During his active years he managed his business affairs with care and prudence, and has been able to enjoy retirement from active work for many years. ## WEATHER CROP BULLETIN.

For the week ending September 29, 1912.

The damp, cloudy and cold weather which prevailed during the third week of the month continued during the past seven days. Heavy to killing frosts were general, and freezing temperatures occurred in many localities on two or three mornings. Various reports are received as to the damage done by the recent frosts on the late-planted corn, but the extent of injury will not be fully determined until after the crop has been harvested. Probably 20 per cent. of the crop was somewhat damaged, but as a whole, the crop is remarkably large and sound in view of the fact that the spring was late, and at many times during the season the weather was not considered to be favorable. Probably 80 to 85 per cent. of the total yield will be sound and merchantable, and the balance will possess much feeding value. That there was not more damage done by the frosts is due to the fact that the corn was somewhat cloudy early in the morning after each frost and remained so during the day. The final reports for the season will show that Iowa has produced one of the largest, if not the largest crops of corn and small grain in the history of the state. In fact, all crops have been good except apples. The frequent and well-distributed showers have put the ground in excellent condition for fall plowing, and considerable winter wheat was sown during the past week. Pastures are in fine condition and stock is generally healthy except some hog cholera prevailing in the southwestern counties.
