

EASTER OBSERVANCES AT HOME AND ABROAD

EASTER is the principal festival of the Christian year, observed in commemoration of the resurrection of Jesus Christ. The resurrection took place just after the Jewish feast of the Passover. The Christians of Jerusalem, and after them those of the Asiatic churches generally, were accustomed to hold the feast of Easter on this same day, or simultaneously with the feast of the Jewish Passover. This custom was not acceptable to the Gentile churches in Italy and the west generally, and they changed the time of Easter observance to the Sunday following the fourteenth day of the moon, or month, and this difference of practice led to grave discussions between the east and the west, which were finally settled by the agreement at the council of Nice in the early part of the fourth century to make the western usage universal. From that time

Easter has been observed not only in Christian Europe and America, but far across the sea in the ancient stronghold of pagan superstition. And so it has come to pass that the very word Easter thrills the heart with gladness, bringing its welcome announcement that the gloom is past, and the time of bud and blossom, light and spray, glancing wings and sudden songs, drifting clouds and prismatic rain, the time of amance and beauty and growing, and rapture of high vitality in plant and human life alike—that wondrous time has come again.

In every Christian land the season is observed with deep religious feeling. In Jerusalem, the Holy City, enshrouded with so many memories of Christ, his life, his work, his death and his resurrection, the celebration of Easter is of peculiar interest. Representatives of so many churches and sects assemble here at this season for special religious observances that an elaborate schedule has to be planned to prevent worship according to one form of the Christian faith from interfering with that of another. Turkish soldiers are much in evidence at this time to check the smallest beginning of open conflict. One of the most impressive features of the Easter observance in Jerusalem is witnessed on Good Friday on the Via Dolorosa—supposed to be the road over which Christ bore the cross to Calvary—when this commemorative journey is made by the pilgrims on their knees.

Easter customs still cling to England in many places. Maundy money, is distributed on Thursday at Westminster, as in the days of Pepys, old men and women over 60 years of age receive specially minted coins, corresponding to the year in King George's life. It follows that the older a British king is, the more money is distributed. On Good Friday there is a procession to St. Paul's cathedral revived from early times by the Bishop of London, and the suburban districts have similar ones to their parish churches. The veiling of the crucifix at Easter is still maintained as a survival of that older ceremony of "watching the sepulchre." In olden days this graphic and elaborate rite commenced on Good Friday with the lowering of the great crucifix and its bestowal in a shallow grave dug beneath the high altar, where it remained until early in the morning of Easter day. In course of time, as the ritual became more ornate, the grave was discarded in favor of a temporary wooden sepulchre erected on the north of the choir, and the host as well as the crucifix were deposited therein.

An old writer on Durham cathedral thus describes it: "On Good Friday, after the singing of the Passion, two monks took a large cushion, brought it to the lower grooves (steps) of the choir and there betwixt them held the crucifix. "Then one of the monks rose and went a pretty space from it and setting himself upon his knees to the cross and kissed it, and, after him the other monks did likewise. Afterwards so did the prior and all the monks, the whole choir in the meantime singing an anthem. Amidst the light of the candles and the burning of incense, the cross was then carried to the sepulchre and there was laid, together with the holy sacrament, within the sepulchre. "Guards were then placed to watch until Easter morning, when the singing of 'Christus Resurgens,' the sacred symbols were taken out of their temporary grave and replaced upon the altar. It was an old belief that the eyes which beheld this Easter elevation would not close in death during the year to come. "The churches in many poorer quarters, including St. George's in the Borough—'Little Dorrit's church'—and St. John's, Walworth, are so thronged by Easter wedding couples that the clergy often marry them in groups. "At the church of St. Mary, Woolnoth, near the mansion house, a queer distribution is still carried out in accordance with the will of Sir John Spencer, who was lord mayor in 1594. He left a

PIKE'S PEAK IS MOST FAMOUS

But Its Height Is Less Than That of Two Other Colorado Mountains in Leadville District.

What is the highest mountain in Colorado? "Pike's Peak," 19 persons out of 20 will answer, and incorrectly. The twentieth may know that the two highest mountains in the state are Mount Massive and Mount Elbert, both in Lake county, in the Leadville district. The altitude of each of these

Most Complex Man Is More or Less an Open Book to His Observing Better Half.

