- At Last. If the news from Washington is to be believed the agitation for tariff revision is beginning to have some effect on Henderson, Payne and others of the republican leaders in congress. Meetings of the leaders are being held concerning the advisability of maintaining the Dingley tariff schedules to meet popular demand. The proposed plan is to authorize the ways and means committee to sit through the summer and fall for the purpose of hearing the interests that desire a change. Many things have happened since the Dingley law was passed. The whole policy of the government has been changed by the intervention of war and the consequences which followed. Our commercial status has undergone an almost complete change in the last five years. Some of the schedules are badly in need of revision to conform with changed conditions. It is doubtless true that the house leaders in this last movement are actuated more or less by political considerations. The demand for tariff revision is strong, especially in the middle west and west. It was voted in the platform of the Cedar Rapids convention in Iowa. It has been emphasized by Gov. Cummins and Senator Dolliver. And what is true of Iowa is true of other states. The congressional elections are coming on apace and the republican leaders feel they must meet the popular demand on this issue. It is their belief that a republican congress actually undertaking the work of revision it is their belief that business interests will be assured and the people will be satisfied. So far as the people are concerned it makes no difference whether revision comes as the rescuer of political necessity or otherwise, so it comes.—Des Moines News.

Let Uncle Sam's Mail Boxes Alone.

[From the Minneapolis Tribune.]
City boys have learned by long experience that they must not tamper with Uncle Sam's mail boxes; but out in the country the rural free delivery boxes are something new, in most localities, and many urchins are tempted to have fun with them. The postoffice department therefore issues the timely warning that the punishment for injuring these boxes or interfering with their contents may be as high as $1,000 and three years' imprisonment. That would be paying dearly for a little fun, wouldn't it, boys? Better let the mail boxes alone.

Utterly Unjustifiable.

No plea of expediency can justify the punishment of the innocent for the sins of the guilty. If the soft coal miners quit work out of sympathy with the anthracite miners they will be making their employers, against whom they have no grievance, bear the penalty of the sins committed by the Pennsylvania coal barons. That would be so monstrously unfair and unjust that the public, which is, after all, the party most in interest, would entirely withdraw its sympathy from the miners, whom it now supports and indorses. The miners cannot afford to commit an outrage upon fairness and equity. If their leaders are men of discernment they will tell them so.—Chicago Chronicle.

Make The Navy Democratic.

There ought to be enough truly democratic spirit in the house of representatives to insert in the naval appropriation bill a provision for the promotion to commissioned rank of a certain number of warrant officers, says the Chicago Chronicle. The provision should be mandatory.

No enlisted man has yet been advanced to a commission in the United States navy, though in the navies of European monarchies the man before the mast may hope to become admiral of the fleet. The ennobling, un-American attitude of naval bureaucrats in the case of Oliver Morgan is typical of the situation that should be changed by the mandate of congress.

Any American soldier is good enough to be a commissioned officer if he possesses the necessary technical qualifications. Any American sailor is entitled to a commission if he prove worthy of it.

"Social qualifications" do not win naval battles, nor does the Annapolis academy monopolize all knowledge of the art of warfare.

Mason in Defeat.

The republican state convention of Illinois nominated Congressman Albert J. Hopkins to succeed Senator William E. Mason. Senator Mason declares that he will make a fight in the legislature, and while he expresses some confidence in the result, it can hardly be doubted that Mr. Mason will be retired to private life. Recently the public has not heard much from Senator Mason with relation to his views on the question of imperialism. At one time Mr. Mason made a very strong fight against the colonial policy, but recently he has shown a disposition toward repentance, and yet he seems to have slithered away from his position. Senator Mason would have done far better for himself had he consistently maintained his opposition to un-American policies. Perhaps he would have been defeated, but he would have retired with the consciousness that he had exerted his best efforts to keep this government in line with its traditions. There will be a marked difference between the standing of William E. Mason, defeated after he showed a disposition to compromise with the enemies of American principles, and William E. Mason had he been defeated consistently in opposition to the republican party's assault upon the constitution and the Declaration of Independence.—Commoner.

The Way of the World.

