The First Victim.

Chief Justice Doherty used to relate an experience which befell him during a visit to a country house in Ireland. His friend, the host, sent a car to the railway station to bring him to the place. He had not gone far when the horse became restless and finally upset the car into a ditch. The judge asked the driver how long the animal had been in harness.

"Half an hour, sur."

"I mean how long since he was first put in harness?"

"Shure, I've tould you—half an hour, sur," answered the driver. "An' the masher said if he carried ye safe he'd buy him."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Old Peppermint Remedies.

Peppermint drops have long been the unfailing comforter of old ladies—and others—but in recent times we seem to have got past needing some of the medicinal qualities for which peppermint oil was held in high esteem in bygone centuries. Gerarde in his Herbarie (1633) advises the use of it either "poured into the eares with honeyed water" or "taken inwardly" as a certain specific "agalant scolopendros, beare-worms, sea-serpents, scorpions and the bitings of mad dogs!"—London Chronicle.

Deduction.

"Now, Dorothy," said the teacher to a small pupil, "can you tell me what a panther is?"

"Yeth, ma'am," lisped Dorothy. "A panther is a man that makth panth."

—Chicago News.

The Spring Eye.

Flatbush—"How's your garden looking?" Bansonhurst—"Well, I saw a rooster looking at it through the pickets of the fence, this morning, and it seemed to look good to him."