That the race of husbands knows its wives may be doubted. That the race of wives knows its husbands is undoubted. The man goes flourishing forth on his path of many interests. The woman sits at home and broods over her single interest—the man, by dint of brooding she absorbs, and ac-legacy with instructions to the church warden to distribute colored eggs to communicants on Easter morning. That entails giving away about 600 of these eggs. Many ceremonies and sports distinguished the celebration of Easter in olden times. In a royal roll of the time of Edward I preserved in the tower appears an entry of 18 pence for 400 eggs to be used for Easter gifts. Town authorities engaged with due dignity in games of ball. In the northern parts of England the men paraded the streets on Easter Sunday and claimed the privilege of lifting every woman who met three times from the ground, receiving in payment a kiss or a silver sixpence. The same was done by the women to the men the next day. It is recorded also that on Easter Monday the woman had a right to strike their husbands, and on Tuesday the men struck their wives, as in December the servants scolded their masters. From a German authority it is learned that in the Neumark on Easter day the men servants whip the maid servants with switches, and on Monday the maids whip the men. In some parts of Germany parents and children try to surprise each other in bed. On Easter morning to apply the health-giving switches.

In Palestine, Easter is the day when relatives and friends exchange gifts and it is the family reunion day, much as is Christmas in America. On Easter a grand mass is celebrated at 12 o'clock midnight, at which all present receive the Lord's supper. After the service, which lasts about four hours, the crowds go home to break their fast and feast on the dainties prepared before hand. In the morning visits are exchanged between relatives and friends, the younger people go to the older people first to wish them a bright Easter and many happy returns. About 1 p. m. a grand patriarchal procession walks to the church of the Holy Sepulchre singing those melodious Gregorian songs. The scene is particularly imposing. There now follows a service in the Greek cathedral at which the gospel for Easter day is read in all the leading languages of the world.

The first person to salute the car of Russia on Easter morning with the words "Christ is Risen" must be greeted in turn with a royal kiss. No matter how lowly the person—the meanest of beggars, even—the great czar must bestow upon him a brotherly kiss. Not so many Easters ago the czar was compelled by this inexorable custom to kiss the cheek of a peasant stork, stationed in the garden to which the czar had escaped for an early morning walk.

The Spaniards believe that he who is born on Good Friday has the gift of second sight. They delight to tell that Philip IV was second-sighted because he came into the world on this day. Spanish monks, as well as many English countrywomen, declare that sewing done on Good Friday will never come undone. By many European peasants the wind is watched on Palm Sunday, in the belief that from whatever direction it then blows, thence it will come most frequently during the ensuing year. The Spaniard who is fortunate enough to secure a palm, blessed and used in a church procession on Palm Sunday, fastens to the balcony of his house for protection from lightning. An interesting Easter egg custom prevails in Poland. On Easter Monday every head of a house, man or woman, presents each visitor on his call with a hard-boiled egg, or, rather, the Moreover, there are 50 or 60 other peaks in Colorado approximately as high—over 14,000 feet. The lowest point in Colorado is 3,350 feet above sea level. Of all the states Colorado has the highest average altitude, estimated by the geological survey at 6,800 feet.

Although not the highest mountain, Pike's Peak is probably the best-known peak in the United States.

cepts or rejects him. No man can hope to escape from the serious study of a woman, continued for sixteen hours daily. Every piece of evidence that her senses have observed is scrutinized, analyzed, classified. Her mind soaks the man as liquor soaks a lump of sugar. The sugar is dissolved; the man is solved. Most men, it is true, are simple enough. But the most complex men become simple when subjected to the concentrated and continued scrutiny of brooding woman. They are cooked with the disner; they are washed up with the crockery; they are stuffed into the children's pinafores. From that prolonged dissection no man's anatomy can hide its secrets.—Bookfellow (N. S. W.).

half of one. The head of the house divides the egg, gives a half to the caller, and eats with him the other part. The custom has such hold on the people that the nobles, even when living far away from the fetherland, observe it. Many years ago Prince Czartoryski was in residence in Paris, when he held the usual reception on Easter Monday, receiving each guest at the door of his saloon, and dividing the egg in traditional style with each visitor, who ate it conscientiously.

In America, with its population drawn from all sections of the globe, many Easter observances distinctive of the various countries have been retained by the immigrants and their descendants. So decidedly has Easter Sunday come to be thought of in the United States as the great show day of the year that the average person no longer regards it in its most inspiring light—the crowning feast day of the Christian year. Yet its religious significance still lives and while the strenuous seekers of the present day seem to have lost sight of any save its worldly interest the spirit of worship is by no means a thing of the past and nowhere is it more actively alive than in the up-to-date church of a great city. Music is the chief feature of the usual service, and no praise or money is spared to make it a noteworthy event.

