

The price of refined petroleum in Russia is about two cents per gallon. The oil fields of this country are far greater producers than those of Russia, yet we pay five times as much for our oil as the Russians. It is any wonder that our coal oil magnates have become enormously rich? This is the land of trusts and high tariffs.

Edison's New Storage Battery. Edison has recently patented a storage battery, which may revolutionize present methods of propelling vehicles and railway trains. The Wabash railway is going to equip its passenger coaches with the new battery and use them as motor cars to compete with a trolley line which parallels the Wabash road in Indiana. The enormous field of the old storage battery is its chief drawback. The new battery is said to remedy that defect and make the system far preferable to the trolley.

The Present Attitude of Democrats Toward the Money Question. The democratic party feels satisfied with its record on the money question. In fact it is more than satisfied with its achievements. In 1896 it waged the greatest political contest in the history of the country in favor of the quantitative theory of money. For several years prior to that time the scarce money schemers had everything their own way. The circulating medium of the country, its business lifeblood, was steadily reduced and business depression, panics, and bond issues followed as a natural result. While every legitimate industry languished, the money changers were buying securities and municipal and government bonds at prices far below their value. In that way they were amassing for themselves enormous fortunes at the expense of the masses. The democratic party declared in favor of the free coinage of both gold and silver, as the best way to combat the evil of that time, and prosecuted an educational campaign in favor of the quantitative theory of money. It was a desperate contest in which all the forces of plutocracy in both of the great political parties were arrayed on the side of the republican candidates. By the use of millions of money they won by a scratch; they secured the office, but the principle for which the democrats contended was also victorious. As soon as the republicans regained control of national affairs, they abandoned the confidence schemes, upon which they fought the campaign, and recognized the truth of the quantitative theory of money. They immediately commenced to devise plans for an increase in the country's circulating medium. Every power of the administration was used to increase the country's money supply, even to the coining of tens of millions of silver. The new gold discoveries in Alaska helped in the right direction, and at the present time the country has fairly recovered from the affliction of the scarce money conspirators.

It yet remains to be seen whether the remedies used by the republicans were as good as those proposed by the democrats. At any event the country has recovered from its financial illness, and is not at present in need of any financial doctoring.

Teacher's Normal Institute. The twenty-ninth annual session of the Delaware County Normal Institute will convene at the High School building, Manchester, commencing June 23, and remaining in session for a period of two weeks. Every teacher must attend. "All teachers and persons desiring a teacher's certificate shall attend such institute, or present to the County Superintendent satisfactory reasons for not so attending, before securing such certificate." Considering that the Institute is of great value to every teacher and to all those who desire to be teachers it has been our object to secure capable, conscientious men and women of scholarship and experience from whom the teachers may receive practical instruction and help for dealing with the problems of the school, and are able to make lifelong impressions upon the consciences and purposes of the teachers enthusing them with a determination to be not only better teachers, but better men and women.

Those who live at a distance should come on Saturday and enroll at the office without delay as it saves time in beginning the work Monday morning. Those who live in the city should enroll Saturday at the office and those who are in from the country should call and enroll.

The Institute is always open to the inspection of visitors. School officers and patrons are cordially invited to call at any time and observe the work. Every kindness will be accorded you by the Superintendent, instructors and teachers.

Again according to you all a cordial welcome. I am Very truly, H. J. SCHWETERT.

Death of Mrs. A. J. Hersey. Susan A. Baker, a daughter of Henry and Elizabeth W. Collin, Baker, was born in Coffin's Grove township this county on January 7, 1849. Her parents, now deceased, were among the very first settlers of Coffin's Grove township, there being, when they located there in 1841, but two other families living in the township, one of them being the family of Judge Clement Coffin, the parents of Mrs. Baker.

