between May 23 and June 29 one New York horse number sold $11,000 worth of thoroughbred yearlings.

The horseman says that shipping a horse unprofitably for something that the animal cannot help spoils many a good one.

D. B. Harrington uses a patent harness on the fast pacing mare Florida, in Virginia. There is no collar, the saddle carrying the weight.

Colonel North says that, all being well, he most certainly intends to bring his horses to America and try his luck at Chicago next year.

A horse can live twenty-five days without solid food, merely drinking water, seventeen days without eating or drinking and only five days when eating solid food without drinking.

"A thousand pounds," says an English turf writer, "for riding a Derby winner has come to be looked upon as quite a common fee. Over $7,000 on one occasion was paid to the rider of a Derby winner."

The royal stables at St. Petersburg excel all others for magnificence. In the coachhouse there may be seen a carriage which cost nearly $1,000,000. Catherine of Russia rode in it to her coronation.

WHISPERS ABOUT WOMEN.

Miss Alice Berry, daughter of Mayor Berry, of Newport, Ky., is an amateur architect, and has done much good work in that line.

Mrs. Caroline C. Rodgin has taken her degree in the theological department of Earlham college, Indiana. She will preach in the Friends' church.

DEER LODGE

IS THE

County Seat of Deer Lodge County, Montana,

AND one of the oldest towns in the State, the townsite having been surveyed in 1864. The town has an altitude of 4,500 feet above sea level. It is incorporated and has approximately 1,500 population. A nucleus court house square, beautiful lawns, wide and level streets, lined on either side with large shade trees, flower gardens and good sidewalks, well lighted thoroughfares and a wise local government are matters of the citizens' especial pride.

Deer Lodge is situated in the midst of a vast agricultural and mining section, and is reached from the south by the Montana Union railway, a branch of the Union Pacific system, which forms a junction with the Northern Pacific at Garrison, nine miles north. To the south and west are the great mines of Butte, Granite and Philadelphia, where are also located numerous smelters and stamp mills. Deer Lodge is reached through the edge of the townsite, and offers to manufacturing interests an excellent water power. Her schools are far above the average, fine and ample buildings being provided as well as first class professional talent. Five churches of different denominations, with the usual number of parsonages, societies, etc., speak volumes for the town.

Deer Lodge's location is such as to command trade from the mining, agricultural and pastoral sections embraced in a large area, and must eventually become a place of great importance. Water for irrigating purposes is supplied by means of ditches from adjacent streams, while for domestic purposes an excellent system of water works provides a plentiful supply from the mountain streams. The system has a float, suitable for use in case of fire, and a volunteer fire company, provided with ample hose, ladders and fire carts, looks out for contingencies.

A model system of electric lights illuminates the business houses and streets, and a monster park and pleasure grounds have been provided for the citizens for plants and parties from mid July to the end of the summer months (especially August) for the benefit of the public. Among the great orders are Lodges of Masons, Knights of Pythias, Odd Fellows, United Workmen and a Grand Army Post.

The location in Deer Lodge of the College of Montana, St. Mary's Academy and splendid public schools and churches, together with the climate and healthful surroundings, combine to make it the most desirable place of residence in Montana.

The distance from Deer Lodge to the following points is:
