

Nervous People.

Nervous people not only suffer themselves but cause more or less misery to everyone around them. They are fretful, easily worried and therefore a worry to others.

When everything annoys you, when your pulse beats ceaselessly, when you are startled at the least unexpected sound, your nerves are in a bad state and should be promptly attended to.

Nervousness is a question of nutrition. Food for the nerves is what you need to put you right, and the best nerve food in the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They give strength and ease to every nerve in the body, and make dependent, easily irritated people feel that life has renewed its charms. Here is proof:

Mrs. Cora Watson, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. T. C. Watson, of 61 Clinton St., Bradford, Pa., was seized with a nervous disorder which threatened to end her life. Her mother, who had been a sufferer from impure blood, had failed to give relief. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People were recommended for nervous disorders, and were given. Before the first box had been taken, the girl's condition improved. After using six boxes her appetite returned, the pain in her head ceased, and she was stronger than ever before. "My daughter's life was saved by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," said Mrs. Watson. "Her condition was almost hopeless when she commenced taking them, but now she is strong and healthy. I cannot recommend these pills too highly."

The full name is on each package. Sold by all druggists or sent, postpaid, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y. Price 50¢ per box; 6 boxes $2.50

Death! Death to high prices on SHOES! SHOES! Shoes that will stand the test! Shoes that will fit the feet! Shoes as good as can be bought for cash! Shoes that will not cost you within 25 per cent of what you will pay elsewhere for the same thing.

Groceries

Groceries! This department is complete and will be delivered FREE to any part of the city. 4x4 and 6x4 sheeting a specialty. A new line of Dress Goods and Novelties, etc., etc.

RACKET STORE

SERVED HIM RIGHT!

Missed His Train and Lost his Job.

Waited for Breakfast to be Cooked Over a Wood fire; Chafed at the Delay; Swore a Lot, but Couldn't Reach His Appointment on Time.

Was It You!

Why not have a Gasoline Stove that Cooks to a Turn, Economically and Quickly? Call and See Them.

RELIABLE. J. J. HAWLEY. MONARCH.

WHY IS IT!

That the EXCELSIOR LAUNDRY is so popular and is having such a fine patronage?

Because It is Doing GOOD WORK

as nice work as can be done at any laundry in the state.

tells the story. If you have not tried the EXCELSIOR LAUNDRY, give it a trial and you too will become a patron.

Excelsior Laundry, FRED H. ELLIS, Proprietor, Tel. 241.

A Good Thing to Remember!

Carhart & Adams have a good and complete stock of

Hardware, Stoves and Ranges

We are also prepared to do all kinds of PLUMBING and sheet iron and tin work.

It will pay you to give us a chance to figure on anything in our line.

Respectfully yours,

CARHART & ADAMS

MANCHESTER LUMBER CO.,

LUMBER AND COAL

Successor to G. W. Fairchild.

West Side of River

LOST MAN'S LANE.

A SECOND EPISODE IN THE LIFE OF AMELIA BUTTERWORTH

BY ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

CHAPTER XXV.—Amelia Butterworth, who had done detective work, was called upon by Mr. Gyro, a professional detective, to take up an interesting case. It was the case of a young lady who had been found in a certain village several persons have suddenly disappeared. In this case lives a family of the name of Knollys, the children of a former friend of Miss Butterworth. Mr. Gyro desires Miss Butterworth to go to the village and see if she can find out anything about the disappearance of the Knollys family. Miss Butterworth, III, and IV—Miss Butterworth goes to the village and finds that the Knollys family, William, John, and Victor, and their mother, Mrs. Knollys, are all in a state of great distress. She remains with the family and in the course of her investigation she discovers that the Knollys family were once in a state of great distress. She remains with the family and in the course of her investigation she discovers that the Knollys family were once in a state of great distress.

CHAPTER XXVI.—The evening was one of those which are made for peace. The sun, which had set in crimson, had left a glow on the branches of the forest which had not yet faded into the gray of twilight. The lawn, around which were scattered the mounds of the mowers, was a sea of yellow and white, and the air was filled with the fragrance of the flowers. Miss Butterworth, III, and IV—Miss Butterworth goes to the village and finds that the Knollys family, William, John, and Victor, and their mother, Mrs. Knollys, are all in a state of great distress. She remains with the family and in the course of her investigation she discovers that the Knollys family were once in a state of great distress.

CHAPTER XXVII.—The morning was one of those which are made for peace. The sun, which had set in crimson, had left a glow on the branches of the forest which had not yet faded into the gray of twilight. The lawn, around which were scattered the mounds of the mowers, was a sea of yellow and white, and the air was filled with the fragrance of the flowers. Miss Butterworth, III, and IV—Miss Butterworth goes to the village and finds that the Knollys family, William, John, and Victor, and their mother, Mrs. Knollys, are all in a state of great distress. She remains with the family and in the course of her investigation she discovers that the Knollys family were once in a state of great distress.

CHAPTER XXVIII.—The morning was one of those which are made for peace. The sun, which had set in crimson, had left a glow on the branches of the forest which had not yet faded into the gray of twilight. The lawn, around which were scattered the mounds of the mowers, was a sea of yellow and white, and the air was filled with the fragrance of the flowers. Miss Butterworth, III, and IV—Miss Butterworth goes to the village and finds that the Knollys family, William, John, and Victor, and their mother, Mrs. Knollys, are all in a state of great distress. She remains with the family and in the course of her investigation she discovers that the Knollys family were once in a state of great distress.

CHAPTER XXIX.—The morning was one of those which are made for peace. The sun, which had set in crimson, had left a glow on the branches of the forest which had not yet faded into the gray of twilight. The lawn, around which were scattered the mounds of the mowers, was a sea of yellow and white, and the air was filled with the fragrance of the flowers. Miss Butterworth, III, and IV—Miss Butterworth goes to the village and finds that the Knollys family, William, John, and Victor, and their mother, Mrs. Knollys, are all in a state of great distress. She remains with the family and in the course of her investigation she discovers that the Knollys family were once in a state of great distress.

CHAPTER XXX.—The morning was one of those which are made for peace. The sun, which had set in crimson, had left a glow on the branches of the forest which had not yet faded into the gray of twilight. The lawn, around which were scattered the mounds of the mowers, was a sea of yellow and white, and the air was filled with the fragrance of the flowers. Miss Butterworth, III, and IV—Miss Butterworth goes to the village and finds that the Knollys family, William, John, and Victor, and their mother, Mrs. Knollys, are all in a state of great distress. She remains with the family and in the course of her investigation she discovers that the Knollys family were once in a state of great distress.

CHAPTER XXXI.—The morning was one of those which are made for peace. The sun, which had set in crimson, had left a glow on the branches of the forest which had not yet faded into the gray of twilight. The lawn, around which were scattered the mounds of the mowers, was a sea of yellow and white, and the air was filled with the fragrance of the flowers. Miss Butterworth, III, and IV—Miss Butterworth goes to the village and finds that the Knollys family, William, John, and Victor, and their mother, Mrs. Knollys, are all in a state of great distress. She remains with the family and in the course of her investigation she discovers that the Knollys family were once in a state of great distress.

CHAPTER XXXII.—The morning was one of those which are made for peace. The sun, which had set in crimson, had left a glow on the branches of the forest which had not yet faded into the gray of twilight. The lawn, around which were scattered the mounds of the mowers, was a sea of yellow and white, and the air was filled with the fragrance of the flowers. Miss Butterworth, III, and IV—Miss Butterworth goes to the village and finds that the Knollys family, William, John, and Victor, and their mother, Mrs. Knollys, are all in a state of great distress. She remains with the family and in the course of her investigation she discovers that the Knollys family were once in a state of great distress.

CHAPTER XXXIII.—The morning was one of those which are made for peace. The sun, which had set in crimson, had left a glow on the branches of the forest which had not yet faded into the gray of twilight. The lawn, around which were scattered the mounds of the mowers, was a sea of yellow and white, and the air was filled with the fragrance of the flowers. Miss Butterworth, III, and IV—Miss Butterworth goes to the village and finds that the Knollys family, William, John, and Victor, and their mother, Mrs. Knollys, are all in a state of great distress. She remains with the family and in the course of her investigation she discovers that the Knollys family were once in a state of great distress.

CHAPTER XXXIV.—The morning was one of those which are made for peace. The sun, which had set in crimson, had left a glow on the branches of the forest which had not yet faded into the gray of twilight. The lawn, around which were scattered the mounds of the mowers, was a sea of yellow and white, and the air was filled with the fragrance of the flowers. Miss Butterworth, III, and IV—Miss Butterworth goes to the village and finds that the Knollys family, William, John, and Victor, and their mother, Mrs. Knollys, are all in a state of great distress. She remains with the family and in the course of her investigation she discovers that the Knollys family were once in a state of great distress.

CHAPTER XXXV.—The morning was one of those which are made for peace. The sun, which had set in crimson, had left a glow on the branches of the forest which had not yet faded into the gray of twilight. The lawn, around which were scattered the mounds of the mowers, was a sea of yellow and white, and the air was filled with the fragrance of the flowers. Miss Butterworth, III, and IV—Miss Butterworth goes to the village and finds that the Knollys family, William, John, and Victor, and their mother, Mrs. Knollys, are all in a state of great distress. She remains with the family and in the course of her investigation she discovers that the Knollys family were once in a state of great distress.

ago cried up and announced for use other. The rescue of Lucretia followed after more or less difficulty. As she had fainted in falling she had not suffered much, and soon was in the supreme delight of seeing her eyes unclose upon the face of Loren.

"Ah," she murmured in a voice whose echo pierced to every heart save that of the guilty wretch who brought her to the earth, "I thought I saw Albert, and he was dead, and I—"

But here Mr. Gyro, with an air at once contrite and yet strangely triumphant, interposed his benevolent face between hers and her weeping sister's and whispered something in her ear which turned her pallid cheek to a glowing scarlet. Rising up, she threw her arms around his neck and let him lift her. As he carried her—where was his rhiomatism now—out of those baleful grounds and away from the reach of the maniac's mingled laughs and cries her face was peace itself. But his—well, his was a study.

CHAPTER XXXV. EXPLANATIONS. The cause of Lucretia's joy was soon explained. Mr. Ostrander had not fallen a victim to Mr. Trohm's mania, but was in X. alive and well. That Mr. Gyro knew this at the time of showing her the telegram was apparent to me and probably suspected by her, but no words were ever exchanged on the subject, possibly because she was soon made happy by her lover's explanation to regret anything which had led up to this satisfying hour.

He, so it seems, had found it impossible to leave Lucretia. Upon issuing from Loren's house he had met Mr. Gyro and learned enough from him of the doubtful position in which the Knollys stood to make his stay seem imperative even at the risk of losing the position upon which all his hopes for the future advancement depended. He had therefore staid, but quietly and to a degree in hiding, place having been found for him by Mr. Gyro in a remote cottage, where his presence attracted no attention and evoked no comment. That Mr. Gyro had any ulterior motive in this, regarding him as a possible witness whose testimony might be of value, I will not even suggest. Mr. Gyro never neglects it, but Mr. Gyro understands his business and Gyro has a heart, too, and that heart has a way of working even amid the most urgent affairs in a manner to bring light out of darkness as well for the happiness of those concerned as for the elucidation of the mystery he has undertaken to clear.

The hour we all spent together late that night in the old house was unlike any hour which that place has seen for years. Mr. Ostrander, Lucretia, Loren, William, Mr. Gyro, and myself were there, and as an especial grace Saracen was allowed to enter, that night might be a cloud upon a single face there assembled. Though it is a small matter, I will add that this dog persisted in lying down by my side, not yielding even to the wiles of his master, whose amusement over this fact kept him good natured to the last adieu.

There were too few candles in the house to make it bright, but Lucretia's unearthly beauty, the peace in Loren's soft eyes, made us forget the somberness of our surroundings and the meagerness of the entertainment Hannah attempted to offer us. It was the promise of coming joy, and when our two guests departed, I bade good night to the girls in that grim upper hall it was with feelings which found their best expression in the two letters I hastened to send as soon as I gained the refuge of my own apartment. I will admit you sufficiently to my confidence to let you read those letters. The first of them read thus:

DEAR OLIVE—To make others happy is the best way to forget ourselves. A sudden wedding is to take place in this house. Order at once for me from the shop you know me to be in the habit of patronizing a wedding gown of daily white tulle (I did this not to recall for you to be ready to meet the wedding dress I helped her buy and which was, as you may remember of cream white satin) with chiffon trimmings and a wedding veil of tulle. To this dress suitable for ocean travel and a half dozen costumes adapted to a southern climate. Let everything be suitable for a delicate but spirited girl who has seen trouble, but who is going to be happy now a little attention and money can make her so. Do not spare expense, yet show no extravagance, for she is a shy girl, easily frightened. The measurements you will find enclosed; also those of another young lady, her sister, who must also be supplied with a white dress, the material of which however, had better be of crepe. All these things must be here by Wednesday evening, my own best dress included. On Saturday evening you may look for my return. I shall bring the latter young lady with me, so your present loneliness will be made up to you by an agreeable guest. Faithfully yours, AMELIA BUTTERWORTH.

The second letter was a longer and more important one. It was directed to the president of the company which had proposed to send Mr. Ostrander to South America. In it I related enough of the circumstances which had kept Mr. Ostrander in X. to interest him in the young couple personally, and then I told him that if he would forgive Mr. Ostrander this delay and allow him to sail with his young bride by the next steamer I myself would undertake to do whatever summer might have been endangered by this delay.

I did not know then that Mr. Gyro had already made this matter good with this same gentleman. The next morning we all took a walk in the lawn. I say nothing about my night. If I did not choose to sleep or if I had any cause not to feel quite as elevated as the young people about me, there is surely no reason why I should dwell upon it with you or even apologize for a weakness that is, I hope, but the exception setting of my customary strength.)

TO BE CONTINUED. Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surface. The danger therefore is not only in the use of such ointments but also in the use of any ointment that is not prepared by a reliable authority. It is possible to derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure is prepared by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is sold by Dr. J. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, by all druggists, price, 75¢ per bottle.

A LOCAL CATARRH Disease. A Climatic Affection. Nothing but a local remedy of change of climate will cure it. Get a well-known and reliable remedy. It is sold by Dr. J. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, by all druggists, price, 75¢ per bottle.

It is quickly absorbed. Gives Relief at once. Does not irritate the system. Always safe. Heals and Protects the Membrane. Restores the Sense of Taste and Smell. No Cocaine. No Mercury. No Intoxicating. Full Size. Trial Size, at Druggists or by mail. H. V. BROTHERS, 60 Warren Street, New York.

Residence Property for Sale. A good house, barn and large lot in Manchester for sale at a bargain. Long time open on half of purchase money if desired. Inquire of BRONSON & CARB.

Railroad Time Table

ILLINOIS CENTRAL.

Illinois Central Time Table No. 21, taking effect at 12:00 o'clock noon, Sunday, July 8, 1898.

Main Line Passenger Trains.
Arrive	West Bound	Leave
8:30 a. m.	No. 3, Day Express	8:30 a. m.
10:30 a. m.	No. 1, Flyer	10:30 a. m.
12:15 p. m.	No. 2, Flyer	12:15 p. m.
8:40 a. m.	No. 2, Flyer	8:40 a. m.
10:40 a. m.	No. 4, Day Express	10:40 a. m.
12:40 p. m.	No. 3, Flyer	12:40 p. m.
12:15 p. m.	No. 2, Flyer	12:15 p. m.