Easter egg rolling on the White House grounds in Washington has become an affair of international note. The children gather in crowds outside the tall iron fence that incloses the grounds, and in a somewhat devoid of meaning, but a study of it shows that it is both varied and interesting. Some of the children make races with their eggs, starting them simultaneously from the top of a hillock, with the understanding that the one to reach the bottom first is the winner. If it is "for fair" the egg or loser passes into the possession of the successful contestant. Another way is to roll an egg down hill, to be received at the bottom on the point of a second egg if the thing is properly done, and failure or success in this object gives rise to much merriment. Or, again, two children may roll their eggs toward each other on a flat piece of ground, and when they have met the one cracked is lost. In no other land does the Easter egg so splendidly symbolize democracy as in America.

feelings," remarked the Observer of Events and Things, "but it must be remembered that at such times it was not done on an upturned tack."

ry's possession, where it was preserved in the medal room until 1870. In that year of trouble it was hidden, with many other objects of value, in the library cellars. When the troublesome days were over and the mummy once more brought up from the depths it was found that the sojourn had been detrimental to the once beautiful body, and that a rapid burial was absolutely necessary. Without any funeral march or oration the remains were therefore buried in the garden of the library.

FINE FOR SUNDAY BREAKFAST

Flashballs, to Be Served With Mustard Sauce, May Well Be Prepared the Night Before.

Two-thirds of one pint of salt fish after it is picked fine but not soaked. Fill up the quart with thin sliced potatoes. Put in a kettle with three pints of cold water and boil till potatoes are done. Put in a colander and shake. Put back in the kettle and mash with a wooden potato masher. Add two yolks of eggs with out beating them, one tablespoon (scant) very thick cream. Beat hard. Shape like an egg and fry in deep very hot lard. Do not make them small. They will be shaped. Serve at once with the following sauce, which should be cold:

Mustard Sauce—Two teaspoons dry mustard; one saltspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar, one teaspoon flour, one teaspoon soft butter, two tablespoons vinegar. Mix in the order given in a granite saucepan, add half a cup of boiling water, and stir over the fire till it thickens and is smooth. Makes a delicious Sunday breakfast dish. The potatoes may be peeled and put in cold water Saturday night and the fish shredded but not soaked, as boiling it with the potatoes takes all the salt out.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

A teaspoonful of turpentine boiled with your white clothes will greatly aid the whitening process.

If you have a carpet, work powdered borax into the carpet wherever there is a sign of the insects.

When using oil for frying, the oily taste can be taken away by making the oil very hot, and then fry a piece of onion in it. When brown take it out.

Vinegar in which home-made cucumber pickles have been preserved should not be thrown away, but used in salad dressing. The flavor is delicious and cannot be gained in any other way.

To have boiled potatoes fluffy, pour the water off when they are done, then let them stand in the dish and were cooked in on the back of the stove for a few minutes, giving them an occasional shake.

When you are boiling rice, take care not to throw away the water. Strain it into a bowl and you will find it makes a most excellent starch. This starch may be used either hot or cold. Two or three drops of turpentine are an improvement.

Flit-Tea Cakes Covers. Of the same dimensions as the old-fashioned layer cake covers, are very dainty shields for afternoon tea sandwiches. Their sides are composed of a half dozen squares of embroidered white flit lace firmly wired at the four edges and joined to form six-sided upright section which is topped by a flat six-sided piece of embroidered flit. The contrivance perfectly protects the contents of a sandwich plate from germs and furnace dust without concealing the "goodies."

Spanish Roast. Take six medium-sized red peppers, one good-sized onion, three table-spoons vinegar, one-half teaspoon salt. Boil the peppers in water until you can scrape the pulp from the skin. Chop the onion very fine, mix onion, pepper, vinegar and salt together. Take a three-rib roast, unroll it and spread with above mixture, roll again, let stand all night and roast the next day, basting very often. This is delicious for those who like Spanish cooking. The gravy is delicious.

Short Cuts. A quick way to warm plates in cold weather is to dip them in hot water. Dry in a dish rack or with a towel. Invert the handles of knives, forks and spoons in a pitcher of hot water to warm them.

