

Stupendous Beyond Conception The Great Acme and Friend Making Sale

Of the Snodgrass Clothing Company, Manchester, Iowa, is now going on in full blast. Never before have such crowds been witnessed at a sale in Manchester as have attended our great Friend Making Sale. They come for miles and miles around and not one customer dissatisfied with his purchase. They Come, They Come, more eager to buy than before.

You Understand by this time, we hope

We want you to understand that when we announce a special sale, the importance of it lies in the fact that we announce it. A special sale at this store differs from any other in the fact that we announce it. A special sale at this store differs from any other in the fact that it's at THIS STORE where quality counts, not figures. You may have the fullest confidence in our values and your savings. We give you an absolute guarantee of satisfaction with anything we sell. The fact that you bought it here is all the assurance you need.

The Friend Making Sale now going on at our store of Suits, Overcoats and Furnishing goods and trousers made by world's foremost manufacturers and bought by us direct, gives particular emphasis to this idea. They're very exceptional qualities now being offered at prices in many instances less than wholesale worth.

Your Opportunity, Don't Miss It.

SAVE THE BABIES.

The State Board of Health has been notified from all sections of the state of the alarming infant mortality from entirely preventable causes. As the greatest asset of Iowa is its healthful population, it is important that every baby be kept well and for these reasons the Board makes the following suggestions to fathers and mothers:

The hot weather of this season of the year is extremely dangerous to the lives of infants and young children not only because of the depressing effect of high temperature in general, but especially because it is harder to preserve all articles of food, especially cow's milk, in hot weather.

For this reason it is especially important that cow's milk to be used for feeding babies should be the purest and freshest that you can afford to buy. During hot weather ice is absolutely necessary for the preservation of milk, where a cool spring house is not available, and no milk should be fed to a baby which is not cooled by ice around the bucket as soon as it comes from the cow, and it should be kept next to the ice until ready to be used. A little money spent for ice may prevent illness and its much greater expense for nursing, medicine and medical attendance. Unless you are absolutely sure your water supply is pure, it is safest to use water which has been boiled for drinking and for the preparation of the baby's food.

If it becomes necessary to feed the baby either entirely or only in part upon the bottle, remember that absolute cleanliness is necessary in all details of feeding. Because some babies have lived through filth is no argument, that yours will. As soon as a bottle is filled it should be thoroughly washed with cold water, then cleaned with hot water and borax (1 teaspoonful to a pint of hot water) and set aside in a sunny place for further cleansing before being used again.

Do not use complicated nipples, and especially do not use a bottle with a long rubber tube. It is impossible to keep it clean and it will certainly cause bowel trouble. After a bottle is finished, the nipple should be removed at once, turned inside out over the finger and scrubbed with cold water and a brush kept only for this purpose. After use, always boil the brush. The cleaned nipple should be kept in fresh borax (1 teaspoonful to a pint of water) in a covered glass. Rinse the nipple in boiling water before using it. Do not put the nipple into your own mouth to find out whether the milk is warm enough. Let a few drops fall on your wrist; if it is too hot for your wrist it is too hot for the baby's mouth.

No general instructions can be given about the preparation of a milk mixture for your baby. Each baby needs a combination suited to his digestion. The mixture upon which some other baby is thriving may be too strong or too weak for your baby. Let your doctor tell you how to mix the food. If it is necessary to use cream, do not buy it, it is likely to be stale, but get it by pouring off half a pint from the top of a quart bottle, after cleaning the mouth of the bottle.

During the summer it is usual to bring the baby's food to a scald after it is prepared. It should then be poured into the clean bottles, corked with baked clean cotton and kept next to the ice until needed. Be sure not to heat a bottle when you go to bed and keep it in bed until morning time, because you do not want to go to the ice box for it and heat it when the baby needs it. This is certain to make the baby sick.

Babies practically never starve and they are frequently killed by being fed after illness has gone. Every drop of milk that goes into a baby's mouth after bowel trouble begins, simply adds to the poison already there. Serious or fatal illness can be caused by keeping up milk feeding after the bowels become disordered.

