HARRIET D. BROWNELL.
Harriet D. Brownell was born in Washington Co., New York, July 9, 1837. At an early age she came with her parents to Rockford, Illinois and in 1856 they came to Greeley, Iowa, locating on a farm just west of that place. She was married to James E. Connel, Jan. 8, 1858, and moved to Fayette county, settling on a farm, where they lived until 1881, at which time they moved to Maynard. Her husband died July 7, 1903. The deceased was the last of a family of seven children, all of whom have preceded her to that better world. She passed away September 23, aged 73 years, 2 months, 14 days. She was a loving and devoted wife, a kind and obliging neighbor, ever unselfish of self, she thought only to render assistance to those around her and it sorely grieved her many friends that her declining years could not be spent with those she loved.

The funeral services were held at the Presbyterian church at Maynard, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Mr. P. E. Jenkinson, and she was laid to rest in Long Grove cemetery, beside her husband by the beautiful ritualistic services of the Eastern Star, of which she was a faithful member. She was also a member of the Rebekah lodge.—Greeley Home Press.

TUBERCULOSIS NEWS.

Tuberculosis A House Disease. Home Sanitation Important Fresh Air Prevention.

Now that winter is coming on, there will be a disposition on the part of a great many people to prepare for its advance by making their houses airtight. They will do this for the purpose of making the house comfortable and to insure the health of the inmates against colds and diseases believed to be incident to winter. They will bank the house around with manure or dirt and put storm windows on, together with storm doors, to if possible keep out the cold air.

These precautions, however, are directly opposed to sanitation and good health. Instead of preventing colds and diseases of the respiratory tract, they but contribute to them. Tuberculosis is a house disease. The very fact that patients are taken into the open air for treatment, is suggestive that the open air should be freely admitted into the dwelling. This is especially true with reference to the sleeping rooms. The open sleeping apartment should be provided. No bedroom but that should have an abundance of air admitted to it whenever occupied.

A thorough renovation of the house from basement to garret should be made, with such disinfection as may be available in making the home healthful. The ventilation of bedrooms should be constant, as it requires a vast amount of fresh air each hour for an adult, 3,500 cubic feet. It requires 3,000 cubic feet each hour for a youth and about 2,500 cubic feet each hour for a little child.

In this connection, it might be well to state that the proper care of the body, such as frequent bathing and nutritious diet are essential, especially with growing children.

The hygienic environment of the home is of first consideration in the prevention of all kinds of diseases, especially of the respiratory tract. In a combat against tuberculosis, the most potent factor is the fresh air. Of course, people should be kept warm while sleeping, and ample arrangement should be made for the proper protection of the body, but it is desirable to utter this note of warning, that as winter approaches, the people should not relax their sleeping in the open air, but should rather prepare to continue this throughout the winter.

SOME EPIDEMIC PARALYSIS NOTES.
It is of interest to note that the state board of health has issued a bulletin in which is stated the fact that the degree of susceptibility to contract infantile or epidemic paralysis is low. Only about 6 per cent of exposed persons develop the disease as compared to 17 per cent for diphtheria, 22 per cent for scarlet fever and nearly 90 per cent for measles.

In Washington, D. C., where there has been an epidemic of the disease, an epidemic among the chickens in that city and vicinity was also in evidence and an investigation was made on the supposition that there may have been some connection between the two. Dr. Schroeder, a fowl disease expert, issues a statement to the effect that epidemic paralysis is an infection which cannot be traced to fowls.

In that city they have adopted the rule of barring from school all children who have within three weeks been exposed to the disease. They are obliged to remain away from school for two weeks.

CARROLL AFTER DOLLIVER'S SEAT.

Indications Are That the Governor Plans to Oust Iowa's Talented Senator.

Political observers have lately awakened to the fact that Governor Carroll is treading the neutral path between the progressive and stand-pat lines for no other reason than to pave the way for his candidacy to the U. S. Senate. Ridiculous as this may appear to most everyone it is doubtless the serious aim of Carroll. C. T. Roberts, who is now in Iowa writing a series of articles for the Chicago Examiner on the political situation in Iowa said in a recent letter:

There is one particular reason why Carroll is not meeting with encouragement from either standpatters or insurgents. He is not only a candidate for re-election, his friends say, but he has his eye on the Senate seat two years from now. In the meantime, he will keep silent as to whether he is an insurgent or standpatter, and this has led his enemies to say that Carroll is for Carroll at all times and no move will be made by him that will not have for its object his advancement politically.

The United States Senate is his objective point. He so anxious to get into that body that it is admitted he has already begun to manipulate things so as to make Senator Dolliver's re-election impossible and his own certain. But there are other candidates for the Senate who will not take the Governor's ambition as seriously as he does himself.

Congressman Walter I. Smith, the Cannon candidate for Speaker of the House of Representatives, if it is republican, will be a candidate for Senator two years from now. He is the man upon whom the standpatters are basing their hopes of regaining control of the Republican party. This has alienated many standpatters from Carroll's support.

Dolliver's Friends Angered.
Friends of Dolliver are also saying some harsh things about the Governor entering into a contest against Dolliver, who they say, has made a name for Iowa in the senate. This ambition of the Governor is causing no end of friction, and his cry for harmony is charged to be for the purpose of aiding his election to the senate.

He is striving to wipe out the dividing line between the standpatters and insurgents, it is charged to knife Dolliver and Smith when a next Senator is chosen.