When covers lose the original knobs, replace them with others that can be bought for 10 cents per dozen at a novelty store.

Crystallized Orange Peel. Take the peel of three oranges and cut in strips. Pour over with sugar, salt and lemon juice. Cook over them and let come to a boil until the peel is tender. Take two cupsful of sugar and one cupful of water and boil to a heavy syrup. Put orange peel in and cook until clear. Have a dish of granulated sugar, take peel from syrup and roll in sugar, and place in sun to clarify. The syrup can be kept in a jar and used again.

Marmalade Pudding. Put into a basin three-quarters pound bread crumbs, add quarter pound chopped nut, one tablespoonful sugar, half a pound of marmalade and mix, then add enough buttermilk to wet the whole. Pour into a greased pudding mold, cover with buttered paper and steam for two hours. Serve with sweet sauce.

Stocking Help. I have found a way of keeping my silk stockings free from the "runs" made by getting written on the stockings to Good Housekeeping. I cut off the tops (about two inches deep) of a pair of old lisle stockings and sew these under the tops of the silk stockings. This little plan has saved me many tedious hours of darning "runs."

Washing Muddy Skirts. To make a muddy skirt wash easily and look white, take some sour milk, dilute with water and soak the skirt in it over night; then wash in the usual way. It will be found that the skirt washes more easily and looks whiter.

Talcum Aids Sewing. Talcum powder is a useful help in sewing. It keeps the palms and inside of the fingers from becoming sticky and does not injure any fabric.

To Avoid Colds. Catching cold is not so much a sign that there has been great exposure, but that the body has no resistance to small amount of exposure. The only way of avoiding catching colds is to accustom oneself to every kind of change of temperature, not to try and keep the body at a uniform heat. It is clear that if the body is kept within a narrow range of temperature, everything outside that will be dangerous, whereas if it is familiarized with a wide range of temperature, everything within that can have no ill effect.

PROMINENT PEOPLE

HUERTA INTENSELY PRO-AMERICAN

United States army officers who know General Huerta well say he is intensely pro-American. His closest acquaintances on this side of the line declare the Mexican's two heroes are George Washington and General Juarez.

Victoriano Huerta was born in the state of Jalisco fifty-five years ago. He is of Spanish descent. He is a graduate of the government military college at Chapultepec. He served in the Mexican army until 1902, when he was appointed a general staff officer. The same year he was made a general of brigade. In 1912 he was made a general of division.

His principal war record dates from August, 1911, when he commanded the troops sent out by Provisional President De la Barra against the Zapatistas. In May, 1911, he was in the Mexican army until 1902, when he was appointed a general staff officer. The same year he was made a general of brigade. In 1912 he was made a general of division.

On July 4, 1912, the day following the battle of Bachimba, General Huerta sent the 23rd Mexican infantry band, the best band in the Mexican army, to serenade the American military attaché, Major Burnside, who was traveling with Huerta. For more than an hour the band played American and Mexican airs.

General Huerta's march of 293 miles, in which he had an army of 7,000 men and 25 cannon, from Torreón to Chihuahua, in the campaign against Orozco last year, was described by American army officers as wonderful.

Aurelio Blanquet, the officer who really engineered the coup d'état against Madero, is a general brigadier, a rank below that of a colonel of a regiment and a general of a brigade. He is a native of Mexico and is of French descent. In 1905 he was colonel of the 29th infantry. On the outbreak of the Maderista revolution he was dispatched with his regiment to the outskirts of Mexico as a part of the federal guard. In March, 1911, with his regiment he was sent to Santa Rosalia, Chihuahua. In May, 1911, he was sent south of Puebla, where he commanded in the fight against the Maderistas.

Blanquet and the 29th infantry were a part of Huerta's command in the campaign against Zapata in Morelos. In December, 1911, and February, 1912, he was in the fight in Guerrero against the Salguadistas. He was with General Gonzales at the first battle of Rellano, Chihuahua, March 24, 1912. He was wounded in this fight. He was in the Durango campaign in May, 1912, against General Campos and in the Coahuila campaign, August and September, 1912, against General Caraxeo, the rebel leader.

HITCHCOCK WANTS EVERYTHING RED

Postmaster General Frank Hitchcock has issued orders to employes of the postoffice department to paint everything red—Red with a capital R.

