Miss Stella Rich went to Iowa Falls Tuesday to sing at the Chautauque Assembly.

Mrs. Henry Rakow returned to her home at Page, Neb., Monday.

Elmer True of Edgewood was in Lamont Wednesday.

A very pretty home wedding was celebrated Wednesday, August 5th, at high noon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Franks on Pine street when their daughter Vera Mabelle became the bride of Dr. G. B. Young, of Jefferson, Iowa, Rev. A. O. Strick reading the Episcopal marriage service. The bride's brother, M. D. Franks of Omaha, gave her in marriage. The house was tastefully decorated with pink and white carnations, sweet peas and smilax. While the congratulations were being offered, Miss Stella Rich sang "I Love You." The bride's dress was of white Persian lawn trimmed with Valenciennes lace. She carried white roses. The groom wore a suit of rich black. Mr. and Mrs. Young departed on the 4 o'clock train for a two weeks trip on the lakes. The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Woodruff of Des Moines, Dr. Young, wife and daughter of Jefferson, parents and sister of the groom, and M. D. Franks of Omaha. A wedding dinner was served to the guests present.

SPECIAL HOMESEAKER'S EXCURSION

TO Ransom County, N. D.,

BANNER COUNTY

OF THE STATE FOR Diversified Farming and Dairying

Within the past few years the farmers of Ransom county have been gradually turning from grain raising to diversified crops, dairying and stock raising. No section in the Northwest has better natural conditions for such farming, and that Ransom county will soon become famous in this line seems to admit of no doubt. Wheat and flax are the great staples. Corn was successfully raised here by the Indians before a white man trod these prairies. During the year 1901 sales of live stock brought to the county $182,731. In 1900, the last government census report, 230,024 pounds of butter were shipped from Ransom county. One farm alone, from 21 cows, sold $771 worth of butter besides raising 19 calves.

Tuesday, August 18th.

Will be our great excursion day. The Southeastern part of North Dakota is as beautiful a country and as fruitful as any part we ever known. The climate is delightful and healthful: drinking water pure; soil, a rich black loam with clay subsoil. We want you to see this country and have made a round fare so low that every reader of this can afford to take the trip for his vacation. For only Settling a Hotel Bill in Portugal.

In Portugal when the traveler asks for his bill the landlord pleasantly rubs his hands together and answers, "Whatever your excellency pleases to give."

This will not do, for the traveler is sure to offer too little or too much and to be thought either a spendthrift or a niggard, so he has to make a speech, thank the landlord for his confidence and beg for a detailed statement.

Then the landlord, politely deprecating anything of the kind, is slowly persuaded to check off the various items upon the fingers of his hand, with a long argument before each successive finger is raised and doubled down.

"What does it come to?" asks the traveler, taking out his purse at last, when the hand and the account are closed.

"What, did his excellency not add up?"

His excellency having been incapable of this act of mental arithmetic, the addition is gone over again, from the little finger backward, with a finger or two perhaps representing forgotten items brought into account from the other hand.

The sum total is gladly paid, and host and guest are mutually content, the guest knowing that he has not been overcharged more than perhaps a thumb and two fingers.

Ancient Needlework.

Some of the oldest needlework extant was found in Egyptian and Egyptian-Roman tombs—a rough sort of flaxen cloth, like the bath towelings of our own day. It has loops of wool worked with some kind of needle, raised on one side of the stuff only, and a kind of tapestry partly woven and partly outlined in needlework. The mummies which an insatiable modern curiosity has disturbed are wrapped in linen, as less liable than woolen cloth to the ravages of moth, and the art of weaving the flax that grew so plentifully on the banks of the Nile was probably learned by the Israelites during their sojourn in Egypt.

Ezekiel speaks of "fine linen with broadened work from Egypt." Linen seems the natural ground and foundation of all embroidery. It often lasts longer than the wool itself, can be cleaned and will not fray or wear out, as do more costly silks and satins.—London Spectator.

An Old Recipe.

Here is a recipe for the bite of a mad dog taken from the "Universal Magazine of Knowledge," published by John Hinton at the King's Arms in Newgate street, London, May, 1753: "Take the youngest shoots of the elder tree, peel off the outside, then scraping off the green rind, take two handfuls of it, which simmer a quarter of an hour in five pints of ale. Strain it off and when cold put it in bottles. Take half a pint, make warm the first thing in the morning and the last at night and be sure to keep yourself warm; also bathe the part affected with some of the liquor warmed, the dose to be repeated the next new or full moon after the first. It is good for cattle as well as the human species."

Whims of a Horse.

The better the horse the more spirit he has. The disposition of an Arab hunter is thus described by Sewall Ford in "Horses Nice": No paragon, however, was Pasha. He had a temper, and his whims were as many as those of a schoolgirl. He was particular as to who put on his bridle. He had notions concerning the manner in which a currycomb should be used. A red ribbon or a handanna handkerchief put him in a rage, while green, the holy color of the Mohammedan, soothed his nerves. A lively pair of heels he had, and he knew how to use his teeth.

What Meerschman Really Is.

There is a very general impression in the minds of smokers that the meerschman part of the pipe, which they treasure so carefully and take so much pride and satisfaction in "coloring" is compressed sea foam. Such, however, is not the case. The German word meerschman means in English foam of the sea, but its formation has nothing to do with the sea. It is a kind of clay, comes out of mines like coal and is found only in Turkey.

A Highland Steed.

The following little dialogue was overheard in a far north hamlet: "Mac, I been ye have fallen in love w' Bonnie Kate Stevens?" "Weel, Sandy, I was near—verra near—daein' it, but I found the lassie had nae siller, so I said to myself, 'Mac, be a man!' And I was a man, and noo I pass her by w' silent contempt."—London Telegraph.

Grandma Petlon went to Manchester Tuesday of last week to spend a few days with her daughter, Mrs. L. M. Davis.

Z. Oswald has gone to his old home in North Carolina, being called there by the serious illness of a brother.

Wm. Kaster, wife and daughter, were city visitors last Friday.

Jay Lillibridge delivered eleven loads of hogs in Manchester last Tuesday evening. After unloading the hogs, the men drove over, tied their teams on Franklin Street and went into the M. & O. lunch room for a lunch and some hot coffee.

When they had finished their lunch and were ready to return home, Orman Hartman found only a piece of one hitch strap where he had tied his team. Upon looking around it was plain to be seen that they had turned around and gone east from the buggy factory, as that was the direction they would go to get home and they could not find them about town it was supposed they had broken loose and started home. The men hurried along home thinking perhaps they would overtake them. When they got to Jay Lillibridge's and had not seen them they phoned Hartman to learn whether the team had got home and found it had not arrived there. Then Jay Lillibridge, George Davis and Orman Hartman went back to town on the east road, drove through the different streets but could find no trace of the missing team. They
