PHYSIOLOGICAL EFFECT OF GLASSES

Glasses are made for old folks, young folks, and anyone that needs them. They were not invented for style, and seldom worn for the sake of eyes. They often relieve headaches by relieving eye strain and nervousness at all, because they protect the eyes from excessive light. They don't make you older, but keep you from scowling and using up your nerve energy and consequently save your nerves as well as your eyes. They often relieve headaches by relieving eye strain and nervousness. They are not medicine, but often save headache pills, and prevent styes, inflamed lids, epilepsy, and many nervous diseases directly and indirectly caused by eyes.
