GOLLMAR BROTHERS ARRANGE FOR THE CHILDREN.

Gollmar Brothers Show, which is booked to exhibit one day only in Manchester has made unusual efforts to entertain the little folks as well as the adults with wholesome and profitable amusement.

The date of a visit by the Gollmar Brothers becomes a veritable "children's day."

In this country there are hundreds of large cities and good towns where the Gollmar Brothers Show is popular. It is always accorded a hearty welcome and liberal patronage wherever it exhibits.

The Gollmar would like to please the children of every community, but it is a physical impossibility for their circus to visit all of its towns at just the right time. To do such a thing would necessitate the dividing of the show, and this they would not do. No matter how small a town the Gollmar Brothers Circus may visit, it is never divided. It is one of the little rules that has made the explanation what it is.

It is a fact that the Gollmars made greater efforts, and have gone to more expense to entertain the little folks than any other managers. Older people can always find entertainment, but it is the little ones that are neglected by many. Almost one-half of the space in the animal tent is filled with objects of special interest to the little people. The entire center is filled with the finest educational ponies ever seen in one collection. They are of all sizes and colors. These ponies are used in the magnificent parades to pull the little cages of the miniature menagerie. Almost one side of the big menagerie tent is filled with little, cute and costly cages, made in imitation of the larger ones. These small cages are inhabited by small animals, such as monkeys, etc. In the circus proper, there are many clowns, who are employed for the sole purpose of entertaining the children. Buster Brown is added to these several acts of trained animals. The child who is so fortunate as to have enjoyed such an amusement is winning much in an educational way.
