Poultry Wanted!

If you have any live poultry to sell, get our prices before you sell. We lead and others follow. We are receiving thousands of pounds every day, but our orders are much larger, so would like to have any one and every one that has live poultry to sell to get in touch with us. We would like to know where every live turkey is, so when the proper time comes we can buy them. So if you have live turkeys, please call us up or come in and tell us. The time to sell your old turkeys is for the Thanksgiving market. Feed the young ones for the Xmas market. We will be in the market for live and dressed Ducks and Geese, just as soon as the weather gets colder, so get them fat and be ready to sell. Poultry is plentiful this year and will be much cheaper than the past two years so get them fat, and they will weigh heavy. If you have not sold your Timothy Seed bring us a sample. We are cash buyers. In four weeks we have bought $5,000.00 worth. GET THE HABIT. SELL US YOUR POULTRY, EGGS AND GRASS SEED.

OUR DEBT TO JOHN STEWART.

The following is taken from the Chicago Dairy Producer, a periodical published by a company of which S. B. Shilling, well known in Delaware county is president and manager. "The recent article by H. F. Wright in the Creamery Journal of one of the early creameries in Iowa, the state where the creamery system originated, brings to mind the fact that no attempt has ever been made to compile the early history of the creamery industry. It also brings to mind the fact that in a cemetery in that state, in an almost unmarked grave, lies the body of the man who gave to the West, if not to the world, the present creamery system; and, like all pioneers in movements of this kind, he died not knowing or appreciating the greatness of the work he wrought. Little did John Stewart think when he built the Little Creamery at Spring Branch, three miles east of Manchester, Iowa, that he was laying the foundation for a business that would prove in time to be the greatest wealth producing industry in the field of agriculture. Little did he think of the many and varied kinds of the same institution that he founded would spring up or that there would be a fight for supremacy of one over the other. Little did he or any of the farmers of that locality think that 30 years after a creamery on almost the same site of 'his original creamery would be in operation and the milk furnished by the sons of the fathers who furnished the milk for the first creamery 30 years ago. The history of the early creamery business will some day make interesting reading. There are men living today who were present and interested in the founding of these first creameries but their number is fast becoming less and a few years more will see the passing of the last of them. The first butter maker that ever worked in a creamery, Mr. Van Dusen, still lives in Manchester; and, although an old man now, can relate many reminiscences of the establishing and operating of this first creamery. The aid of some historian should be invoked to secure all data possible and compile into book form for the benefit of future generations. The creamery is a fixed and permanent institution in the agricultural interests of this country. It is the greatest wealth producing factor of all our agricultural pursuits and no cry is heard going up from communities where one of these institutions is located over the conservation of the soil's fertility. Great is the creamery and its greatness is just becoming appreciated. Hundreds of thousands of dairymen, butter-makers, dealers and even consumers owe a debt of gratitude to the man out of whose brain the creamery system was evolved. They owe a debt of gratitude to all the pioneers who furnished the milk to make the first untried experiment of this first institution a success. They owe to John Stewart a monument of everlasting marble whose shaft cannot penetrate the sky too high, or whose foundation cannot be too deep or firm to be commensurate with his benefactions to all the people."

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION IN 1912. No other paper is quite like The Youth's Companion. It is taken in half a million homes where the choice of reading is made with as much care as the choice of friends.