Miss Baker was united in marriage with Mr. A. J. Hersey on August 16, 1867, and, with the exception of several years spent in Kansas after her marriage, has ever been a resident of the township in which she was born. Her marriage was happy and she became ill, and the best of medical skill, both of this county and Chicago was employed, but it was of no avail and on Tuesday morning, June 17th, 1902, she was called to the great beyond to join her parents. She leaves her sorrowing husband, A. J. Hersey and four children; Mrs. Ada C. Evans, of Coffin's Grove; Baker Hersey, of Bailey's Ford; Mrs. John Frazer, of this city and Clifford Hersey, of Davenport, Washington. The funeral services will be held tomorrow (Thursday) at two o'clock p. m. at the family residence in Coffin's Grove. Rev. H. W. Tuttle will officiate.

How To Succeed in Life.

At this time, as the commencement season is nearing its close, and when the public has about finished listening to the duties and dangers of life, as viewed from the standpoint of the graduating class, a few words of counsel to graduates and all others about to commence to do for themselves, may be of some value.

Poor Richard is authority for the statement that those who will not be contented cannot be helped, and that there are a great many people who can learn only in the school of experience, where a rude teacher frequently raps their knuckles. We trust that since Poor Richard's time this class has continued to grow less, and that the young people of to-day are more inclined to profit by the experience of others than they were a hundred years ago. He says as it may, here are a few sound suggestions about how to succeed.

If you desire success, be true, be polite and strive to excel in all that you do. These qualities will win oftener than wealth, or birth, or brilliancy. There are now and always will be a goodly number with the gift of good positions at their fingers' ends. But those who have the gift of such positions, bestow them only upon the trustworthy. A good deal is said and written about farmers succeeding better, as a class, than the sons of other men in the management of the great affairs of the country. The reason is apparent. The first chores intrusted to the farmer's boy require regularity and certainty in their performance. It will not do if the cows are brought home from the pasture nearly every evening, they must be brought home every evening. Defaults in the caring for, and feeding of domestic animals are usually fraught with serious consequences, and farm boys learn early in life that defaults are extremely reprehensible.

If you wish to succeed in life, do everything, if it is only the transplanting of a plant, just as well as you possibly do it. A desire to excel is better than the best tool in any trade. As a rule everyone of ordinary intelligence who is true, and polite and strives to succeed, does succeed. The few who do not succeed attain that which is next to success, they so live and act as to deserve success.

Thrasher's Form a Trust. Wabash, Ind., June 16.—Northern Indiana farmers are obliged to pay considerably higher prices for thrashing their grain this year, owing to an agreement in the nature of a trust made by the thrashermen. Farmers are protesting against this advance, and in many instances will, if it is enforced, co-operate in the purchase of their own machines. The farmers will probably appeal to the legislature for a law to limit charges and forbid agreements of this character.

Benham Divorce Case Ends. Chicago, June 16.—Mrs. Matilda Benham was granted a divorce from Raymond S. Benham, closing a trial notable for sensational testimony. In dismissing the husband's cross-bill Judge Brown took occasion to say that the evidence introduced in support of it was not worthy of belief. All efforts to stain the reputation of the wife failed. She was granted an allowance of $75 a month alimony and $10,000 for attorneys' fees. She also is given the custody of her child.

Hanna's Daughter Married. Cleveland, June 16.—The marriage of Miss Mabel Hanna, eldest daughter of Senator and Mrs. M. A. Lynch Hearings Resumes. London, June 16.—Colonel Arthur Lynch, late officer in the Boer army fighting the British, still later membership to parliament from Galway, now a prisoner in British hands, charged with treason, had a hearing Saturday. Rome, June 15.—The complete success of the negotiations between Judge Taft, governor of the Philippines, and the Vatican on the subject of the friar lands, in those islands appears assured, four out of five of the cardinals, composing the sub-committee of cardinals, favoring the governor's proposals. Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 15.—The only matter of interest occurring in the anthracite region yesterday was the attempt of a resolution of Superintendent Thomas, of a Lehigh Valley company called Old Forge. He was on a locomotive when the assassin stepped from the bushes. Thomas and the other five men on the locomotive dropped to the floor, and though about ten shots were fired no one was hurt. Nothing important happened in the field, except that a pump man quit. The mines are gradually filling with water.