CEDAR RAPIDS BRANCH.
South Bound	West Cedar Rapids	North Bound
No. 303 9:45 a. m.	Passenger	No. 304 6:10 p. m.
No. 301 6:30 p. m.	Passenger	No. 302 8:30 a. m.
No. 302 8:30 a. m.	Freight	No. 301 12:30 p. m.

CHICAGO GREAT WESTERN RY.

"The Great West Route."

Time card, Daily, Going East: 7:40 a. m. Chicago Special, Daily, Going East: 7:40 a. m. Chicago Special, Daily, Going West: 11:25 a. m. Chicago Special, Daily, Going West: 11:25 a. m.

B. C. R. & N. R'y.

CEDAR RAPIDS TIME CARD.

MAIN LINE GOING NORTH.

Arrive	Leave
7:35 a. m.	No. 1, Minneapolis Express
11:35 a. m.	No. 2, Waverly Passenger
1:15 p. m.	No. 3, Chicago & La Crosse
2:45 p. m.	No. 4, Chicago Passenger
11:15 p. m.	No. 5, Chicago Passenger

MAIN LINE GOING SOUTH.

Arrive	Leave
8:30 p. m.	No. 2, Chicago Passenger
10:15 a. m.	No. 4, Louis Passenger
12:15 p. m.	No. 6, Chicago & La Crosse
12:15 p. m.	No. 8, Chicago Passenger

DECOAR DIVISION.

Arrive	Leave
8:10 p. m.	Decorah Passenger
8:10 p. m.	Decorah Passenger
8:10 p. m.	Decorah Passenger

IOWA CITY, CLETON AND DAVENPORT.

Arrive	Leave
1:15 p. m.	Passenger
7:00 p. m.	Passenger
11:15 p. m.	Passenger
11:15 p. m.	Passenger
7:00 p. m.	Davenport Passenger

PURE-BRED COTSWOLDS

Flock headed by choice IMPORTED RAMS. Fancy Cotswold Ewes bred $25 and up. Grade Ewes bred $6 and up. If you want something good come to the Delaware County Sheep farm.

Good Advice.

When you want anything in the line of Furniture

F. Werkmeister,

3-51 Fairville, Iowa.

ALEX SEFTROM, BLACKSMITH

Makes a Specialty of Horse Shoeing

Boydton & McEwen, Jewelers.

Our Spring Suitings have arrived, and those desiring GOOD AND STYLISH SUITS should not fail to call and examine our stock.

P. J. Roche

Compound Vapor and Shampoo Baths.

P. J. Roche

Horse Shoeing a Specialty.

FARMS FOR SALE!

Choice Farm Lands, easy terms, very desirable property at low prices. Large list to select from. When you want to buy or sell call on

Abstract Co.,

Manchester, Iowa.

H. R. EATON,

Plush and Fur Robes.

W. J. STRAIN & SONS,

Masonville, Ia.

THE DAIRY CITY MARKET

(CITY HALL BLOCK).

T. O. EATON,

Successors to A. W. Stevens & Co.

Saturns Rings

may be larger than ours in size, but Saturn's isn't in it when it comes to Styles, Kinds and Quality. We have rings to please the most fastidious. Diamonds, Opals, Rubies, Emeralds, Pearls, Engagement and Wedding, Society, Emblem Rings, Masonic, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, etc. Ladies' watches, Gents' watches, Boys' watches, Chains, Charms, Bracelets, etc. Large variety of patterns in Solid Sterling Silver Spoons, Forks, etc. Souvenir Silver Spoons with Court House or Fish Hatchery engraved in bowl. Call and see them!

Our Spring Suitings

are admirable in fabric and in fit, in workmanship and in workmanship.

L. & A. WOLFF,

Our Spring Suitings

are admirable in fabric and in fit, in workmanship and in workmanship.

L. & A. WOLFF,

L. & A. WOLFF,

L. & A. WOLFF,