Editor Joseph McCormick and Will McCormick spent Sunday in Chicago and during their absence Merton Cox attended to the publication of the Herald.

Winthrop Review: A. M. Bird made a business trip to Manchester Saturday. Roy Morse was a passenger for Manchester on Monday evening's passenger train.

The passenger going south on the I. C. to Cedar Rapids and the Clipper going east in the morning changed time Monday, the former arriving at 8:20 and the latter at 8:30.

Among the names of those prominent in this year's session of the Upper Iowa M. E. conference at Cedar Rapids last week, we note that Dr. Dittmer was a member of the committee on credentials and Rev. H. O. Pratt was on the committee to confer with a similar committee from the Iowa Conference concerning the boundary question.

Col. Busby was in Manchester Monday and though we had to forego the near approach of winter, yet we feel it due to our readers to warn them that the cold season is verily upon us. We know this because the Colonel, who is what is termed a "tramp print" migrates to the south land in the winter likewise to the North in the summer, and it is a never broken rule that his appearance here is always a sign that it is time to get out furs and start the furnace.

Saturday was the sixtieth birthday anniversary of G. O. Harrison, and a number of his friends went in that evening to assist him and his "guide" wife to celebrate the auspicious event. A very handsome briar pipe was presented to the host, and that comfort, peace and plenty may be Mr. Harrison's lot during many years yet to come is the wish, not only of those who enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison on Saturday evening, but also of a host more of their friends.

From a last week's program of the attractions at the Orpheum at Los Angeles, we note that Mr. and Mrs. Bloom—Low Bloom and Jane Cooper—were doing the star act in that theatre. This is what a Los Angeles paper said of them: "Low Bloom and Jane Cooper are the best of the new arrivals. Bloom does a tramp act which is distinguished most of all for its remarkable resemblance in make-up, costume and general toggery to the real thing. No multi-colored patchwork for Bloom—just the tawdriest, plainest kind of "loped and windowed raggedness." He also has a good joke or two; he says among other things that he doesn't drink water for fear of rusting his iron constitution."

The Crop Bulletin for week ending September 28, 1903, says: "This has been an ideal week for ripening the belated crops, and advancement of usual fall work. The temperature was about normal, with drying winds, and more than the usual amount of sunshine. The week closed with light rains, followed by a moderate frost on the morning of the 27th, which caused no material damage to any field crops. Reports indicate that corn binders are at work in all districts, and a considerable acreage will be put in to shock to save the valuable fodder. Except in limited areas which suffered most heavily from storms and floods, reports from the fields are more cheerful in tone, giving assurance of better returns from the harvest than was deemed possible during the first half of the month. About three-fourths of the corn area of the state is now beyond danger of injury by frost, and a considerable part of the balance is rapidly nearing maturity. While it is certain the total output of the crop will be much below the returns of 1902, yet it is likely to possess greater commercial and feeding value. Excellent progress is being made in plowing, fall seeding and harvest of the minor crops. The potato crop as a whole will be much below the average. Apples and grapes are better than earlier reports indicated."

—A Day in the Country.

With a sincere sisterly regard and respect, we would refer the members of the hereinafter named club to a local appearing in the Greeley Home Press of last Thursday in which it was said: "Hazelnuts are ripe and very numerous." And in explanation of all of this, we must unfold this tale.

The Friday afternoon club is composed of fourteen ladies, F. F. Ms of truest blue, and their learning and dignity are proud evidences of the culture extant in our little city.

Each year, as a change from the studios work of the season, the members hold a picnic and among the remaining monarchs of a once primeval forest they dine and sup, and a veritable feast of humor and wit is sumptuously laded out, so that this day is a red letter day in their calendar.

This year they were bidden by the social committee to attend on the day the Greeley Home Press made its pleasant assertion, to attend a Nutting party, and it is safe to say the twelve ladies who participated in the unique entertainment which followed will long remember the day as the most exciting of any entertainment ever given by the club.

A request had been tendered to Livyrtman Thos. Hennessey that he give the ladies a perfectly safe and gentle team. Ten ladies were seated in the hack pulled by this perfectly safe and gentle team and a start to hunt the hickory nut forest and the hazel nut pasture was made at near the hour of eight a. m., amid many gay and happy sallies.

Everything went merrily enough until the city was left behind when some one insisted upon hastening and was for urging the p. s. and g. team to drop their serious work and gambol along with the mood of the party. The driver, however, immediately put an end to this foolish request by informing her co-travelers that one of the p. s. and g. horses had a very sore leg and was unable to do more than give them a leisurely saunter.

Several other imperfections of anatomy were discovered also and the sympathies of all aroused so that every sand spot found all the ladies but the driver walking in order that the p. s. and g. team who had sore limbs, etc., would not be discommoded or wearied.

At one o'clock, p. m. after a pleasant walk of about four and one half miles with intervals of riding that occupied the intervening five hours, the ladies arrived at Lindsay bridge and not a hickory or hazel nut in sight. Hunger and thirst had become so rampant among them that it was decided to stop here for dinner and rest. The team was here lead to water and fed with much care and their poor lame limbs carefully bandaged by their sympathetic caretakers.

An accident that occurred at this time served to enliven the dinner hour, though it was the source of much discomfort to the injured; the Mesdames Hoag and Barr had driven out in their own conveyance and the former, accompanied by Mrs. Sherwood, was sent after water. Upon their return their buggy went into a deep hole, overturning, and ladies and water crashed down together. Mrs. Hoag received a shoulder bruise, and Mrs. Sherwood's left wrist was very severely sprained.

At three o'clock the team was hitched up with the idea that the club would continue on their way toward the forest and pasture aforesaid. They reconsidered, however, and determined that pro rata the time of their morning drive, it would be better to start for home if they wanted to arrive by dark-time. After adjusting themselves in the vehicle, Mrs. driver gathered the lines and clucked to her non-ambitious team. No movement of the p. s. and g. horses. Another chirp but again no stir. Whereupon it dawned on ten mortals of the female persuasion that their team was of the kind either that stood without hitching or else belong to a union. Every lady of the F. A. C. will hereafter vote for rural telephones, (and Tom Hennessey for Sheriff) by 'phone Mr. Hennessey was called to the rescue and another horse substituted for the one that had gone on a strike. Still their troubles were not ended; they had to walk all the way and when on the Porteous hill, the harness broke, patience was no longer a consistent virtue. And by 'phone Mr. Hennessey was again called, this time he brought his beautiful white team and the picnicers arrived home in state at about the eighth hour of the afternoon.

One other accident happened on the homeward drive; Mrs. Granger in getting out of the omnibus sometime during the journey tripped and fell, and badly hurt her back.

It is needless to add that after this day spent in the country, the ladies, especially the maimed and wounded, were joyously received back into the bosoms of their respective families. And Tom! well