TO THE HELP OF CUBA

President Roosevelt Comes with a Special Message for a Tariff Reduction.

Salient Points of the Document

How It is Received by the Republicans Who Differ on the Subject.

Washington, June 14.—President Roosevelt placed his last card in his fight for Cuban reciprocity yesterday when he sent a message to congress urging the passage of the measure which has supported from the start. The president returned from West Point to find the opposition in high spirits. The friends of reciprocity in the senate, where the fight is now centered, were in the dumps—though not ready to admit they were whipped—for the "insurgents" had mustered thirteen Republicans against the administration plan. It looked black for Cuban reciprocity.

"Insurgents" Express Their Regret. Some of the "insurgents" were at the White House and expressed their regret that the president had seen it to push the matter so strenuously. They say they cannot retreat, and if the president thinks they are offside the party, they will persist in their course, they can't help it. They point to the fact that the house members from Michigan who fought Cuban reciprocity have been indorsed by their constituents. How, then, they ask, can they back water at this time? The administration senators, it is said, will not say the straight reciprocity must win, but the consensus of opinion is that nothing at all will be done this session.

Salient Points of the Message. The message calls attention to what the president said in his message of December last on the subject of reciprocity with Cuba and declares that message merely gives practical effect to McKinley's words, which he also quotes. The message says that "Yesterday, June 12, I received by cable from the American minister in Cuba a most earnest appeal from President Palma for legislative relief before it is too late and my (this) country financially ruined." He says that reciprocity with Cuba stands entirely on its merits, and the reasons for granting it far outweigh those in favor of any other nation.

Will Not Injure Any Industry. He declares that such reciprocity will not injure any United States industry. He says: "Cuba is an independent republic, but a republic which has assumed certain special obligations in respect to her international relations in compliance with our request. I ask for her certain special economic concessions in return; these economic concessions to benefit us as well as her. We are a wealthy and powerful nation; Cuba is a young republic, still weak, who owes to us her birth, whose future, whose very existence, depend on our attitude toward her. I ask that we help her as she struggles upward along the painful and difficult road of self-governance, and that we do not let her fall because she is weak, because she needs it, because we have already aided her."

NO CHANGE IN THE SITUATION

Both Parties Inclined to Claim Advantage From the Message.

The reciprocity message gave senators a live topic of conversation, but so far as is yet apparent there is no change in the situation. There was a disposition on the part of the leaders on both sides of the controversy to claim, when speaking publicly, some advantage from the message. The straight reciprocity men urged that the effect would be to cause at least some of the best sugar Republicans to abandon their opposition. They contended that many of them had misread the attitude of the president, and now that this had been made clear there could be no longer excuse for opposition to straight reciprocity measures. The message, they argued, would clear the atmosphere, render the president's attitude unmistakable, and therefore bring opponents within the party face to face with the fact that in continuing their opposition they are antagonizing the official head of the party.

"We have known all the time where the president stood on this subject, and have told the Republican opponents of reciprocity just what the facts are," said a leading reciprocity man. "They refused to accept our assurances, and professed to have expected the president to do the contrary. The message confirms all that we have said to them. It clears the atmosphere, and necessarily the result must be beneficial for a reciprocity bill."

The best sugar leaders declared at the close of the day that the message did not cause a loss whatever to them, and that all those senators who had stood with them are still with them. They also asserted that the president's intervention in the matter had the effect of causing to hesitate some senators who heretofore had not taken a positive stand against reciprocity, because of the feeling that the president should leave congress to deal with the subject in its present stage.

Senator Dietrich was among the most outspoken of the best sugar men, and he made an unsuccessful effort to secure the attention of the chair after the reading of the message. Those who are in his confidence say it was his purpose to move for the discharge of the committee from the further consideration of the house bill in order to permit the immediate consideration of that measure. "There is still more or less canvassing of the wisdom of holding a Republican caucus, and it is probable that ultimately one will be held, but no date is now mentioned."
