

—Dr. H. A. Dittmer is a Chicago visitor.

—Wm. Barlett returned to his home at Herley, Monday.

—Mrs. M. A. Prowse spent last week with friends in Dubuque.

—John Cameron is a guest of relatives and friends in this city.

—Mrs. O'Neil, of Farley, was a guest of Mrs. M. Heron last Friday.

—Born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beacom Sunday Sept. 20, a baby girl.

—Mrs. W. D. Hogan entertains the six hand euchre club this afternoon.

—Ben Hamlin was a guest of his parents in this city part of last week.

—Mrs. E. Pierce departed last Monday for a visit at St. Paul, Minnesota.

—Miss Gertrude Hollanbeck was a guest of relatives at Greeley last week.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Bois, of Hopkinton, visited friends here Thursday.

—Mrs. Marie Quimby, of Monticello, was a guest of Manchester friends Friday.

—Rolla Shuck, of Lisbon, was a guest of Louis Haebler part of last week.

—Miss Julia McGrew, was a guest of her sister at Independence, part of last week.

—Hon. M. W. Harmon, of Independence, spent a few hours in town Friday.

—Miss Martha Patty of Storm Lake was a guest of Miss Della Miller over Sunday.

—Miss Jennie Holmes and Mrs. H. P. Langridge were Chicago visitors last week.

—Mrs. D. O. Chamberlain enjoyed a visit with a brother at Belvidere, Ill., last week.

—Hon. J. B. Powers, of Dubuque, attended the fair and visited friends here Thursday.

—Victor Kamm, of Plattville, Wis., has accepted a position in H. S. Tubbs' barber shop.

—Mrs. Henry Bronson, of Chicago, is visiting here, a guest at the C. E. Bronson home.

—Henry Hilton, of Lamont, attended the fair, and while here was the guest of M. Eldredge.

—Mrs. Perry Thorpe, of Hopkinton, spent part of last week with relatives and friends here.

—Miss Pearl Caverly, of Dubuque, was a guest of Miss Blanche Lawrence part of last week.

—Mrs. Earl Taylor of New York, spent Thursday with relatives and friends in this city.

—The F. A. C. will meet with Mrs. J. H. Allen, Friday afternoon, Sept. 23, at two o'clock p. m.

—Miss Nellie O'Brien has returned from a several weeks visit with relatives at Cedar Rapids.

—Mrs. G. E. Newton and children, of Waterloo, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Newton last week.

—Hon. Joseph Chapman, postmaster at Coleburg, spent last week here the guest of his son, Geo. Chapman.

—E. E. Slack, until recently brakeman on the M. & O. has accepted a similar position with the Great Western.

—The dance given at the Central Opera House last Thursday evening was well attended and a good time was enjoyed.

—Henry Smith returned from S. D. Saturday. His many friends regret to learn he is confined to the house by sickness.

—Geo. W. Miller is in South Dakota looking after his land interests. He expects to return home some time next week.

—Mr. and Mrs. Will Amsden and children of Garner, Iowa, spent part of last week visiting relatives and friends in this city.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hogan have rented the Dr. Sherman residence on Butler street and will remove to this city the first of next month.

—The young ladies of the Congregational church are requested to meet with Miss Emma Hutchinson on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 25th, at 2:30 o'clock.

—Mr. Charles W. Hundley and Miss May Garnet, both of Buchanan county, Iowa, were married in this city, Wednesday, September 17, 1902, by S. L. Doggett, J. P.

—The Flora DeVoss Comedy Co. held the boards at the Central Opera House last week. The company gave good clean plays and merited the generous patronage they received.

—Sam Dixon and W. L. Storey went to Quassqueton Saturday for a two weeks' outing. Ed Hruby went down Monday for a day or two and C. P. Culler, Geo. Storey and Ned Hoyt will go down the last of the week.

—In the post office in this city, there are unclaimed letters addressed to the following persons: Mrs. E. Spores, Miss Mae Keplart, Messrs. Frank Scharder, Mart Hyde, L. W. Huebert, Filik Cloek, Harry F. Curtis, Ota Johnson, L. G. Reynolds, Luther G. Reynolds.

—Wm. R. Furman of Hartwick and Mary J. Van Antwerp of Delhi, were united in marriage at Delhi Sunday. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Van Antwerp, former residents of this city, and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Furman of Hartwick. Their hosts of friends extend their hearty congratulations to the newly married couple.

—Delaware county is to share in the benefit arising from the work of Superintendent Johnson of the United States fish hatchery in reclaiming fish from the inland waters bordering the Mississippi river. There were recently shipped to this station and put into the Maquoketa ninety-five cases of these fish consisting of coppers, rock bass, Mississippi sunfish, catfish, walleyed pike and bream. The last four are almost unknown to Maquoketa fishermen, never having been caught here in any quantities.—Hopkinton Leader.