Do not put too much clothing on the baby in summer. Never use tight waist bands. Petticoats and skirts should be supported by straps over the shoulders.

Bathe the baby every day. When it is very hot a quick sponging all over later in the day will give him comfort and make him sleep better.

Fresh air is as important for the baby's health as fresh food. During the summer keep the baby out of doors as much as possible and keep it out of the kitchen. They frequently get sunstroked from too much heat in doors.

If the baby has an eruption or breaking out on the skin, consult the doctor. Every rash is not pricky heat; it may be some serious disease like scarlet fever, smallpox or chickenpox.

TUBERCULOSIS LEADS.

Statistics Show all Other Diseases Distanced. Also That It is Very Infectious.

(From Board of Control of State Institutions.)

Des Moines, August 15.—Tuberculosis still leads all contagious and infectious diseases as a death dealing agent, barring pneumonia. For the first six months of the year 1910, the Health Department of Iowa shows there were 724 persons died of tuberculosis, 688 having died of tuberculosis of the lungs. In the same period there was none who died of small pox, 37 of scarlet fever, 42 of measles, 56 of whooping cough, 91 of diphtheria, 123 of typhoid fever, 78 of appendicitis—a total of 447. From all of these contagious and infectious diseases, together with appendicitis, thrown in for good measure, compared with the number dying of tuberculosis, it will be seen that the white plague is still easily the "captain of the men of death." That this disease is exceedingly infectious is witnessed by the fact that it leads all of the contagious and infectious diseases by a very large per cent. The stealthy character and insidious nature of tuberculosis, destroying as it does, without exciting attention, makes it imperative that restrictive measures be established in every community throughout the state. The people should use the knowledge which they now have on the methods of preventing the spread of this plague. The public drinking cup should be abandoned. It is an abomination, and no intelligent community should tolerate it. Children in particular should be guarded against its dreadful danger.

The tuberculosis dairy cow presents another aspect of danger, which may be considered serious when viewed in the light of the above startling statistics. That tuberculosis abounds in dairy districts is a fact, and the tuberculosis animal is a serious menace to the health of a community, this particularly with reference to little children, whose food supply is obtained largely from the dairy.

If Roosevelt acts quickly and with clear-cut candor he may prevent further inroads on his popularity. If he does not so act, the movement which he is given credit for having started will march on without him.

Will T. R. Aid Lodge?

Word has come into the west via the Associated Press that Roosevelt will campaign for the re-election of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, who declares the ultimate consumer is a myth.

Roosevelt's admirers are gulping hard over this information. They have been educated by LaFollette and other genuine progressives to know Lodge as a tool of Aldrich and the special interests.

They also have the word of no lesser authority than Representative Butler Ames, a Republican insurgent of Lodge's own state of Massachusetts, that the political machine of Senator Lodge "is backed by all the large corporations" and is used to "advance the selfish financial schemes of the large railroads, banking and manufacturing interests he (Lodge) serves in the halls of Congress."

Roosevelt's great popularity has been largely due to the belief of the people that he was the enemy of such corporation servers as Lodge.

Therefore all over the land the president's friends are asking: "How can Roosevelt conscientiously speak for a man like Lodge, when he does nothing for men like LaFollette?"

The Democratic Position.
Republican spellbinders have intimated the democratic party stands for free trade. Absolute free trade is impractical with the United States. Every country in the world, including Great Britain, levies some tariff, and this country must always do so.

The democratic position on the subject is substantially as follows:
First: The government should never collect one penny more of revenue than necessary to administer its affairs with rigid economy.

Second: The lowest rate that will yield the greatest amount of revenue should be imposed.
Third: Luxuries should always bear the highest revenue duties.

Fourth: Experience has vindicated the wisdom of ad valorem duties as being the correct practice.
Fifth: Revenue duties should be laid so as to operate with equality throughout the union, discriminating neither for nor against any class or section.

Sixth: Absolute necessities should go on the free list.
Seventh: There should be imposed a revenue duty upon practically all imports, with certain exceptions. These exceptions should be determined by the test.

Imports coming in competition with trust-controlled products should be placed on the free list, and articles of absolute necessity should be imported free of duty.