His youth was spent upon a farm near the waving wheat and corn. A strong potentiality. To leave the fields behind, and write a drama of society. Now, had he been in city born, Where crowds are really maddening. For the waving wheat and corn. And why science maddening. It would have been his career. To show his versatility. By writing pastimes of peace. And ballads of tranquility.

The man who's built to run a mill.

Would seek a high congressional. The one who's used to see his drill. Would play a recreational. To utilize his own ideas. He has country life propensities. To farm and to fish his ox. Would seek with his pen. The modern maidens are beguiled. By some absurd "affinity." The woman who could raise a child is aptly masculine. They all forget they must progress. In fields that are permitted them. Not struck from life to no success. For which it never fitted them. —Elliot Flower in Life.

Wild Mustard.

Next June the fields of northern Iowa, Minnesota, Dakota, Wisconsin, and northern Illinois will be all ablaze with the bloom of the wild mustard, which we take to be the plant that is known as the great mustard to the farmer. Two or three years ago our English friends discovered that by spraying these fields with a three per cent. solution of sulphate of copper, that is, three pounds of bluestone to 100 pounds of water, the mustard was killed while the oats, wheat, barley, or flax with which it was intermingled suffered no harm, whatever.

Washington Society.

The rural congressman's wife, amblytonic in her society and who fondly imagines the election to the house of representatives carries with it the golden key to unlock all doors, learns her first and bitter lesson when she discovers that position means something, but persons are everything. Such a woman cannot be invited to the dinner of the wives of the members of the cabinet, the wives of the senators, will receive her with open arms, that she will be invited to the dinner of which she has read in her local paper, that she will get her name in the newspapers and her dresses will be described as was that of the governor's wife at the last charity ball.

What Moved the Dog?

A remarkable story of canine intelligence and affection. Among the tales told of the intelligence and affection of our canine friends by Mrs. Sarah K. Bolton in her book, "Our Devoted Friends the Dog," is the story of Dan, a deerhound owned by Mr. L. C. Meachamp of Homer, La. Mr. Meachamp was one day going on a squirrel hunt and, not wishing Dan to accompany him, tied the dog to a post by a rope. Dan whined and begged, but finding his master obstinate he at last lay down quiet before his kennel.

A successful diver must possess great courage and nerves of steel. Such a man connected with a large wrecking company was visiting some years ago the pearl fisheries in the gulf of California, where sharks abounded. On one of his trips in quest of the pearl oyster he had a narrow escape from a fearful death.

On one of his trips in quest of the pearl oyster he had a narrow escape from a fearful death.

Blinding a Shark.

A successful diver must possess great courage and nerves of steel. Such a man connected with a large wrecking company was visiting some years ago the pearl fisheries in the gulf of California, where sharks abounded. On one of his trips in quest of the pearl oyster he had a narrow escape from a fearful death.

THE HERRICK IS KING.

For the eighth season we present the merits of the justly named "King of Refrigerators." We call attention to

Ten Reasons why the Herrick is the Best Refrigerator Made:

- 1st. Because it is the only sanitary refrigerator on the market.
- 2nd. Because it has a continuous circulation of dry cold air, which keeps food pure and sweet.
- 3rd. Because it will never mold, corrode, become rancid or foul.
- 4th. Because it consumes less ice than any other refrigerator.
- 5th. Because it is strong and light.
- 6th. Because it has from 20 to 50 per cent more storage capacity than any refrigerator on the market of equal outside dimensions.
- 7th. Because it has an automatic zinc-plated construction to corrode.
- 8th. Because it has an automatic zinc-plated construction to corrode.
- 9th. Because it has an automatic zinc-plated construction to corrode.
- 10th. Because it has an automatic zinc-plated construction to corrode.

Harry Stewart.

Nothing contributes more to the highest success than the formation of the habit of enjoying things. Whatever your calling in life may be, whatever misfortunes or hardships may come to you, make up your mind resolutely that, come what may, you will get the most possible real enjoyment out of every day; that you will increase your capacity for enjoying life by trying to find the sunny side of every experience of the day. Resolutely determine that you will see the humorous side of