—Will Hogan was a Leland, Ill., visitor over Sunday.

—Miss Mary Marvin of Monticello is a guest of her brother, R. M. Marvin.

—E. J. Conger, Jr. leaves tomorrow for a visit with relatives and friends in Chicago.

—Rev. and Mrs. Dewitt Perry, of Volga City, were Manchester visitors Monday.

—Miss Floy Farmer, of Edgewood, was a guest at the O. E. Hueue home last week.

—W. E. Gildner, of the firm of Gildner Bro's Clothiers is in Nora Springs on business.

—A. M. Bird, of the Winthrop Review, was a guest of friends in this city Wednesday.

—Miss Amy Jenkins, of Madison, Wisconsin, is visiting at the T. Given home in this city.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Allen expect to spend a couple of days this week angling at Quassqueton.

—Miss Lima Spores, of Independence spent part of last week with friends in this city.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Tuttle returned Monday night from a visit to their old home in New York.

—Mrs. E. E. Morse and Mrs. Wm. Crozier and little son are visiting relatives near Coleburg this week.

—Mrs. M. Burg and Mrs. Gertrude French and children were guests of relatives at Masonville over Sunday.

—Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Patton and little daughter were up from Elber last week to attend the fair and visit relatives.

—Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hoag depart next week for Hot Springs, Arkansas, where they will remain for about two months.

—Mrs. Charles Hamblin and children returned Friday from Charles City where she was a guest of her two brothers.

—An enjoyable time was had at the dances given in the Pythian Hall last Thursday and Friday evenings by the Meskimm orchestra.

—Frank Anders departed Thursday on a four months trip through the south and west, representing the S. M. Maxwell Paper Company.

—Mertie Hills, who has been a guest of Mrs. Ed Moore for the past two weeks, departed Friday for Stockton, Ill., for a visit with her sister.

—A. J. Brown left Monday afternoon, with the view of permanently locating at some point in an eastern state, just where we did not learn.

—Dr. Louis Beeher, who has established a large and growing practice in Chicago, has been appointed an assistant demonstrator in the medical department of the Northwestern University.

—Mrs. John Chamberlain, of Omaha, returned home yesterday morning after a five weeks visit with relatives and friends here. She was a guest with her daughters, Mesdames Chas. Peterson.

—The next meeting of the Court of Columbian Circle will be on Tuesday evening October 7th. All persons who have been examined and not taken their policies and paid their per capita tax are requested to do so at once.

—The new carpet purchased by W. W. Ford of the Racket Store for the M. E. Church has arrived and now adorns the church floor. If you want to see the right kind of a carpet, attend services at the Methodist church next Sunday morning.

—While a good deal of money has been invested by residents of this county during the present real estate boom, the statement of the First National Bank of this city, in this issue, shows that there is still lots of "filthy lucre" on hand, awaiting investment.

—There has been an exodus of students from this city during the past week. Among the number are Misses Ruth Graham, Mabel Cunningham, Ruth Pratt, Marie Wells and Edith Wells who will attend Cornell College, W. H. Scanlan, to Toledo, and Miss Bess Williston to Oberlin.

—Their many friends extend their heartfelt sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. John Bihorn, in the loss of their eight month old baby. The child died Saturday, of diphtheria. Mr. and Mrs. Bihorn live eight miles north of Manchester and several other cases of diphtheria are reported in that section.

—A bowling club was organized here last Tuesday evening with a membership of ten. The club is organized under the name of the Manchester bowling club. Dr. H. H. Lawrence was elected President and Manager, Fred Blair, Treasurer and Secretary, Jesse Young and Tom Hennessey, captains.

—It is some time since Horace Boise gave evidence of interest in political affairs, but as he is to be a candidate against speaker Henderson it must be that he was only sleeping after all. We fear the awakening will be rather rude.—Greeley Home Press. Yes the awakening was very rude, startlingly so to the tariff barons, their chiefs and deluded followers.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—Chas. Campbell is a guest of Manchester friends.

—H. L. Rann was a business visitor in Dubuque Wednesday.

—Harold Hadley was a Chicago visitor the first of the week.

—A. A. Anderson and son, Herbert, went to Chicago Sunday morning.

—George Malven has accepted a position on the Sioux Falls (S. D.) Journal.

—Charles Slack and wife were guests of relatives and friends in this city last week.

—Cal Flannagan and wife of Strawberry Point were guests of friends here Friday.

—Roland Toogood of Dyersville was a guest of relatives and friends here Friday.

—Mr. and Mrs. G. Coykendall, of Waterloo were Manchester visitors Saturday.

