FATE TRICKS ROYALTY ALSO

Two Pathetic Old Ex-Queens Still Live to See Europe Torn by Most Ruthless War.

There are two women, once of world prominence, who within the memory of those now living have experienced unusual extremes of fortune. Their lives have touched the heights of power and tragedy. One is Carlotta, daughter of Leopold of Belgium and wife of that Maximilian, archduke of Austria and emperor of Mexico, who faced a firing squad at Queretaro in 1867; the other is Eugenie, on whose head Napoleon III placed the crown of France, once worn by Marie Antoinette, and who, more fortunate than that unhappy queen, escaped a French mob and survived the downfall of an empire. The misfortunes of both were spanned in less than half a dozen years. Carlotta has been insane for 49 years, with some slight chance at this late date, it is said, of recovering her reason; Eugenie, ninety years old, the 5th of next month, still lives in exile, a bent, worn old woman, leaning upon crutches and clad in perpetual mourning—she who was once queen of beauty and ruler of fashion, setting its modes in accordance with her whims.

Those who believe in present retributions may see in Eugenie's long years of bereavement fate's requital for the cowardice and cruelty of Napoleon the Little, who left Maximilian to his fate, denied Carlotta's pleas and requested her to leave France. His own fall came soon. The Franco-Prussian war, which France ascribed to Eugenie's influence—that her only son, the Prince Imperial, might more securely hold the crown—left him a prisoner after Sedan. He died, broken hearted and in exile, in 1873; the Prince Imperial, who, according to rumor, joined the British forces in South Africa because of his mother's opposition to his love for a girl he wished to marry, was brought home pierced with Zulu assegais. That loss was greater than that of husband or empire to the ex-empress; for weeks she did not speak.

After her great bereavement Eugenie left Chislehurst, her first shelter in England, and has since lived at Farnborough, where she busies herself among the poor. Last winter an English paper pictured a very old, black-clad woman, leaning upon a staff, talking with some wounded soldiers. What memories those men in bandages must have brought to the woman who had once talked so lightly of "my little war"—the war that was to spell ruin to all her ambitions!

Of all the great figures of that memorable conflict which cost France millions of francs and two of her fairest provinces—William I, Bismarck, Von Moltke, Bazaine, Garibaldi and MacMahon—the deposed empress alone survives.—Detroit Free Press.

"The True Patriot Does Not Reserve His Patriotism Until He Has A Chance To Die For His Country---He Lives For Her."

On the Fourth of July every patriotic citizen the country over will display an American flag to commemorate the 140th anniversary of our country's freedom.

It is a source of satisfaction to the officers of this institution that many of the flags displayed in this community will have another significance—they will designate the homes of citizens who in their every day lives carry out the principles of true patriotism through the practice of thrift.

If you have not already secured the large American flag and the small home savings bank which we are offering, do so today by opening an account. With an initial deposit of $25 or more, both are immediately available; or, the account may be started with less, the small bank as an aid to home saving secured at once and the flag as soon as the account reaches $25.

Let the flag you display on the Fourth indicate that you are on the one sure road to financial independence—the bank book road.
