Waterloo had a $75,000 fire last Saturday night. Loss fully covered by insurance.

A. M. Rothschild, until recently the head of one of Chicago's largest department stores, committed suicide Monday.

Outlaw Tracey has disappeared entirely from the public view. Perhaps he has joined Patrick Crowe in his seclusion.

The Chicago Chronicle says: "Gov. Cummins of Iowa is one of the best authorities in that state upon forestry. He has mastered the subject thoroughly, having originally taken it up some years ago as an amusement and having stuck to it ever since."

Hazel Harrison, a colored girl of La Porte, Ind., is said to display marvelous gifts as a pianist. A wealthy Chicago woman has become interested in her, and offered to furnish the girl with money sufficient to enable her to spend several years in Europe under the instruction of musical masters.

The report of Supt. Applegate of the state hospital at Mt. Pleasant filed with the board of control shows that a great many more inmates have been cared for than was supposed. During the past year there were 44 of which 6 were women, who were sent to the hospital by boards of insanity and were entered as insane, but who in fact were only inebriates. Besides this the board of control sent 3 state patients there who were inebriates. The courts sent 5 to the hospital, 2 for one year each, and 3 for six months each. This was under the old law. Of the inebriates the superintendent discharged 21 as cured, 8 were taken out by order of court, 3 escaped and 3 died. There were 23 in the hospital July 1.

The Chicago doctor (?) who, for the second time within the past three years, worked several localities in this county to a finish a few months ago, have just completed "doing" Benton county as we glean from the Cedar Rapids Gazette, which says: "One of the cleverest swindlers, successful because it is so simple, is being worked on the farmers of Benton county and the whirlwind of regret is now in the height of harvest. The swindler relies entirely upon the credulity of the victim and the well known fact that one who has been bitten is not inclined to make himself a laughing stock for the benefit of his neighbors. The victims, and there have been a large number of them, have paid from $75 to $150, with absolutely no return, and so quietly was the work done that near neighbors have been taken in on the same game, neither knowing that the other was implicated.

In December, when all the country folk were comfortably spending the days within doors, there came a dapper young man to Watkins. He hired a livery team and spent several days looking up the location of invalids among the farming community. He had an engaging way about him and the troubles of the family were not long held from him. In a few days this young man disappeared and another took his place, inquiring more closely into the health conditions prevailing thereabouts and locating every invalid in the vicinity and not forgetting to look up their financial condition. Then he, too, disappeared and the fancy grafter made his appearance. The two who had gone before were as nothing compared with the "doctor." He it was who wore the big diamonds, talked in a low, deep voice, had the hypnotic stare; in fact, was the successful medical "grafter." His plans had been carefully laid before he reached the point of action. Every family he knew. To the man of the house he had heard from a sympathetic neighbor that the wife was an invalid; that the husband, too, was in falling health and that neither had the strength to do the work the farm required. He was a famous physician of high degree who made a specialty of such cases; hinted the country over to find them, simply because of his overwhelming desire to be of benefit to humanity.

Personal magnetism had much to do with the success of the grafter, for in almost all cases was the "doctor" successful. He had no difficulty in making the people believe they were sick, for he chose for his victims only those who had been long sick and who had given up hope. To these he said that local doctors did not understand the conditions; that he did, but that of course he should be obliged to ask a reasonable compensation for his work and time. He was working for the love he bore to his profession and personally he would be glad to do the work for the sake of the cure which was bound to result, but such action would be against the ethics of the profession, and he was nothing if not a true and abiding member of the fraternity of healers. Once successful in making the invalid believe in his powers the rest came easily and it was only a matter of how much money the victim was willing to part with.

No one has yet been able to discover the California and Illinois State Medical and Surgical Institute, and no address is given on the agreement, which is the only thing the victim has in consideration for the note that he is obliged to give for the amount named in the agreement.