—Mrs. Emma Muhe, of Dyersville, was a guest of Mrs. E. W. Dunham last week.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Dick, of Waverly, was a guest of friends in this city last week.

—Ray Estler and Ed Brueckner of Dyersville were Manchester visitors Thursday.

—Mrs. A. A. Anderson and daughter Gertrude were Chicago visitors several days last week.

—Clark Satterlee returned to Cedar Falls Saturday to resume his studies at the Iowa State Normal.

—Mr. and Mrs. H. Harper and son, of Waterloo were guests at the I. L. Waters home last week.

—Miss Lena Sloan, of Strawberry Point, was a guest of Manchester friends part of last week.

—Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Raymond, of Independence, were the guests of relatives here during the fair.

—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen of Independence visited relatives and friends in this city part of last week.

—Next Sunday will be rally day at the Congregational Sunday school. All members are requested to be present.

—Mrs. O. C. Clark departed Saturday for Sioux City, called there by the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. Ed D. Kerr.

—Mr. and Mrs. Ben Davis of Strawberry Point were guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Dubois last Friday.

—Ethel Cowell, of Freport, Ill., returned home Saturday after a five weeks visit at the Cal Atkinson and T. J. Jacobs homes in this city.

—The Eastern Iowa Buttermakers' and Dairymen's Association will hold a meeting in this city, Thursday, Prof. G. L. McKay, an expert scorer, will be present.

—Mrs. N. S. Craig and daughter, Clara, and Mrs. S. L. Cary, who have been guests of relatives and friends in this city departed last week for their homes in Jennings, La.

—The Ladies Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church of this city will hold an Echo service of the annual Presbyterian meeting recently held at Dubuque, in the place of the regular service next Sunday evening.

—Mrs. James Ward and daughter, Mary, of Cedar Rapids, visited with Mrs. A. Ward in this city last Tuesday. They were enroute to Chicago to attend the wedding of Miss Gwen Laude, a personal friend of the family.

—The Nebraska Indian ball team will play the local team at the fair grounds next Tuesday afternoon. Steve Kolar and Frank Klaus who have been playing with the Waseca team this season will be here to assist the home boys.

—The many friends of John H. Ward, formerly of this city but now of Carbondale, Ill., will be pleased to hear that he has received a promotion and is now Chief Accountant of the St. Louis Division with head quarters at St. Louis.

—George Gilsendorf has accepted a position as baggage man at the Illinois Central depot to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Harold Hadley, who enters the employ of the government at the Spring Branch hatchery this week.

—A car containing 35 land turtles and a cage of iguanas passed through here yesterday afternoon consigned from California to London, England, where they will be placed in a zoo garden. One of the turtles weighed 1000 pounds and it is estimated to be 3000 years old.

—Marriage licenses have been issued by Clerk Gergen during the past week to Martin D. Manthey and Lizzie Pligge, Wm. R. Farman and Mary Van Antwerp, Charles W. Hundley and Mary Garnet, and Julian E. Currier and Violetta M. Smock.

—The Health Magazine recommends that, when you contract a cold, before resorting to drugs of any kind, try the following process:—If able, go out into the open air and breathe copiously and deeply for about twenty times, repeating the operation every hour until cured. If unable to go out, have the windows and doors open, wrap yourself in blankets or other warm clothing, during which time do as just directed. Some persons having had a cough for six weeks have got rid of it by this process; also cured themselves of colds never contracted. Therefore, everywhere try to cultivate full and frequent lung inflation by breathing clear out, clear in, and low down—that is, make all your breathing as when taking a long breath; and this will have a tendency to throw off the waste materials at the pores, and revitalize the blood, and thereby impart warmth and energy to the system. See that the rooms are well ventilated, and especially your sleeping apartment. Wear wollen stockings and strong boots. Somewhat sties made of rabbit skin.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals a larger output than was expected. More than half the oats crop has been lost, or rendered practically worthless by excessive rains. Spring wheat and barley suffered much detriment from the same cause. Early planting, timely cultivation, pushing the harvesting, and careful stacking, appear to have been most successful in this season of adverse conditions.

—The Iowa Crop Bulletin, for week ending Sept. 22, 1902, says: The daily mean temperature of the week was 3 to 6 degrees below normal, with light frosts in many localities. The rainfall was generally light, except in some of the northwestern counties. The conditions were favorable for cutting corn, threshing and other farm work. There are numerous reports of damage to late corn from effects of frosts in all districts, but the most serious injury appears to have been wrought in the north central and portions of the central districts. The full extent of loss in quality of the crop may not be ascertained until the corn is gathered. It is certain that there will be an unusually large amount of soft and unmarketable stuff to be disposed of by feeding as early as practicable. The potato harvest is in progress, and the yield promises to be fairly good for the state at large. The harvest of apples reveals