White colors and pale, sticky reds will not do. "R-E-D" is the word. Every delivery wagon, city parcel post and rural free delivery vehicle must be red.

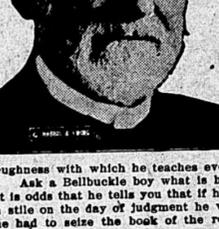

All mail boxes throughout the United States must be red. To try out the new color Mr. Hitchcock ordered some of the Washington city wagons painted. The wagons, ready for his inspection, were brought around to the postoffice building, but instead of being red they were wine-colored.

"Take them back and make them red, without any sort of blend," said the postmaster general. "And red they are."

The postmaster general wanted to leave a uniform color, something like the tail of a comet, when he went out, turning over the postoffice department to some Democrat.

Everybody employed by the postoffice department who is to do work in the cities is pleased with the new order—the red-paint order—but there is a protest from the rural carriers, who say that in their red wagons they will be chased by all the bulls and turkey gobblers, to say nothing of the dogs, along their routes.

SENATOR WEBB A DISCIPLINARIAN

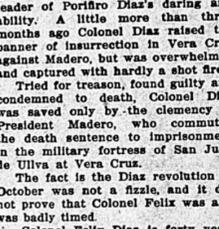

William R. Webb was elected by the Tennessee legislature to succeed Senator Newell Saunders, whose term expired March 4, and was in turn succeeded by John K. Shields. Mr. Webb, therefore, served only about a month.

Down in Tennessee, where he has taught school for so many years, Mr. Webb is known as "Old Sawney," and any of the boys who have sat on the benches under "Sawney" will tell you just what the senators should have done when he entered the chamber. There were the desks and the seats—why didn't the senate go into some sort of special session and go to school to Sawney Webb for a while?

"They could not have done better for the country than to swallow a bit of his discipline, which every one of his scholars has tasted. It would be better to just digest that tasted, for it is just there that Webb has made his schoolmastering famous, in the thoroughness with which he teaches every lesson."

Ask a Bellville boy what is his clearest mental picture of the master. It is odds that he tells you that if he were to see "Old Sawney" coming over a stile on the day of judgment he would grab a book and begin studying, if he had to seize the book of the recording angel to do it.

SUCCESSFUL COMIC OPERA REVOLT

By one of the most curious turns of fortune's wheel, a comic opera revolt became a tremendous revolution and the man who lately was at the mercy of Madero substantially became Madero's conqueror and the new master of Mexico.

This man is Colonel Felix Diaz, the favorite nephew of the banished dictator, and as it now seems, a leader of Porfirio Diaz's daring and ability. A little more than three months ago Colonel Diaz raised the banner of insurrection in Vera Cruz against Madero, but was overwhelmed and captured with hardly a shot fired.

Tried for treason, found guilty and condemned to death, Colonel Diaz was saved only by the clemency of President Madero, who commuted the death sentence to imprisonment in the military fortress of San Juan de Ulva at Vera Cruz.

The fact is the Diaz revolution of October was not a fiasco, and it did not prove that Colonel Felix was a weakling or a bad leader. The uprising was badly timed.

Colonel Felix Diaz is forty years old and is the son of General Felix Diaz, a brother of the former president, who was killed in 1871 during a revolution which the Diaz faction led against President Juarez.

For six years before the downfall of the Diaz rule, Colonel Diaz was chief of police of Mexico. He supported his uncle throughout the revolution, but when Madero triumphed, he accepted the situation with apparent grace and until two months before he organized the revolution in Vera Cruz, he remained a commissioned officer in the federal army.

Early in October Colonel Diaz proclaimed himself commander in chief of the rebel forces in Mexico and took possession of Vera Cruz, the most important port of the country.

On the morning of October 24, 1912, the federal troops attacked Vera Cruz and captured it after two hours of almost bloodless fighting. Colonel Diaz was captured. The day after the battle Colonel Diaz was tried by court martial for treason and sentenced to death.

President Madero, however, decided to spare Colonel Diaz's life and to imprison him. Colonel Diaz was placed in the San Juan de Ulva military prison at Vera Cruz, and later was removed to the military prison in the capital.

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Beatrice, Neb.—"Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe a number of times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and was going for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. CARLO, Beatrice, Neb.

The Other Case. Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation, but my husband thought I had better write to you and I did so, stating my symptoms. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I had no pain, slept well, had good appetite and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. HAYWARD SOWAN, Cary, Maine.
